BIRGER AND 2 OF GANG GO TO TRIAL FOR MURDER

Gang Leader, Newman and Hyland at Bar in Benton, Ill., for Plotting Killing of West City Mayor.

CONFESSED SLAYER TO CONFRONT THEM

Harry Thomasson Says He and Brother Were Hired for $50 to Shoot Friend of the Sheltons.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BENTON, Ill., July 6. — After three years of swagger, bluster and bloodshed, the law caught up with Charlie Birger here today. The law moved slowly, following a trail of many murders, but today in this little town, hundreds from all over Southern Illinois saw the man who laughed at law led through the streets.

He walked from the Franklin County jail a short block to the court house to answer for the murder of Joe Adams, Mayor of West City. Surrounded by Deputy Sheriffs, with a troop of small boys at their heels, Birger, the gunman and gang leader, who terrorized three counties with midnight raid and boastful poses, went to face a jury of plain men.

With him as he entered the courtroom were Art Newman, his former pal and chief lieutenant, and Ray Hyland, known as "Izzy, the Jew," who are jointly charged in the Adams murder. Birger, wearing a light gray suit and gray necktie, his hair parted neatly, still swaggered a little. But Newman, subdued in blue, and Hyland, a furtive youngster, seemed to feel the solemnity of the moment.

Motion to Quash Heard.

The first order of business was the filing of motions by the defense counsel to quash the indictments. Court recessed for a few moments to consider the motions.

When court convened after lunch defense counsel began presenting their testimony in support of the motion to quash The defendants sat quietly chatting with relatives and attorneys, Birger playing with his children. The crowd was larger than at the morning session and a large number of persons arrived from Herrin and other Williamson County towns.

Judge Miller overruled the joint motion to quash the indictments against Birger, Newman and Hyland. The three defendants then were arraigned. Birger stood with his arms clasped about the shoulders of his eldest daughter, while State's Attorney Martin read the indictments.

Attorneys for the defendants presented motions for severances. Birger asked for a severance from Newman. Hyland joined with Birger in the motion for severance from Newman. The latter asked for a severance from Hyland and Birger.

Sedate Scene in Courtroom.

In the crowded courtroom there was a homely but sedate scene awaiting Birger and his men. Scores of citizens in shirt sleeves, blue shirted suspendered countrymen sat under the high tin ceiling. Old farmers and young miners, row upon row, looked at the gangsters as Sheriff Pritchard and his deputies led them in.

Many of these spectators had seen the Birger gang in its full power and infamy, roistering past on the highway late at night, shooting up roadhouses, threatening assassinations. Now the spectators were prospective jurors and the roisterers had come to the bar to ask them for their lives.

Women and children strained forward to stare at the notorious Birger, the almost equally notorious Newman and Hyland, a typical gang character. But these women and these children were not today peering in frightened awe from farm house windows while the Birger gang roared by. They were not cowering on the back seats of Fords while the lords of the underworld bullied their men folks on the highway.

It was a new deal today. The citizens of Franklin County and the visitors from "Bloody Williamson" sat trustfully in the court room facing an American flag above the judge's bench, content that only officers of the law were bearing arms.

Entrance Well Stage-Managed.

Birger, Newman and Hyland stepped immediately into the carefully staged setting which defense attorneys like to arrange for the benefit of the jury. There was

FEDERAL PROFIT TAX ON GIFTS HELD CONSTITUTIONAL

Levy Must Be Paid on Increased Value, U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Rules.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 6. — Constitutionality of the section of the Revenue Act of 1921, which provides that profit tax on securities received as gifts shall be based upon increases in value from the dates on which the securities were received, is upheld in decisions handed down in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The ruling followed action brought by Mrs. Elizabeth Taft, and John D. Greenway against the Collector of Internal Revenue. Testimony showed Mrs. Taft had received $11,700 in Nash Motors stock from her father as a gift in March, 1922, and sold it in 1923 for $34,345. In her income tax return, she listed the profit of $22,644, but the collector ruled she must pay a tax on the full amoun she received for the stock. The Greenway case record was similar.

Samuel C. Coleman, Assistant United States Attorney, said the decisions, used as precedent, would yield millions of dollars in taxes for the United States.

DR. HANAU W. LOEB DIES; HAD BEEN ILL YEAR AND A HALF

Dean of the St. Louis U. Medical School Succumbs to Heart Disease at Jewish Hospital.

SUFFERED SERIOUS ATTACK ON DEC. 12

Physician Had Been Under Constant Treatment Since That Time—He Was 61 Years Old.

Dr. Hanau W. Loeb, dean of the St. Louis University Medical School and president of the medical staff of Jewish Hospital, died of heart disease at Jewish Hospital at 1:20 o'clock this afternoon.

He had been ill for a year and a half and had been a patient at the hospital since Dec. 12, when he was stricken witha heart attack. He resided in an aaprtment at 4943 Lindell boulevard.

He was 61 years old.

Dr. Loeb was the oldest of three brothers whose names appear in the latest "Who's Who in Amerila." The younger brothers are Isidor Loeb, dean of the Department of Commerce and Finance of Washington University, lately in a similar position in the University of Missouri, and Dr. Virgil Loeb, a St. Louis oral surgeon. Another brother, Dr. Clarence Loeb, is in practice in Chicago.

Hanau Wolf Loeb was born in Philadelphia, but was reared in Missouri, and took his A. B. degree in the University of Missouri at the age of 18, and the degree of Master of Arts three years later. His medical course was taken in the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons. where he graduated in the class of 1888. In the same year he began practice in St. Joseph, Mo. He removed to St. Louis in 1890.

St. Louis U. Medical Dean.

In 1913 Dr. Loeb, who had been active in medical teaching, was appointed dean of the Medical School of St. Louis University, which embraced the consolidated institutions previously known as Marion Sims and Beaumont Medical Colleges.

It was under Dr. Loeb's administration as dean that the medical school came to the favorable attention of James Campbell. When Campbell died in 1914 it was found that his will, executed after Dr. Loeb took charge of the school, had named that institution as the ultimate beneficiary of his fortune of $25,000,000 or more. The specified objects to which the money is to be applied are the building and maintenance of a hospital and medical and surgical teaching and reseach. Under the conditions imposed, the actual receipt of the bequest appears to be many years distant, but Dr. Loeb often expressed the belief that, whenever received, the gift would make possible the establishment of medical teaching and research work on a new scale of magnitude and public benefit.

Dr. Loeb was commissioned in 1917 as a Major in the Medical Reserve Corps and was raised later to the rank of Colonel.

Milliken Estate Executor.

Dr. Loeb was named as one of the executors of the estate of John T. Milliken, acting in that capacity with the National Bank of Commerce and its president, John G. Lonsdale. For his services as executor he received legal fees exceeding $67,000. His long personal friendship with Milliken was the reason for this appointment.

Books written by Dr. Loeb are: "Operative Surgery of the Ear, Nose and Throat" and "Military Surgery of the Ear, Nose and Throat." In 1919 he was made chief of staff of the Jewish Hospital.

He took a leading part in the movement for higher standards of medical education, and was active on protesting against measures passed by the last Legislature, which were considered as lowering the standards. Through the movement in which he was active, the unfavorable legislation was reversed by the 1923 Legislature.

Dr. Loeb visited Japan in the spring of 1925, and wrote a series of letters describing his observations, which were circulated among his friends.

George de Forest Brush Wins Claim for Making Mrs. Brooks-Aten Look Less Portly.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 6.—George de Forest Brush of Dublin, N. H., obtained $4500 judgment from a jury today for his services in repainting a portrait of Mrs. Florence Brooks-Aten of Park avenue to make the painted figure, among other things, less portly and so more pleasing to the subject.

Mrs. Brooks-Aten a sportswoman and philanthropist, commissioned Brush, a member of the National Academy, to paint her portrait when she was at her summer home, Shinbone Shanty, near the artist's New Hampshire studio, in 1925. She agreed to pay $5000 after the first sitting and $5000 more on delivery.

The first picture she considered of "gorgeous coloring" but thought it had a "cow pasture background." One shoulder in the picture she said gave the impression that she "weighed 250 pounds." She ordered the picture repainted. After the remodeled picture was completed and the $10,000 had been paid Brush brought suit for $7000 for making the alterations. Mrs. Brooks-Aten asserted that she should be asked to pay for no more than the value of the materials used.

BYRD KISSES FRENCH GIRL WHO BRINGS HIM VIOLETS

Luncheon Guests Applaud Vociferously—Flyer Blushes as He Accepts Flowers.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 6.—A modestly dressed French girl of about 20, who presented Commander Richard E. Byrd with a bunch of violets this afternoon, was rewarded with two kisses from the Commander of the trans-Atlantic crew of the America.

The girl, who was among a great crowd which had gathered near the restaurant at which the American aviators were luncheon guests of the Anglo-American Press Association, made her way up the stairway and announced that she had a bouquet to present to the commander.

The ushers demurred but the girl insisted and finally succeeded in carrying the violets to Commander Byrd who already was seated at the table of honor. The Commander rose, blushed, took the bouquet hesitatingly and then on a sudden impulse kissed the girl upon both heeks amid the vociferous applause of the guests.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 6.—Search for a cigarette girl whose identity was not otherwise disclosed was started here today by police in investigating the death of Paul O Whittice, wealthy 40-year-old architect and clubman.

Whittice was found dead in his home Monday, supposedly having killed himself. However, an autopsy surgeon late last night reported the death due to poisoning, after which Mrs. Whittice told investigators her husband had had an affair with the girl and that the acquaintanceship had caused "much unhappiness" in the architect's home.

BYRD DECORATED BY POINCARE WITH LEGION OF HONOR FOR OCEAN FLIGHT

Ceremony Takes Place at Ministry of Finance in Presence of American Charge d'Affaires.

AMERICA'S CREW VISIT WAR WOUNDED

Airmen Probably Will Go to England — Plan Radio Communication From South Pole.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 6.—Premier Poincare pinned the decoration of the Legion of Honor on the breast of Commander Byrd this morning.

The ceremony took place at the Ministry of Finance, in the presence of Sheldon Whitehouse, American Charge d'Affaires; Capt. White, the naval attache, and H. A. Gibbons, personal representative of Rodman Wanamaker, who sponsored the America's flight across the Atlantic.

The visit of Commander Byrd and his three flight companions to the Premier was brief, for M. Poincare had to hurry away for the opening of the morning session of the Chamber of Deputies.

The Premier chatted pleasantly for a few minutes with the airmen, congratulating them on their courage and endurance and the scientific success of their exploit.

Then he pinned the Legion of Honor cross on Commander Byrd's breast and gave the traditional embrace.

Thanks French People.

The Commander thanked him and expressed in behalf of his comrades and himself deep appreciation of the warm-hearted welcome that had been accorded in France and the sympathetic interest with which the French people had followed the flight, especially the last few hours of the early morning battle with the fog.

The aviators' visit to Poincare was not widely heralded. There was only a small crowd in front of the entrance of the ministry when they arrived, but it was an enthusiastic one. The flyers responded to the cheers by bowing and tipping their hats.

Visit War Wounded.

Commander Byrd and the crew of the America went to the Hotel des Invalides, home of France's war wounded. For the first time since he was brought down at Verdun in 1918, Captain Charles Legendre, paralyzed French aviator, stood and walked.

"Your courage, despite overwhelming odds, and your splendid exploits have given me renewed courage," Captain Legendre told Commander Byrd, his emotion plainly visible. "I will accompany you."

He arose hesitatingly, groped a moment for support, and then with the most obvious effort of will took a faltering step forward. Another followed, and the war hero, his arm resting lightly on the shoulder of the trans-Atlantic flier, walked slowly but surely toward the entrance of Napoleon's tomb.

It was the most moving incident of the war stay of the American aviators here. Tears glistened in many eyes as the little party, with Lieutenant Noville, Bert Acosta and Bernt Balchen hovering anxiously about the faltering French ace, visited the tomb and then returned to the grounds of the Invalides, where anxious hands pushed a wheel chair forward for Legendre.

Takes Letter from Wanamaker.

The Americans went to the Invalides at the invitation of the Ailes Brisees—"Broken Wings"—an organization of war-wounded birdmen to whom Rodman Wanamaker had sent a letter of sympathy in Commander Byrd's care.

They were received by Gen. Mariaux, one-legged war hero, director of the Invalides, and Raffalovitch of the Ailes Brisees, who told them how happy their success had made their broken comrades of the air and how keenly they appreciated the fact that the Americans were willing to steal an hour from a busy day for men who were "left only husks of themselves."

"Even these old walls are happy to receive you," General Mariaux concluded.

Commander Byrd, speaking for his party, told General Mariaux it was one of the greatest privileges of all to be received by "the aviators who were hurt for France in the greatest war of all time."

The aviators made a thorough inspection of the Invalides before leaving for a luncheon given by American and English newspapermen.

Commander Byrd at the luncheon asked permission to say something about Chamberlin's flight.

"I watched it carefully," he said

NEW EFFORT AT GENEVA TO ADJUST DISPUTE OVER CRUISER TONNAGE FAILS

Chief Justice Taft Happy on Bench, Says He Was Not Adapted To Tasks of the Presidency

Now Enjoys Companionship of Friends; in White House He Had to Maintain Reserve.

By JOHN T. SUTER.
A Washington Correspondent of the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 6.

UNTROUBLED by the maddening swirl of politics, William Howard Taft is nearing his seventieth year happier in his daily work than he ever has been before, in or out of office.

As he looks back over 40 years of public service, the only man who has been both President and Chief Justice, he says quite frankly that he does not consider that he was "fitted" for the political arena, and that he would rather be where he is today than in the White House.

He is so well satisfied, and so greatly encouraged over the recent improvement in his health, that he has no intention of leaving the bench when he becomes eligible for retirement. He will be 70 years old in September, and if he chose could retire on full pay in 1931, when he completes ten years service as Chief Justice. But he prefers to remain in harness.

Touches Many Personal Subjects.

These disclosures were made to the Associated Press by Mr. Taft in an intimate talk just before he left Washington recently for his summer home in Canada. He now has consented to publication of this talk, in which he touched on many personal subjects and discussed, with a knowledge no other man ever possessed, the comparative requirements of the presidency and the chief justiceship.

The talk took place in the study which he fitted out for himself some years ago in his home on Wyoming avenue. It is a third-floor room, jutting out from the main part of the house. Formerly a sleeping porch, it has windows on three sides and provides what the Chief Justice described with his infectious chuckle as "a commanding view."

In the center of the room stands a large desk. Between the windows rise stacks of law books. On the fourth side is an open fireplace, and above it hangs a large portrait of the Chief Justice's father, who once was Secretary of War and later Attorney-General.

Nearby are pictures of Abraham Lincoln and of various personal friends, including Elihu Root and President Lowell of Harvard.

Declined Place on Bench.

As he approaches his comparison of the two great offices he has held Mr. Taft made a passing reference to Theodore Roosevelt. Although he has near him no memento of the years of his association with Roosevelt, the Chief Justice mentioned without a ruffle in his customary good nature the man who was his staunchest political friend and then his bitter opponent. He related how Roosevelt had offered him a place on the Supreme bench. At that time Taft was Governor-General of the Philippines and he refused the offer.

"I declined because it was not deemed wise at that time, from a Philippine standpoint to have a change in the office of governor," he said. "The people wanted me to stay, and I yielded, although it had always been my ambition to serve on the bench. I do not care for politics."

With a smile that rippled into a hearty laugh, he added:

"Not that I have no interest in such matters, but I am not fitted for the hustings and controversy."

He enlarged upon this theme by pointing out that with him elevation to the highest judicial office in the country had not, as with some of his predecessors, broken personal contacts with friends or with the people generally. He retains a keen interest in current events and reads much; and he does not find himself lonesome for the society of office-seekers and politicians.

Isolation of Presidency.

"I do not mind what is sometimes called the monastic life of the bench," he continued. "I have most delightful associates in the court, and very pleasant relations with members of the bar. These are, it should be noted, exactly defined. But the truth is you are more isolated in the Presidency. While a president sees a great many people, he cannot avoid defending himself against too great

Craft at New York Camp Crashes With Two Officers—Two Youths Drown in River

By the Associated Press.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 6.—Capt. Curtis Wheeler and Lieut. Carl J. Sack, both officers of the 27th Division Air Service, in training at Pine Camp, near here, were killed today when their plane crashed to the ground one and a half miles from camp.

Captain Wheeler was 36 years old and was assistant editor of the New York Herald-Tribune's Sunday magazine. Lieut. Sack was 26 years old and a chemist employed by the Pennsylvania railroad. Lieut. Sack was pilot on the flight this morning and Capt. Wheeler was observer.

Capt. Wheeler and Lieut. Sack were flying in an old Curtiss JN-4 army plane, built in 1915. The flyers were co-operating with the 105th Infantry of the National Guard in working out a regimental defense problem. The plane, piloted by Sack, had been exchanging wireless messages with the infantry units below, when it flew to within 200 to 300 feet of the earth. Then, seemingly, it went into a nose dive.

Two Flyers Drown When Plane Falls Into River.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 6.—Walter Shepherd and Paul Morgan were drowned this afternoon when their airplane dropped into the Ohio River at Cox's Landing, near here.

Shepherd, 18 years old, was an automobile salesman here and an amateur air pilot. Morgan, 18, of Piney, W. Va., was attending Marshall College. Shepherd had rented planes several times from a Huntington airship company. He had made no arrangements to go up today and apparently the flight was not authorized by the company.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 6.—Six of eight passengers in a three-motored airplane belonging to Ross W. Judson, president of the Continental Motors Corporation, received severe bruises and other minor injuries when the machine, in making a landing at the local flying field, turned over.

The passengers, guests of Judson, were on the way from Muskegon to Detroit and Cleveland. Judson was only slightly hurt, but five others required hospital treatment. They included Mrs. Evelyn Bentley of Sheridan, Wyo., and Lieut. Jerome M. Pond of New York City, the pilot.

GIBSON DISCUSSES ISSUE SEPARATELY WITH BRITISH AND JAPANESE ENVOYS

Bridgeman Said to Have Criticised Americans for Not Recognizing "Reasonable Requirements."

SOLUTION UP TO HOME GOVERNMENTS

U. S., While Fixing 400,000 Tons as Limit, Hopes to Bring Maximum Below That Figure.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 6.—The British, American and Japanese plenipotentiaries to the tripartite conference met privately this evening in an endeavor to solve the crisis.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 6.—Private meetings today between Hugh S. Gibson, American delegate, and Viscount Ishii of Japan, and later between Gibson and A. C. Bridgeman, British delegate, failed to improve the critical situation confronting the tripartite naval conference.

Lord Cecil, Admiral Sir Frederick Field, and also Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, U. S. N., were present at the Anglo-American parley which, according to reliable report, was rather lively.

It is declared that the British criticised the Americans for their alleged failure properly to recognize Great Britain's reasonable requirements.

According to all accounts, Gibson insisted that the United States did not wish to do any injustice to Great Britain, but that the American delegation saw little chance of the Senate ratifying a treaty which would bring cruiser strength up to the neighborhood of 600,000 tons and prove bait for increased instead of decreased naval construction.

The Japanese are plainly worried over the situation. The private conversations are continuing.

Up to Home Governments.

The conference is at a standstill as far as Geneva is concerned.

The next word lies with the Governments in Washington. London and Tokio. It is they who must help or even direct the solution of the cruiser problem which, if not settled, means the collapse of the conference.

Apparently, Washington must tell London that the new maximum cruiser figures submitted by Gibson embody America's last upward concession, if Washington really means this; and Tokio must let Downing street know how Japan regards cruiser limitation.

America's Notice to Britain.

The situation today is that the American delegation has told the British that limitation can only be achieved by keeping cruiser strength within 400,000 tons, which is some 50,000 tons higher than the present American cruiser strength.

The Americans say in effect to the British, "We do not object to you having 70 odd cruisers if you need them, but distribute the tonnage so that the total will not create a big excess over your present total tonnage."

British Attitude.

To this the British answer: "We need about 70 cruisers, but if you Americans insist upon keeping large-size cruisers, then we must naturally build our cruisers up to maximum size when the time comes to replace the old ships, some 30 of which are of 5000-tons displacement or even less. If you will construct smaller ships, it will automatically bring down our total tonnage figures."

The only practicable solution now in sight seems to be a private agreement with Great Britain that she will continue to build a certain number of the small cruisers which she has hitherto regarded as sufficient in size for colonial operations, as insistence upon the right to build 10,000 and 7500-ton vessels

GENTRY REFUSES TO MOVE AGAINST LACLEDE GAS CO.

Attorney-General Denies Mayor Miller's Request to Start Ouster Suit Attacking Its Franchise.

COMPANY'S CHARTER PERPETUAL, HE SAYS

City's Long Recognition of Laclede's Claims He Thinks Would Hamper It in Court Action.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 6.—Attorney-General Gentry today announced his refusal to file quo warranto proceedings attacking the charter of the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis, as Mayor Miller, in a letter made public June 21, requested him to do.

The Attorney-General rendered an opinion to the effect that the City of St. Louis, by long recognition of the gas company's rights, had placed itself in a position where it would have difficulty in attacking those rights in a court proceeding.

The Mayor, in his request for a test of the gas company's franchise rights, accepted the view of counsel for the Union Electric Co., a rival public utility concern, that the Laclede's charter and franchise have expired. His program was to oust the company and then to bring about a new franchise agreement, with a demand for a lower valuation as a basis for rate-making.

Thinks Charter Perpetual.

The Attorney-General, in his letter to the City Counselor's office, stated he was convinced the Laclede charter was perpetual, and that the act of 1868 granting the rights forever, which has been under attack, was constitutional.

Gentry pointed out that the Laclede company had been recognized as a corporation by the State for more than half a century and no proceeding instituted against it by the State in that period. He said the company had been before the State Tax Commission, the State Board of Equalization, the Public Service Commission and other departments with no complaint being made, and that the city of St. Louis had recognized the corporate existence of the company for many years.

"I am, therefore, of the opinion that for the State now to attempt to repudiate the corporate existence of the Laclede Co. would not be acting in good faith," Gentry wrote. "Without asserting that the State is estopped in this case, I am persuaded that I could not lend the name of the State in an attempt to oust the Laclede Co., and I, therefore, respectfully decline to do so."

Other Ways of Getting Action.

Gentry recalled that John M. Goodwin, one of the attorneys for Union Electric, who prepared the opinion upon which Mayor Miller based his request for filing the suit, had suggested in a hearing before Gentry that the suit could be brought in other ways if the Attorney-General declined to file quo warranto proceedings.

Only the Attorney-General may institute quo warranto proceedings in Supreme Court, but Goodwin suggested that a receivership suit might be filed in Circuit Court by a stockholder, or ouster proceedings filed in St. Louis Circuit Court by the Circuit Attorney.

"As to the bringing of other suits, I have nothing to say," Gentry continued, "assuming that other officers and courts will do their duty as the same appears to them, and as I am now endeavoring to do. Whether the city of St. Louis can maintain such a suit or require the Attorney General to institute a suit of this character, in view of the fact that the city has recognized the corporate existence and franchise rights of the Laclede Co. for many years, both in the collection of taxes on its property and the enactment of ordinances conferring on it rights and privileges, are questions that I am not called upon to decide.

Notes Aldermen's Silence.

"It is true that Mayor Miller of St. Louis requested the institution of this suit, but I have received no request whatever from the Legislative branch of the city government, which alone is authorized to bind the city."

In discussing contentions of Goodwin that the act of 1868 was unconstitutional, and that the Laclede Co. therefore never had any corporate existence nor any corporate rights after that time, Gentry said the Supreme Court, "many times has decided that a legislative act is presumed to be constitutional, and no act will be held to be unconstitutional unless its unconstitutionality appears beyond a doubt."

The Missouri Legislature, Gentry said, both before and after the Civil War, passed many special acts incorporating railroad companies, bridge companies, insurance companies, colleges, saving associations and other business concerns and gave some of them perpetual succession and others exemption from taxation. The State then was in need of capital for development purposes, and the General Assembly deemed it wise to make liberal offers and hold out inducements that would persuade persons and corporations to make investments that would aid in development of the State.

"The acts granting and amending this charter to the Laclede Co. were in line with many other legislative acts, and in furthrance of the policy of our State to encourage the investment of capital in Missouri," Gentry said. "If the General Assembly had power to grant perpetual succession and taxation exemption to some corporations, it certainly had power to grant a perpetual charter to the Laclede Co.

"Act of 1868 Constitutional."

"I am of the opinion that the act of 1868 is constitutional and that the Legislature had the right to give the Laclede Co. the privileges bestowed upon it by this act. In fact, our Supreme Court held that a contract between the Laclede Co. and the City of St. Louis was valid; and, in speaking of the act of 1857 (the original charter grant) the court said that it gave to the Laclede Co. the power to make contracts with the city for the lighting of a portion of the city; and, in speaking of the act of 1868, the court said: 'this legislation shows no intention to take away from the Laclede Co. its powers to contract with the city, but on the contrary, its powers in this respect are extended over the entire city limits.'"

Opposes Union Electric's Views.

Gentry disagreed with contentions of attorneys of the city and Union Electric that the Laclede Co. never was authorized to engage in the electrical business. The electric department of the Laclede is a competitor of the Union Electric. Gentry recalled that the original act giving the Laclede Co. a charter gave it the right to manufacture and sell gas, gas lights, fixtures, and "any substance or material that may be now or hereafter used as a substituta therefor."

He held it did not matter whether the Legislature at that time knew of electricity or the purposes for which it would be used, as the wording was sufficiently broad to include it.

Regrets Personalities.

Concerning charges made by Laclede company's attorneys at the hearing here June 27, that the move had been instigated by Union Electric to drive a competitor out of business, Gentry said: "Some personalities were indulged in during the arguments, which I regret," but stated he was passing on the matter salely as a legal question.

An argument that the Laclede company did not pay a franchise tax to the city, as other public utilities do, was not a matter for the Attorney-General to remedy, and could not be affected in any manner by filing the suit, Gentry said. Several utilities in St. Louis pay the city a tax of 5 per cent of their gross revenues. Attorneys for the Laclede company declared in the hearing that its taxes totaled 9 per cent of its gross revenues.

"It was suggested that these legislative acts (1857 and the amendment in 1868) were unwise, in that the Laclede company was given perpetual existence," Gentry said. "But our courts have many times decided that the wisdom of an act and the necessity of an act, as well as the reasonableness of an act, are matters for the General Assembly to decide; and that neither the Attorney-General nor any court can pass on the wisdom, the necessity or the reasonableness of an act."

RICHARD E. BYRD.

PARIS, July 6.—To put it mildly, I have been astonished by the reception given to us by the French people. When Wanamaker, Bennett and I first conferred about our proposed trans-Atlantic flight, our principal reason for attempting it was the promotion of international good-fellowship and the progress of aviation.

Lindbergh made a remarkable flight and we really were delighted that he got to Paris ahead of us, because he did more for international amity than it would have been possible for us to do. Then Chamberlin's and Levine's flight did still more for international good-fellowship, so that I felt that as far as such relations were concerned our flight would be an anticlimax and that all we could hope to do would be to accomplish a little toward bringing about trans-Atlantic and long-distance flying.

Paris Wildly Enthusiastic.

Therefore, we were tremendously surprised when we reached Paris by train from Caen at 12:20 on the morning of July 2 to find a wildly enthusiastic greeting.

It was with great difficulty we got through the crowd to our automobiles. When we finally got into our automobiles we could not use the engines for fear of running over someone. The crowd was jammed against the cars and a dozen policemen hanging on to the sides of the automobiles could not keep them back.

The crowd itself pushed the automobiles along. I was extremely apprehensive for fear some persons would get mashed. This did happen, although the injuries caused were minor.

The glass in one of the cars was broken. At one time our car was nearly pushed over and I was greatly worried for fear it would fall on some of the people and injure them seriously.

I was greatly pleased by the expressions of the people and the ingenuous, sincere enthusiasm and joy which have been apparent from their countenances without the shouting and shoving.

I was seeing the heart of France in such a way as would have been impossible under ordinary circumstances and as I had never seen it before.

Hospitality at Ver-Sur-Mer.

Nor shall I as long as I live forget the reception we got at Ver-Sur-Mer. They took us into their homes, gave us dry clothes and warm food. The spirit with which they received us was remarkable for its good-fellowship and gentle hospitality. They were most eager and enthusiastic about helping us, but in being of service to us and showing us kindness they were thoughtful in a most intelligent war. They put us to bed right away and did not let anyone disturb us. Nor did they bother us with a lot of questions. They held back curiosity until we had some rest and food. I shall go back there some day and I am sure I shall be among friends whom I will be very glad to see again.

Since we have been in Paris we have been overwhelmed with kindness and attention, but what has astonished and pleased me beyond measure is that everyone seems to have taken the greatest interest in our flight.

They seem to have read every word that has been printed about it and they show a most intelligent interest, asking questions which show they have studi our problems. That to me demonstrates the great interest this country has in aviation.

President Doumergue of France; former Ambassador Jusserand, Marshal Foch and the Ministers of the Cabinet showed that they knew about our flight in great detail, but just as the butler who looks after me, and so did the taxi drivers. In fact, everyone we have met from every walk of life has shown the same sort of interest.

When we passed through the cheering crowds I did not take the matter personally. They were showing their great interest in the wonderful new science of aviation and they were cheering the American flag which we carried.

We were simply the standard-bearers of the moment. The French people were given a chance to show their real affection for America, which I believe has always been in them and it took something of a dramatic nature such as the trans-Atlantic flight to make it show itself.

Even the taxicab drivers who, the last time I was here, I thought had overcharged me, would not let me pay for riding this time. I am very glad indeed to have had this opportunity to see the real Frenchman and I believe that one of the happiest recollections of my life will be the experience I am now going through.

Continuation of the narratives of Commander Byrd's companions on his flight will be found on page 19.

Drowned Boy's Body Found.

The body of Fred A. Bleich, 18 years old, of 6250 Clemens avenue, who was drowned Sunday in the Meramec river, near Eureka, was recovered today, one mile downstream. He was drowned as he swam with his father, Clement H. Bleich; his brother, Harry, 16, and his sister, Frances, 18. His mother witnessed the tragedy from the bank of the river.

Poincare Decorates Byrd With Legion of Honor

"from beginning to end, when we were in the United States. They were wonderful sports in every way. When they started out we were everywhere a little apprehensive, but one cannot always tell about a trans-Atlantic flight.

"Chamberlin is one of the best men in the world and his was one of the greatest flights ever accomplished. I want to say this, gentlemen, I wish him the very best luck in future undertakings, and I know that he is going to do other great things."

Again referring to the flight of the America, Commander Byrd said:

"You are giving me more credit for this flight of ours than I deserve. Most of the credit, I want to assure you, and I know better than anyone else, goes to those three fine fellows who went with me.

Tribute to Colleagues.

"After the flights of Lindbergh and Chamberlin, we felt there was absolutely no glory left in the flight and that I personally was in a fix. But I had to come anyhow. Those fellows did not have to come at all. They came purely for the scientific end of it and for what they could do in the interest of aviation. I naturally take my hat off to them because they never once hesitated."

"I won't go into the many details of what these good fellows did. Noville handled the radio. Everybody in the world was saying, 'Kick him out, he can't do the radio.' But he did send out the messages, and we were in communication all the way over.

"It was a cheering thing, high up in the clouds and cold as hell, to get some messages from some warm place down below. It was pretty nice when we had been nearly 19 hours above the clouds with two rows of clouds beneath and in front of us, and I didn't know where we were and could only guess from the weather man as to how the wind was blowing, and I didn't know at all how to get our right bearings, to have Noville from 11,000 feet call down and ask one of the ships how it was down there.

Got Bearings from Ship.

"We got the answer, 'Foggy, rain,' but also got an answer that gave us our bearings. It was pretty good to get that bearing and to locate ourselves, and it proved that our guess was almost right. This was the first time in history that such a thing was done.

"I picked out Acosta. Not for his good looks. But because we considered him one of the best, if not the best, pilots in the country, and we knew he had a cool head."

"We knew he was the man for the job and he proved it, because he came through that fog where sometimes we could hardly see the tips of our plane's wings hour after hour. I tell you it is a strain for a man who is the pilot, I don't know how he kept the course.

"We took Balchen because in every sense he deserved to be on the trip. He was with us in the Arctic last year and has been with us ever since. We knew that in an emergency he was the fellow to count on.

Credited for Safe Landing.

"When we were making our landing in the dark, when we could not see water and when we thought we would never see water again, Balchen said that if we could see a lighthouse we could see enough to land. We fired a little flare that didn't amount to much and how he saw the water I do not know. He had his head out and knew how many feet over the water he was. I take my hat off to him. These fellows deserve a whole lot more than I do.

"When we started to prepare this flight many months ago—Mr. Wanamaker and myself—we did it, not only for the progress of aviation, but for the development of good fellowship. When we mentioned international amity everybody said, 'bunk,' but the newspapers of the United States didn't say 'bunk.' They published it and wrote editorials about it and people talked about it.

"It was said that it was impossible to help relations between the countries because Lindbergh got there first. It is true that it was impossible for us to help international relations as much as he did, because in the race, we crashed our plane and we could not get into it.

"We nearly killed Bennett and upset Noville and for some time before we could get ready we were not so keen to make the flight because we thought the international situation was wonderful and that we couldn't better it. We thought that Chamberlin and Lindbergh had furthered the progress of aviation to such a degree that we might have harmed the situation should we come down in the Atlantic.

"The weather held us back and I want to thank you here and want to thank the papers in the United States for the patience they showed with us while we apparently were deliberating and putting this flight off. If we have helped the progress of aviation in a small way and helped international fellowship, we owe it to the newspapers every bit, and I deeply appreciate it, because we were out to do what we could for these two things.

Plans Flight to England.

"As far as flying to England is concerned, I have been talking the last couple of days to Gibbons about it (H. A. Gibbons, personal representative of Rodman Wanamaker, sponsor of the flight) and I want to go and hope that we will be able to fix it so that we can go over there."

Chamberlin, in a brief speech, paid tribute to the part Levine played in the trans-Atlantic flight of the Columbia.

"Our flight was similar, to that of the others, but we didn't have it quite so bad," Chamberlin said. The credit is not all ours. Part of it goes to the designers of the planes and the engine and part of it is Levine's, not only for the money he put into it, but for the help he gave me. I was practically exhausted at one time and I said to Levine, 'Take it and see what you can do with it.' That was over Germany at 21,000 feet altitude.

"We had heard that the French people were not particularly enthusiastic about us, but we received here perhaps the most sincere reception that we got anywhere."

It is announced that the aviators will leave Paris Saturday for Dunkirk, where Byrd will be made a free citizen, receiving a gold medal and parchment, while the silver medal of the city will be conferred on his companions. Thence they will motor to Le Touquet, where a banquet will be held in their honor.

The crew of the America probably will visit England before returning to the United States, Commander Byrd indicated in addressing the members of the Anglo-American Press Association at a luncheon given in honor of the aviators today.

Plans for their return to the United States were still undecided, he said. It seems likely, however, that they will sail on the Leviathan next Tuesday.

FALL AND DOHENY BRIBERY INDICTMENTS DECLARED VALID

District of Columbia Supreme Court Rules That Charges in Elk Hills Lease Case Are Properly Drawn.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The Fall-Doheny bribery indictments, which grew out of the leasing of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve, were sustained today by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

Under the ruling Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, E. L. Doheny and E. L. Doheny Jr., must stand trial on the charge that the Doheny gave Fall a bribe of $100,000 to gain the oil lease for Doheny's company. Under a law enacted by the last Congress an appeal to the higher courts cannot be entertained until after the case has been heard in the lower courts.

The defense attacked the indictments on the contention that Fall, acting under a presidential order afterward found to be invalid, could not be guilty of the charge against him.

Justice Hitz ruled that the executive order of President Harding transferring control of naval oil reserves from the Navy Department to the interior department had the force of law until revoked or found invalid.

Fall and the elder Doheny already have been acquitted of a conspiracy charge in which the $100,000 transaction figured largely.

Justice Hitz said that while there can be no bribery of an official to do a particular thing, unless he has the function of acting in the premises, yet an official act need not be a lawful act to render the official liable, but need only be official in form, and done under color of his office.

District-Attorney Gordon said today that trial of the case probably would be after the charges against Harry F. Sinclair and Fall, based on the lease of the Teapot Dome reserve to Sinclair, had been disposed of. The Fall-Sinclair case is set for trial at the autumn term of court.

Standard Oil Files Brief in Land Case Decided by Fall.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The Standard Oil Co. in a brief filed today in District of Columbia Supreme Court, defended the action of Albert B. Fall, who while Secretary of the Interior dismissed proceedings to determine whether lands in Kern County, California, were mineral in character when they were turned over to the State of California. The oil company came into possession of some of the lands and two years ago Secretary Work ordered new hearings to determine if they were mineral bearing and therefore whether they had been legally relinquished by the Government. An injunction was obtained against Work.

In its brief today, the Standard said the judgment of Fall was a final adjudication on the merits, that the title had passed to the State of California and that the land was no longer part of the public domain.

would bring the British total near the 600,000 ton mark.

An American spokesman has indicated that his country would continue to make efforts to have the cruiser limitation figure set at well under 400,000 tons.

W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the British Admiralty, called a press conference at short notice yesterday and concluded it with the remark "if other people are going to build big ones we naturally cannot build small ones." This remark increased the tension.

Defending the British desire for a large number of small cruisers, the First Lord called attention to the peculiar position of the British Empire, which, he said, laid it open to a constant danger from cutting off of food supplies. He recalled that during the World War 70 cruisers were occupied in chasing the German raider Emden, 29 of them in pursuit at one time.

MARION, Ill., July 6.—Williamson County's first Birger gang-slaying case went to the jury here shortly before noon today. In course of lengthy instructions, Circuit Judge Hartwell told the jurors if they found the two defendants, Rado Millich and Eural Gowan, guilty of murdering their fellow Birgerite, Ward Jones, last October, they could fix punishment at death, life imprisonment or imprisonment for a term of not less than 14 years.

After spending more than an hour arranging nearly 100 instructions submitted by defense counsel and the State, Judge Hartwell began to read them to the jury at 10:45 o'clock. The jury received the case at 11:50. On the jury, composed chiefly of miners and farmers, are two preachers in small communities of the county.

The Court instructed the jurors to disregard the connections of Millich and Gowan with the Birger gang in considering their verdict.

State's Attorney Boswell, demanding the death penalty for the pair, declared last night in his closing plea to the jury that they must wipe the stain from the name of "Bloody Williamson" County. The defense, on the other hand, cautioned the jury against permitting itself to be influenced by other matters than the case before it.

For more than an hour last night the jurors followed every word that came from the prosecutor, his finger working up and down in scorn before the downcast 19-year-old Gowan and the bold, seasoned Millich. His remarks included a denunciation of "the infamous and marauding Charlie Birger" and gangsters in general and an appeal for a vindication of the good name of Williamson County.

Pleads Against Prejudice.

Sensing that before the trial was over the jurors might feel it their duty to make Gowan and Millich sops to public opinion and mete out sterner judgment than a gang killing justified, City Judge Cook of Herrin, counsel for Gowan, argued nearly three hours yesterday afternoon, pleading for a verdict based on the facts in the case and not on popular prejudice against gangsters who have killed and robbed in Williamson and adjacent counties for nearly two years.

Many of the "good people of Williamson County," in whose name Boswell was demanding stern and swift punishment for Millich and Gowan, were in the court room as the prosecutor shouted his denunciation of "an infamous band of marauders, murderers, thieves and rascals," his description of the Birger gang.

Boswell pointed at Gowan. He filled his voice with vast disdain. "This fondling boy," he continued, "just carrying out something he has learned from Mother Goose!"

Cook also had his moments of sarcasm when he talked about the State's witnesses, Harry Thomasson, Danny Brown and Clarence Rone.

"Thomasson, Rone and Brown are the only ones who have said anything that would awaken suspicion against Gowan," he argued.

"Not a Regular Gangster."

City Judge Clayton of Johnston City, making a plea for Millich, read Millich's prison record, his conviction in Franklin County for highway robbery.

"Millich," he told the jury, "is not one of those regular gangsters you read about in the newspapers. He didn't run over this county in armored trucks, with high-powered rifles. He was in prison at the time of the Price murder and other killings in this county. Don't forget that."

It was nearly 10 o'clock last night when Boswell had completed the last of the final arguments. The case, promising at first to consume only two or three days, rounds out a week today and overlaps the scheduled start of the Birger trial at Benton. Boswell, after his attack on Birger, may be called as a defense witness for the gang chieftain in the Benton trial. Birger was talking to Boswell in Marion about the time Adams was slain by the Thomasson brothers. However, Boswell may also be a State's witness.

Defendants and Prosecutor in Gang Murder Trial

young Mrs. Bernice Birger, wearing a pink dress and mothering the gangster's two little girls by former marriages. Within the rail sat Mrs. Newman, loyal to her husband but not looking too confident. Here and there other relatives of the accused were watching and being watched. The gang leader kissed his children and with a child on either knee posed for photographer in the court room.

Circuit Judge Miller called court to order and attorneys for the State and defense went into conference.

Without his machine guns, his pistols or the score of armed boys with whom he once surrounded himself, Birger looked meek before the rustic majesty of the law as exemplified by the Circuit Court of Franklin County. The Judge on the bench, the veniremen, grizzled and toil-battered most of them, had more sternness.

This trial has gathered all the local figures of picturesquesness and prominence. Chief among Birger's counsel is Robert Smith of Benton, who defended Mrs. Elsie Sweetin in the Hight-Sweetin murder trial. He is assisted by Charles A. Karch and Forrest Goodfellow of East St. Louis and Scerial Thompson of Harrisburg, Birger's home town.

State's Attorney Roy C. Martin, who brought about the indictment of Birger, the first on a serious charge ever obtained—heads the prosecution. Sheriff Pritchard, young American Legion man who took Birger single-handed in his own bailiwick, is acting as Sheriff in his first murder trial.

It seems a long way back to the time of the murder, last Dec. 12, when Joe Adams, 300-pound Mayor, and widely-known character, fell shot to death at the door ofh is home, with his wife looking on. The Birger gang was at the height of its power then. Many of those seated in the court room here today reading the tales of bloody deeds around corners from their homes, perhaps wondered if the law would ever come back in Southern Illinois.

Doesn't Speak to Newman.

Once surrounded by a gang of crime-struck boys, who did his bidding unquestioningly, Charles Birger is virtually alone in his fight for life. His former "buddy," Newman, although a co-defendant in this case, no longer makes common cause with him. Newman and Birger are sitting today scarcely 10 feet apart, but they do not speak and avoid each other's eyes. Newman has deserted Birger, turned State's evidence and is trying to pull himself from under the weight of gang guilt which he asserts he should not share.

Where is the rest of the Birger gang? Connie Ritter, Ernest Blue and Leslie Simpson, the real "bad boys" of the gang, are hiding to save their necks somewhere beyond the immediate reach of Franklin County justice.

"Alabama" Simmons, another star gunman, is in the Federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan. Ray Hyland, Harry Thomasson, Brown, Freddie Wooten, Clarence Rone and Rado Millich all have come to grief and are in Atlanta or at Chester or in jail. They tote guns no longer, but speak politely to State's Attorneys.

Newman has turned State's evidence, Harry Thomasson has done likewise and others may talk to save themselves. One by one the bullies of Shady Rest have fallen into the hands of the law, bank robbery, highway robbery, automobile thievery have caught them up.

Today, the disastrous epic of the Birger gang is taking a grimmer note. It is murder with which Birger, Newman and Hyland must deal.

Court adjourned at 11:45 a. m., until 1:30 p. m., to give the State's attorneys time to study the defense motion to quash the indictments. The defense bases its motion to quash on the contention that the special session of the grand jury at which the indictments were voted was called a day before the formal court summoning of the grand jurors was made. State's Attorney Martin, after a brief study of the motion said he did not think it offered any serious threat on the State's case.

LIQUOR RUNNER SAYS GRAFT CONSUMED WHISKY PROFITS

Floyd Haverstick, Charged With Having Stolen Auto, Has Only $800 Left.

Floyd Haverstick, 28-year-old whisky runner who says he has only $800 in the bank after four years of highly profitable bootlegging, today was charged in a State warrant issued in East St. Louis with possession of a stolen automobile.

He was arrested yesterday after it had been learned he had traded a stolen coupe as part payment for a new automobile. He told East St. Louis police he had bought the coupe under the misapprehension that its title was clear, and then branched out into an unsolicited account of his activities as a whisky runner.

Running alcohol from East St. Louis into Indiana, where the prospect of a penitentiary sentence has made liquor manufacturing unpopular. Haverstick said he had averaged $300 to $400 a week profit, for four years. He declared, however, that "squaring" with peace officers and prosecutors had sapped his profits. In one case, he said, he had had to give a prosecutor two automobiles to "fix" a liquor charge.

Haverstick was arrested in St. Louis several months ago charged with a roadside holdup near Danville, Ill., but the case was dropped.

WIFE SUES TO DIVORCE DR. WILLIAM ENGELBACH

Alleging Indignities, She Asks Court for Alimony and Custody of Daughter.

Mrs. Fama L. Engelbach today sued to divorce Dr. William Engelbach of 4720 Westminster place, alleging general indignities. They were married March 27, 1905, and, she stated, separated last month.

Mrs. Engelbach alleged, in asking for alimony, that her husband, who has offices in the University Club building, has been earning $50,000 to $90,000 a year and owns the home on Westminster place and personal property worth $100,000. She said he had been paying her $1000 a month and $100 a month for the suppor of their 19-year-old daughter, but had stopped payment and ordered them from the house. She asked for custody of the daughter.

In a separate suit she asked for an injunction, against Dr. Engelbach and the National Bank of Commerce, to prevent disposition of about $56,000 in listed securities and others not listed, before settlement of her claims.

ENGLISH PRAYER BOOK REVISION APPROVED

Church Assembly at London Votes in Favor of Changes of Suggestions Made by Bishops

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 6.—The proposed revision of the Book of Common Prayer of the Church of England was approved today by the Church Assembly, in session here. The vote was 517 in favor of the revision and 133 against it.

The House of Bishops presented its suggestions for revision of the Book of Common Prayer Feb. 7 at the convocation of the two great synods of the Church of England, Canterbury and York.

The proposals, which called for an alternative prayer book, presented certain changes in the forms of various services and sacraments. The principal changes concerned the dropping of the word obey from the marriage services, questions of reservations of the sacrament, the use of vestments in the communion service, softening of the commination service and authorizing prayers for the dead in the burial services.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, who moved that the proposed revision be finally approved at the opening of the Church Assembly yesterday, said that if it were adopted by the assembly and the two houses of Parliament it would be laid before two convocations for synodical sanction before being submitted for royal assent.

MADISON HOTEL OWNER SHOT BY MASKED MAN IN HOLDUP

John Kovolovich in Serious Condition—Four Customers Robbed of $25 in Saloon.

John Kovolovich, 33 years old, proprietor of a hotel and saloon at Fourth and State streets, Madison, was shot and seriously wounded shortly after midnight yesterday by a masked young robber who held up Kovolovich and four friends, in his saloon. According to one of those held up, Nick Oleck, the robber stood three feet from Kovolovich and fired point blank when Kovolovich said he had no money. The bullet penetrated the groin and lodged in the pelvis. Kovolovich is at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Granite City.

After the shooting the robber, who is about 20 years old, commanded the other four to throw the money on a table. He gathered about $25, searched one who, he suspected, had held something out, and then fled in an automobile. The license number of the machine was obtained by Oleck.

WORK BEGINS ON DELMAR CROSSING AFTER 16 YEARS

Mayor Miller Turns Earth for First Pier of the Wabash Viaduct With Spade.

Work began today on the Delmar boulevard viaduct over the Wabash railroad, with appropriate ceremonies. Mayor Miller turned the first earth at 9:30 a. m., with a shining nickel-plated spade, digging in for a pier to stand at the southwest corner for the crossing. President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service took his turn, and then handed the spade to City Bridge Engineer L. R. Bowen, who said he meant to tie a ribbon about it and display it in his office.

"Actually we're digging this hole for the first pier of the viaduct," President Kinsey remarked, following the Mayor in the speech-making, "but figuratively it's to bury the hatchet between the city and the Wabash."

A loading platform south of the street was bedecked with flags. Other signs that the grade crossing really is going to be done away with, were a contractor's office shack on the north side and a length of narrow-gauge track on the south, and swarms of busy workmen. Excavations for two more piers were started this morning, and the city officials, including all five members of the Board of Public Service, departed to inspect the Des Peres sewer project.

Details of Contract.

The contractor now working on the crossing is the Dunham Construction Co. Its work, for which it will receive $88,253, is erection of a reinforced concrete span over the railroad tracks, 80 feet long and 100 feet wide, corresponding to the width of the entire viaduct, and erection of concrete retaining walls 50 each way from this span on both sides of Delmar, also northwar don both sides of the railroa dtracks.

Bids will be received about the en dof this month for filling the approaches with earth. These run both ways in Delmar, one to a point west of Rosedale avenue and one to a point west of Hamilton avenue, a total of about three city blocks, also there are to be branch approaches into Hodiamont, Rosedale and De Giverville avenues. Later, bids will be taken for the pavement and other details.

Traffic Not Affected Now.

For the time being, Delmar will remain open to traffic over the grade crossing an the wooden River des Perese bridge, as it has been for several years, but in about two months it will become necessary to close the thoroughfare in the vicinity of the work and detour the heavy vehicular traffic. The contractor will erect the southern third of the span first and then street car tracks will be laid on this and the wooden street car crossing to the north abandoned. This wil lobviate detouring Delmar and City Limits cars. It is expected to require a year to finish the viaduct.

Estimated cost of the project, including consequential damages to property, is placed at $538,000, of which the railroad will pay 60 per cent and the city, using bond issue funds, 40 per cent. Discussion and litigation over this grade crossing elimination have lasted 16 years.

Liberia Pays War Debt to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Liberia today became the second nation to pay its entire war debt to the United States, by turning over to the Treasury a check for $35,610. The principal of the debt was $26,000, the rest interest. Cuba is the other nation which has wiped its war debt slate clean.

Brentwood's New Scheme For Gouging Motorists

Cash Deposit of $16 With Bondsman Required, Which Is Invariably Split Among Village Officials.

Brentwood, celebrated for automobile "speed traps," has reached into its bag of tricks for a new one to harass the unfortunate motorist.

Its officials, who have wrought some strange devices in village finance, believe the latest one is air-tight. If a driver is arrested there now, it's a certainty that the town, and its police judge, fire chief, city attorney and speed cop will get something out of him. And, triumphs the City Attorney, it's quite legal.

The new device is that the arrested driver pays his bondsman $16, and then, if he fails to show up in court, the bondsman pleads guilty for him—and the town and everybody get their slice of the $16. Brentwood did not announce this new scheme. Brentwood's roadhouses and speed cops cluster around the notorious "boulevard stop" at Manchester and North and South roads like leeches, and Brentwood is not likely to announce any design that might frighten the quarry away.

Victim Makes Inquiry.

This new wrinkle came out when a man who had been arrested for speeding—after he had passed through Brentwood and into Maplewood, he said—dropped into the courthouse at Clayton and remarked that he had given up $16 in the Brentwood city hall and wished someone would find out what the $16 was for, since the Brentwood officials hadn't informed him. Reporters called Jesse Harnage, Brentwood City Attorney, and under questioning he outlined the new system.

City Attorney Harnage explained that Brentwood had had an awful lot of trouble with motorists who signed their own bonds and didn't come into court for trial, and then the town—and its fee-paid officials—was just out of luck. So, along in the spring, it devised the scheme of the $16 bond fee.

If the motorist doesn't happen to know a bondsman, a helpful official will obtain one for him. Chances are it will be Fire Chief McCormack (a meter reader in private life) who lives handily next door to the one-story City Hall. Then the $16 is extracted, as painlessly as may be.

Bondsman Makes the Plea.

If the driver defaults, the bondsman takes the unique privilege of pleading guilty for him, and divides up the $16—$4.90 to the arresting officer, $2.20 to the Police Judge, who is Mayor Withrow; $2.20 to the City Attorney, $3 to the bondsman. Oh, yes, there's $3.70 left over. That goes to the village treasury. If a driver ever were acquitted, he'd get $13 back, and the bondsman alone would get to keep his split.

William Skow, convicted of a felony and fined $100 for shooting a university student after following a speeding automobile in which the youth was riding into St. Louis, still holds his place as a Deputy Marshal in Brentwood, contrary to law. Harnage said he knew of no movement to depose Skow unless a suit were brought to force him out.

SACCO-VANZETTI ADVISORY COMMITTEE HEARS COUNSEL

Gov. Fuller's Aids Also May Summon Judge Thayer, Who Presided at Trial.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 6.—Gov. Fuller's advisory committee on the Sacco-Vanzetti case held its second meeting today and devoted the morning to a conference with Assistant District Attorney Dudley P. Ranney and William G. Thompson, chief of counsel for the condemned men.

It was indicated that Judge Webster Thayer, who sentenced Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti to death for murder after refusing several motions for a new trial, would also be heard by the committee today.

President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, president Samuel W. Stratton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Judge Robert Grant form the committee, which is expected to deliver its findings privately to the Governor to assist him in deciding whether the men are to be executed.

Army Balloon Makes Trial Flight

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT CARMEL, Ill., July 6.—Lieuts. O. A. Anderson, G. L. Davison and J. W. Benson of Scott Field, Belleville, landed near here shortly before noon today with a 35,000 cubic feet capacity army balloon in a trial flight. They returned this afternoon.

TWO WOMEN SHOT TO DEATH; GANG FEUD SUSPECTED

Former St. Paul, Minn., Hotel Operator and Labor Leader's Daughter Murdered in Their Home.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 6.—Two women were found shot to death in their home here early today and police turned to theories of jealousy or possibly gang warfare in seeking a solution of the crime.

The partly clad body of Mrs. Teddy Dubois was found beside a bed, while nearby lay the fully clothed body of Miss Anne Grenville. Both had been shot through the head.

Police detained for questioning Charles M. Hutchinson, who, with a taxicab driver discovered the bodies when they went to the house early today. Hutchinson said he knew nothing that could aid in solving the crime.

Mrs. Dubois, who was about 27 years old, formerly operated a small downtown hotel and Miss Grenville, nearly 30, was the daughter of a labor organizer, George Grenville, now believed to be in Harvey, Ill.

While police alluded to "gang warfare" as a possible element in the crime, they offered nothing tangible in support of this theory and admitted they had nothing definite on which to hang a motive.

In searching the residence, police found a gallon of alcohol and a partly filled quart bottle. A small quantity of near beer also was found.

BOY STABBED WITH SPARKLER AT PLAY DIES OF INJURIES

James Bunten, 10, Victim of Scuffle With Playmate; Wire Pierces Brain.

James Bunten, 10-year-old son of John Bunten of Oak and Backert avenues, Overland Park, died at Overland Hospital at 10.15 p. m. yesterday three hours after he had been stabbed by another boy with the wire handle of a sparkler.

The boys were playing in the Bunten backyard with dead sparklers which had been used in the Fourth of July celebration.

In a scuffle James was stabbed behind the right ear, the wire piercing the brain.

TAFT, HAPPY ON BENCH, NOT ADAPTED TO PRESIDENCY TASKS

familiarity. He has got to be reserved and ca[illegible].

"The responsibilities of the presidency are nerve-wracking. If one is constituted like an ordinary man, life in the presidency, while not requiring the same intellectual labor that attaches to the Chief Justiceship, enormously consumes nervous energy, and is more tiring than work on the bench.

"The difference between the exactions of the tw ooffices is that in work on the bench you have the assistance of your colleagues, who share in the responsibility of the conclusions, the benefit of oral arguments by counsel, and of briefs submitted on both sides of the controversy.

Handicap of Presidency.

"And you have control of your time for careful study. In the presidency you often have to make a decision ot a question on the instant or overnight, or in so short a time that the risk of mistake is great, and then you have not the benefit of argument on both sides, often no argument on either, and you cannot always consult your cabinet.

"Of course the presidency is the office that attracts in the sense of power one is supposed to exercise, and there are those who greatly enjoy its constant exercise. But even in the strongest it takes much out of a man, and the strain is felt long after retirement to private life.

"The character of work on the bench, its steadiness, and the regularity with which you can order your life, if you do not overdo the social part, makes it consistent with long life, hard as the work is."

Can Enjoy Real Vacation.

The Chief Justice added that he now can enjoy a "real vacation," something he could not do while President. He puts aside entirely the duties of the court during the summer recess, and at his place on Murray Cove, Canada, has a genuine respite from work, and makes the most of it. But it is a quiet vacation, for he has been warned by his physician that he must not overtax his heart.

"I gather all the books I can before starting on my vaaction," he explained, "and spend most of my time on my porch overlooking the St. Lawrence River, which is nearly 13 miles across. Free from study and concentration I rest until late in the vacation, when I receive briefs filed during the recess to enable me to catch up a little before starting upon real work of the court when I get back."

He continued that his doctor's advice had led him to give up the golf of his presidential days, to abandon his practice of writing his court opinions in longhand, and to have the electric elevator installed in his home to obviate the necessity of stair climbing.

"When I had warning about my heart, he said, "I concluded to have an elevator installed. The arrangement puts my office on the same floor with the rooms occupied by my secretary and my law clerk.

"I used to write my opinions out in longhand, but since my illness I find it too confining. Therefore, I dictate and correct and revamp. Writing makes an exact man, as Bacon says; makes one more concise, more economical of space. But it is not as convenient. I work over the opinion so much that, as to conciseness, it makes no difference whether I write or dictate; I change and revise so much.

How Taft Works.

"I have a law clerk who goes over the records and the briefs. He makes a statement for me of what is in each, and then with that statement before me I read the briefs and make such references to the records as seem necessary. But I always read the briefs so as to know what the claim on both sides is, and then I read the opinions of the courts below so I become familiar with the case, and know what the issues are. When these petitions for review come before us we know what the cases are about, and whether they present questions we should pass upon.

"I walk every day for about half an hour. While I used to walk a great deal, I feel that I am getting enough exercise."

Asked what he selected for his vacation reading and for his moments of quiet recreation during his busy days, he replied unhesitatingly that autobiography was his favorite literature.

"I do not care particularly about novels, except by certain authors," he said, and then as an afterthought: "I do not mind detective stories, if I can get a good one, and have read many of them."

Now that he had accustomed himself to the regimen of diet and relaxation prescribed by his physician, the Chief Justice expects to benefit greatly by this summer's sojourn in Canada. But he would be less happy in his vacation respite if he did not know that after it was over he could return to carry on the work of that unparalleled public career which began 46 years ago when he became an obscure county official in Ohio.

FOUR KILLED WHEN PLANE FALLS 500 FEET INTO LAKE

Seattle Pilot and Three Passengers Victims of Unexplained Collapse of Machine While Banking.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 6.—The cause of a tragic dive by an airplane in which four men died, after plunging into Lake Washington from an altitude of 500 feet, was sought here today as Coroner's deputies opened an investigation into the tragedy.

The dead are:

L. (Ophie) Johnston, pilot of the plane, which belonged to the Puget Sound Airway Co.; Roy Wolin, Seattle insurance agent; Fred Stanclift hotel owner of this city, and John I. Bock, employe of a Los Angeles brokerage company.

The accident occurred late yesterday soon after the plane had taken off for a short trip over the city. Witnesses said the machine was making a vertical bank when it was seen to twist into a tailspin. The lack of proper altitude apparently gave Johnston no opportunity to bring it out of a spin. With a great splash which shot the lake water 40 feet into the air, it struck the surface and sank.

No clew as to what caused the plane to lose its grip on the air was found in the preliminary investigation. The plane was raised shortly after the arrival of police, but it gave no evidenec of what had gone wrong. All of the bodies except Bock's were recovered.

Johnston has been flying for more than four years. The other three men were said to have been friends of his.

DIVORCED IN FOURTH ATTEMPT

RENO, Nev., July 6.—After having tried to obtain a divorce in Paris, China and Switzerland, and being balked by international difficulties, Mrs. Mildred Lillian Orton has obtained her decree from Carl Orton, until recently Swedish consul general at Manila. They were married in the Philippines in 1919.

Mrs. Orton told the court that whenever she sought affection from her husband he insisted on quoting Swedish history and poetry. Mrs. Orton charged failure to provide and incompatibility. She is a sister of E. Clinton Earle, engineer of dirigible Los Angeles.

She understands when her dentist explains that the one important thing a dentifrice should do is to

CLEAN

The woman of today is amazingly sensible about beauty. She takes no nostrums. She relies on scientific diet for a graceful figure; on simple cleansing with pure soap for a lovely skin. She buys her dentifrice to keep her teeth clean—not to cure some mouth disease she hasn't got.

She understands when her dentist tells her that the one function of a dentifrice is to clean.

Realizing this, Colgate & Co. have designed Ribbon Dental Cream with the express purpose of doing what leading dental authorities agree a dentifrice must do—clean.

Ribbon Dental Cream cleans teeth better by the following method: As you brush, it breaks into a sparkling, bubbling foam; in this foam is calcium carbonate, a finely ground powder which loosens clinging food particles, and polishes all tooth surfaces. Next, this foam, in a detergent, washing wave, sweeps over teeth, tongue, gums, washing all surfaces, removing the very causes of tooth decay.

Colgate's attempts to do no more than clean, because dentists say that a dentifrice should do no more. Rely on your dentist to cure—rely on Colgate's to clean.

KILLING FOLLOWS ALTERCATION OVER AN OLD GRUDGE

Jim Moroni, 42, Collinsville, Succumbs as Result of Being Hit With Bat—Farmhand Arrested.

Robert Fransler, 42-year-old farmhand, is held in Madison County jail at Edwardsville for the killing yesterday of Jim Moroni, 45, of Collinsville, following an altercation arising from a grudge of long standing.

Moroni died early today at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, of a fractured skull, suffered when he was struck with a baseball bat in Fransler's home at Troy. Moroni died without making a statement.

In a written confession to Madison County authorities Fransler admitted killing Moroni. He advanced a self-defense plea, asserting that when Moroni came to his house yesterday afternoon he remarked: "I came to get you."

Fransler said he struck Moroni after being threatened with a pistol. He told State's Attorney Bohm that the existing enmity between himself and Moroni was due to domestic troubles. He declined to discuss the affray with reporters.

Fransler was shot and seriously wounded in Troy, in December, 1925. The cause of the shooting was never explained.

COOLIDGE RETURNS TO HIS DESK WITH RODEO MEMORIES

Tumult and Cries of Round Up Visit Fade Out Into Program of Affairs of State.

By the Associated Press.

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 6.—The tumult of one of the West's greatest rodeo shows still reminding him of the pleasures which belong to this country of his summer residence, President Coolidge turned to more quiet things today, as he resumed the routine of his vacation in the Black Hills.

Before the end of the week Mr. Coolidge will have had the opportunity of learning the latest developments in Mexico. Ambassador Sheffield is expected late tonight as a guest at the summer White House.

The Ambassador returned recently from Mexico City to attend the Yale commencement. The President has been looking forward to Sheffield's visit and will be able to discuss first-hand with him details of the controversy between American and Mexican governments over oil and land questions which caused considerable debate in Congress last winter. There was no word from the summer White House as to whether the Ambassador expects to return to Mexico after his visit here.

Witnesses Big Roundup.

While the Government once more engaged Mr. Coolidge's attention, he carried in the background a memory of his experience at the Belle Fourche roundup yesterday which brought him one of his most lively and unusual days. He saw a reproduction of western life and pleasure as it was about a decade ago, before good roads, automobiles and other systems of communication had pushed the frontier beyond these foothills of the Rockies.

One of his happiest moments seemed to come when his favorite entry, Dakota Clyde Jones, who has charge of the C[illegible] State Park Rangers, rode to victory on a busting broncho and later captured the wild horse race.

This race, coming at the end of a day already packed with thrills and excitement, brought a few moments of intense anxiety. The horses, never before ridden or halter-broken, and unaccustomed to anything except wide stretches of prairie, tore madly at their keepers' ropes when they were led onto the track directly in front of the President's box, and two or three broke loose and crashed into the wooden railing across the way which fenced of the running track.

President Stays in Rear.

The cowboy attendants, who were trying to hold the horses quiet long enough to get saddles on backs which never before had felt any restraint, had difficulty in keeping them in tow. When the horses finally were released, saddles on their backs, they tore down the track, snorting, leaping and squirming to get the unaccustomed loads off their backs.

Some of the riders, however, subdued their charges and sped round the track, and when they came into the home stretch, blowing up great clouds of dust around them, President Coolidge's rider, Dakota Clyde, was in the lead.

WILL FIGHT BARES 40-YEAR ROMANCE OF LATE C. R. OTIS

Son of Founder of Elevator Company, 91, Secretly Wed Second Cousin, 52, 6 Months Before Death.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The bizarre, 40-year romance in the life of the late Charles R. Otis of Yonkers, wealthy son of the founder of the Otis Elevator Co., which had its sequel when, at 91, he married Miss Margaret Otis Nesbit, 52 years old, his second cousin, has been disclosed in the will contest involving the $515,000 estate. He had taken Margaret Otis Nesbit to rear when she was 12 years old.

The dispute over the Otis fortune became public when executors of Otis' will, drawn before his marriage to Miss Nesbit, filed a petition at White Plains, asking for proof of the unusual wedding between the dying old man and the woman who had repaid his earlier kindness by nursing him during the last nine years of his life. If he marriage proves valid, the widow will receive $183,500 under the law.

Married on Sickbed.

Verification of the marriage ceremony was obtained in Charleston, S. C., where, according to official records, Otis, an invalid, was propped up in his bed in the Francis Marion Hotel on Nov. 18 last, while Miss Nehbit held his hand and Magistrate Paul T. Palmer united them in marriage.

To make certain of the legality of the marriage, the aged man had retained Attorney George E. Grimball of Charleston, who called in Stephen D. Palmer, brother of the magistrate, and Miss Flora Matty, cousin of the bride, as witnesses.

At the same time, from Charleston came word from Sheriff Limehouse of Dorchester County, S. C., to the effect that he had investigated the death of Otis on May 24, six months after the wedding, but had found nothing to warrant any suspicion of foul play.

Sheriff Limehouse declined to state who had asked for the inquiry and representatives of the five nephews, whose bequests will be affected if the widow substantiates her claim, denied questioning the cause of death.

The death certificate showed Otis was stricken suddenly on May 24, in the honeymoon cottage he had rented for his bride at Summerville, S. C., and had died before his physician, Dr. Elias Tupper, had reached the home. Dr. Tupper, leader of his profession in Summerville, attributed death to a valvular disease of the heart. The body was taken to Yonkers by the widow and buried there.

Efforts to find Mrs. Otis were futile yesterday, her attorneys declining to give out any information, but from other sources the story of the forty-year affection between the man and his cousin was sketched out.

Margaret Otis Nesbit was a girl

ATTEMPT TO DYNAMITE SPOKANE NEWSPAPERS FAILS

Fuse of Home-Made Bomb Burns Out Before Blaze Reaches Cap.

By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., July 6.—An attempt to blow up the business offices of the Spokesman-Review and the Chronicle, with a dynamite bomb failed, when the fuse of the infernal machine burned to within 2½ inches of the percussion cap and then went out.

The bomb, which was placed in front of a building that houses both papers, was found by two employes of the Review. The staff of the Review, a morning newspaper, had left the building, and the Chronicle force had not arrived.

The bomb was home-made, a 15-pound coffee can being filled with 60 per cent dynamite.

No motive for the attempt was advanced by the newspapers, although both of them have campaigned extensively against vice and liquor rings in this city.

of 12 when Otis, then a millionaire, took an interest in her. Her father, a carpenter, had died, leaving the child and her mother facing poverty on a small plantation near Baton Rouge, La. Otis, then a pillar of the First Presbyterian Church of Yonkers, brought the child North and placed her in the care of Mrs. Otis. After a few months Margaret was sent to Northfield Seminary at Northfield, Mass., where her education began in earnest.

After her graduation, Miss Nesbit decided to become an artist, and Otis financed her course in a New York art school. She found art work distasteful, it appeared, for Otis next sent her through Columbia Teachers' College.

Life as a teacher also failed to attract Miss Nesbit, it seems, for Otis' next beneficence was financing of a course of study in a nurses' training school in Philadelphia, after which the young woman earned her own living.

Nine years ago Miss Nesbit learned her benefactor was ill and his wife in even more precarious health. The Otises, eighty-two and seventy-eight years old, respectively, were living in the Northfield Hotel, at East Northfield, Mass, near the seminary which Miss Nesbit had attended as a child. Dropping her practice as a nurse in Spartanburg, S. C., Miss Nesbit hurried to East Northfield and used her professional knowledge to make the aged pair comfortable.

The first Mrs. Otis died in February, 1923, after which Miss Nesbit continued to care for Otis, who, no longer able to walk, was carried from his bed to a wheel chair every day.

Telegram Discloses Marriage.

Last October Miss Nesbit accompanied Otis to Charleston, S. C., to spend the winter. The next heard from the pair was a telegram received by relatives on May 25 which stated that "My husband, Mr. Otis, is dead." It was the first New York relatives had heard of the marriage.

Rather than divide the estate with the widow, Henry M. Baird, James E. Howes and the Westchester Trust Co., all of Yonkers, have filed the will Otis drew up several years before the death of his first wife. This document leaves the bulk of the estate to the first wife and, through her, to five nephews, Charles E., Arthur H., Norton P., James R., and Sidney Otis.

"It would not be correct to say we are contesting the claim of the widow," said Baird, spokesman for the other executives and the heirs yesterday. "We are simply asking that this woman prove she was legally married to Mr. Otis. Meanwhile we are going ahead with settlement of the estate."

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles.

ISO=VIS
(INDIANA) SERVICE
MOTOR OIL

Motorists everywhere in the Middle West are running up records with Iso=Vis. Thousands of them are writing in surprise and appreciation to the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to tell the good news of Iso=Vis performance.

One motorist calls Iso=Vis a "peace of mind" motor oil. It is a peaceful feeling to know that the motor is perfectly protected by an oil which maintains a practically constant viscosity—that will stay on the job from start to finish—preventing wear and tear in the engine—preventing trouble—making every mile of motoring smooth! Iso=Vis—the constant viscosity motor oil—gives you that certain knowledge.

Iso=Vis is made in different grades—to meet the requirements of every type of engine. Use the grade recommended for your car. Under normal operating conditions the oil level should be checked every 100 miles. Keep the crankcase at least three-quarters full. If this precaution is taken, a complete draining and flushing of the motor oil once each 1000 miles is all that is necessary.

With new cars equipped with effective oil filtering devices, draining once each 2000 miles or more is sufficient!

Iso=Vis costs more per quart but motorists have found that it costs less per mile. It lasts longer and wears better! Taxi companies have found that by using Iso=Vis they are able to reduce repair bills and to cut the cost of lubrication.

You'll appreciate the efficiency of Iso=Vis (30c per quart). Try it once — and motoring will hold new pleasures. Iso=Vis "F" for Fords.

Halitosis easy to prevent

Nothing retards you in business, courtship and society like a real case of Halitosis (unpleasant breath). It is a continual offense—and needless, too.

Since you, yourself, can never tell when you have Halitosis, the only way to be sure of not offending is to rinse the mouth with Listerine every day—especially before any close personal contact.

Had Halitosis

80 streetcar conductors, meeting the public at close range every day of the year, said that about one person out of three offends by halitosis. Who should know better than they?

Face to face evidence

So effective, it destroys even the powerful onion odor, Listerine makes short work of milder, but no less unpleasant odors arising in the mouth. It's a good thing to keep a bottle handy in home and office.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—A complaint charging unfair price maintenance methods against Three-In-One Oil Co. of Rahway, N. J., has been dismissed by the Federal Trade Commission.

OFFICER OF ENGINEERS 'UNION FOUND GUILTY OF LAXITY

Secretary-Treasurer Convicted of Charges Following Hearing Before Brotherhood's Convention.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., July 6.—C. E. Lindquist, secretary-treasurer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, was found guilty of "laxity, carelessness and indifference" in the conduct of the engineers' financial undertakings by a vote today of the triennial convention in session here. The convention will decide on the penalty later.

Similar charges are pending against W. B. P[illegible]ter, president; L .G. Griffing, first vice-president, and Harry P. Daugherty. second vice-president. Griffing is to have a hearing Friday.

Lindquist was found guilty after a hearing this morning. The decision was by a record vote of the delegates.

Hearing of the charges follows action taken several days ago by which the offices of the accused brotherhood leaders were abolished and the grand chief engineer designated the supreme head of the organization.

The charges are based on allegations that the executive officers have improperly handled the extensive business enterprises of the brotherhood embracing banks, investment houses and similar concerns in various parts of the United States.

Stamps Missing From Byrd Mail.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 6.—Maurice Bokanowski, Minister of Public Works, has ordered a thorough investigation by the Postoffice Department to learn what became of the stamps on the majority of the letters carried by the trans-Atlantic plane America. The Minister seeks to establish whether the stamps were washed off in the immersion of the mail pouch when the America landed in the sea off Ver-Sur-Mer or whether they were subsequently removed as souvenirs before delivery. Thus far only a few of those who received letters have found the stamps intact.

Keeps you free from perspiration odor even in hottest weather

[This hygienic toilet soap purifies pores]

A FAST exciting game . . . packed grandstands . . . a warm sweltering day. Perspiration . . . worse yet . . . odor!

Yet there's no excuse for offending. We can't help perspiring—it's natural. But now we can avoid the unpleasant odor of perspiration—so easily!

Simply change to Lifebuoy—a toilet soap so refreshing that millions bathe with it every day. Its purifying lather gives lasting freedom from perspiration odor — keeps the body fresh — even in hottest weather.

Healthy complexions, too
A healthy skin is a clear, fresh, glowing skin. And just as Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather purifies body pores, so does it purify face pores, keeping complexions soft, smooth and healthy.

Better still, this same purifying lather helps protect against 27 germ diseases which hands may carry home. It removes germs, as well as dirt.

Note its clean, hygienic scent
Lifebuoy is so different from other toilet and bath soaps that even its scent is different. Not a perfume, but a clean, hygienic scent which tells you Lifebuoy gives greater protection.

Even before you've finished your first cake, you'll learn to love this cleanest of all soap scents, which quickly evaporates after rinsing.

Without its antiseptic, Lifebuoy would still be a wonderful toilet soap — but you wouldn't get the added protection.

No added cost for extra safety
Lifebuoy assures greater health protection and freedom from perspiration odor—yet costs no more, probably less, than the toilet soap you now use. Lifebuoy is orange-red, a big generous cake. Get some today wherever soap is sold.

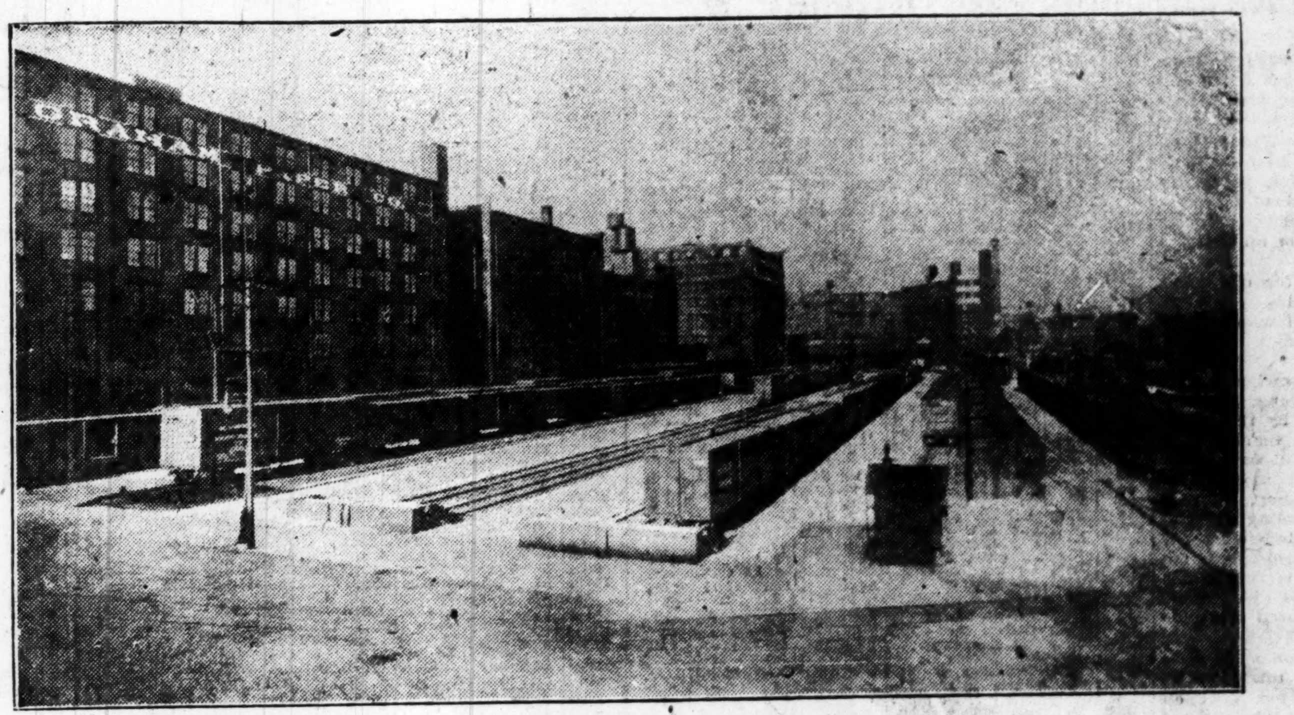
TERMINAL IMPROVEMENTS

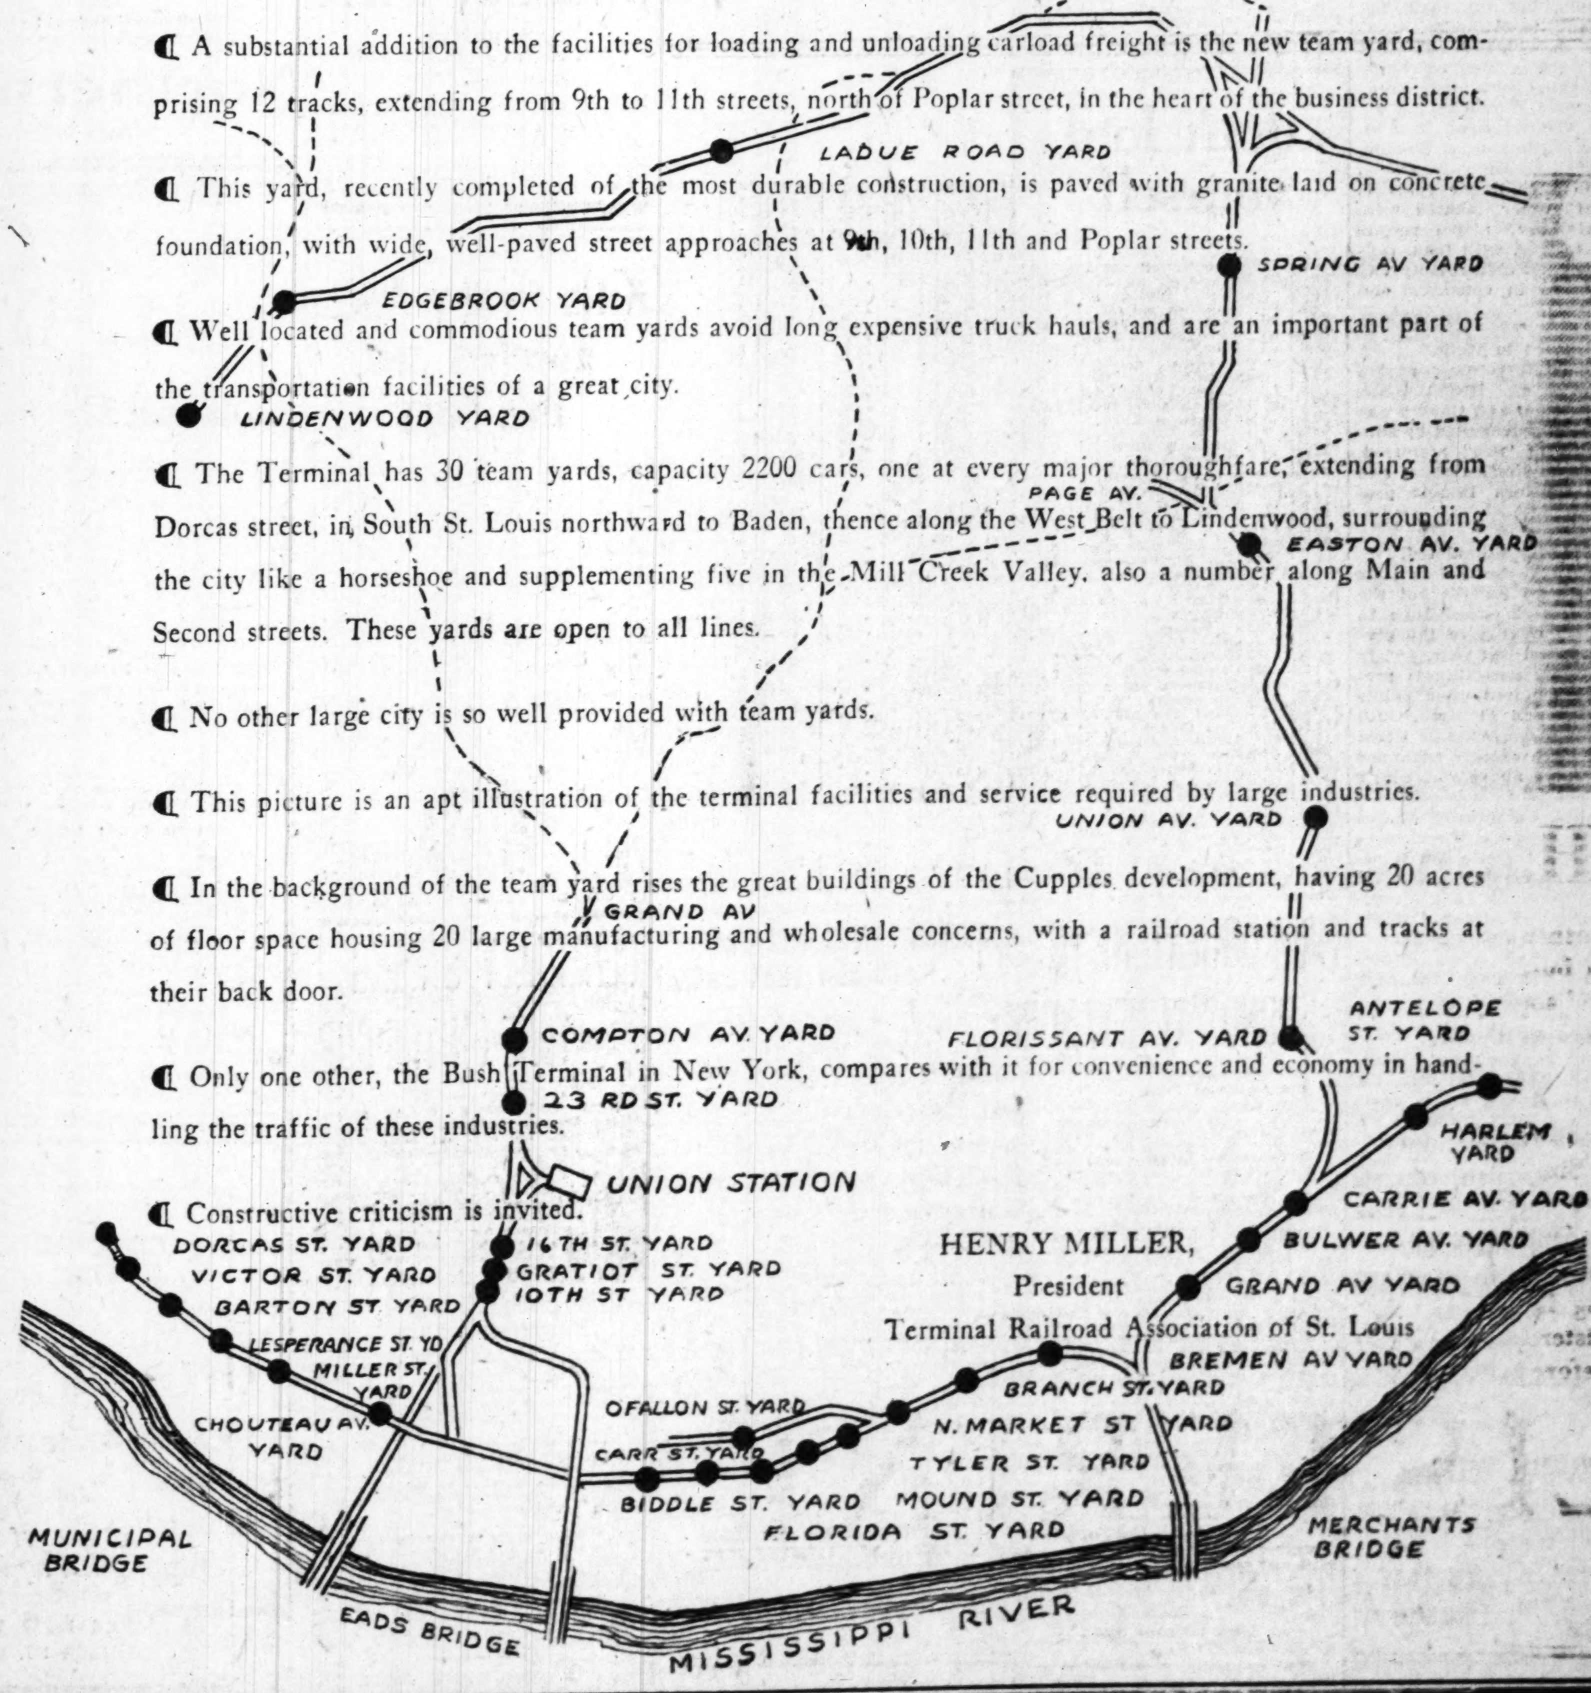


TENTH STREET YARD

This Is One of a Series of Statements Showing

WHAT THE TERMINAL IS DOING FOR ST. LOUIS.

Map Graphically Shows Location of Team Yards in St. Louis



℄ A substantial addition to the facilities for loading and unloading carload freight is the new team yard, comprising 12 tracks, extending from 9th to 11th streets, north of Poplar street, in the heart of the business district.

℄ This yard, recently completed of the most durable construction, is paved with granite laid on concrete foundation, with wide, well-paved street approaches at 9th, 10th, 11th and Poplar streets.

℄ Well located and commodious team yards avoid long expensive truck hauls, and are an important part of the transportation facilities of a great city.

℄ The Terminal has 30 team yards, capacity 2200 cars, one at every major thoroughfare, extending from Dorcas street, in South St. Louis northward to Baden, thence along the West Belt to Lindenwood, surrounding the city like a horseshoe and supplementing five in the Mill Creek Valley, also a number along Main and Second streets. These yards are open to all lines.

℄ No other large city is so well provided with team yards.

℄ This picture is an apt illustration of the terminal facilities and service required by large industries.

℄ Only one other, the Bush Terminal in New York, compares with it for convenience and economy in handling the traffic of these industries.

℄ Constructive criticism is invited.

HENRY MILLER,
President
Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis

Total stock sales, 1,721,000 shares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Easing credit conditions and the increased investment demand created by record breaking dividend and interest disbursements acted as a strong stimulant in the stock market today, offsetting the scaling down of the commodity price index and a continuance of mixed industrial conditions. Speculative interests who had been opposing the rise on the belief that the business outlook was too clouded to justify a sustained advance, beat a precipitate retreat as purchasing orders began to roll in from all sections of the country.

The renewal rate for call loans was unchanged at 4½ per cent. Call money was as low as 4 per cent.

Closing is Showing.

The closing was strong; bear operators were baffled by the readiness with which the market took their offerings and still surged upward. Stocks which have been nourishing a large short interest, went up rapidly including some of the sugars. Baldwin touched 237¾ a new peak to the accompaniment of rumors that the preferred which also went up four, would be retired. Total sales approximated 1,700,000 shares.

Net operating income of class 1 railroads for May totaled $85,663,990, about 4.70 per cent on the property investment, against $88,129,798, or 4.96 per cent in May 1926. Preliminary estimates of U. S. Steel unfilled tonnage placed the decrease expected in Saturday's report at about 150,000 tons, a considerably smaller contraction than had been expected.

Pools disregarded these factors, however, and convinced that there was no prospect for an immediate contraction in the abundant supply of funds, bid up their favorites with little difficulty, especially those in which the floating supply is closely controlled. Some exceptional gains were made, commercial solvents B moving up 10, Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis and Laclede Gas, 9, Sterling Products 6½, Houston Oil 5½, South Porto Rica Sugar (old) 5, and several other shares were quoted materially above yesterday's final figures, with food, railway equipment, Public Utility and Tobacco shares in consistent demand.

Advances in Rails.

Advances in investment paying railroads such as Nickel Plate, Baltimore & Ohio and Chesapeake & Ohio were supplemented by substantial gains in "Soo" preferred, Gulf, Mobile & Northwestern and Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred.

• • •

Pool Activity Stimulated.

Railroad traffic for the first six months broke all records but the total for the week ended June 25 was again below that of the corresponding period last year.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred quickly moved up 2 points to a new high and Atchison, Gulf, Mobile & Northern, Atlantic Coast line and Wabash quickly advanced a point or more above yesterday's final quotations.

Electrical manufacturing shares swept forward under the leadership of General Electric and Westinghouse Manufacturing, both at new highs. Colorado Fuel, American Radiator and Union Carbide also reached new high ground.

Coal shares were heavy, Burns Bros. A and Pittsburg Coal each selling down a point.

Exchange Regular.

Foreign exchanges ranged irregularly lower. Italian lir breaking 8½ points to around 5.42½ cents and Spanish pesetas dropping 5½ to just above 17 cents. Demand sterling and French francs held fairly steady around $4.85 5-16 and 3.91⅝ cents, respectively.

DAILY AVERAGE CRUDE OIL PRODUCTION SHOWS INCREASE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 24,800 barrels for the week ended July 2, totaling 2,535,550 barrels, says the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production east of California was 1,908,150 barrels, an increase of 32,500 barrels.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Electric Light and Power Public Utility financing during the half year amounted to $792,700,000, against $725,800,000 for the first half of 1926, Electrical World reports. It has cost the industry considerably less to carry on its financing during the current year when yields have averaged from 5.19 per cent to a high mark of 5.69 per cent. Energy sales continue good and electric construction is keeping pace with business growth.

The Boston & Maine has ordered 204 locomotive feed water heaters from Worthington Pump and Machinery involving about $200,000. Similar business in large volume with two other roads is understood to be pending.

FIRM UNDERTONE TO BONDS AT NEW YORK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Easing tendencies in the money market, combined with confidence arising out of the record-breaking volume of payments to investors this month, gave the domestic bond market a firm undertone today, although foreign issues displayed considerable irregularity. Slight improvement in the demand for high grade mortgages continued to be reflected in, gradually advancing prices.

Italian issues inclined to heaviness, although offerings were not large, but German Government obligations were firm. French and Belgium bonds were relatively inactive. The new Budapest 6s broke 4 points to 87, later rallying to 88.

Further moderate buying of Chesapeake Corporation 5s brought a fractional gain, while fairly heavy offerings of Union Pacific 4½s and Southern Pacific Oregon Line 4½s pere readily absorbed around the issue prices. Popularity of convertible bonds was again reflected by a point gain in Delaware & Hudson 5s.

Goodyear Tire 5s, which suffered a severe sinking spell on the dissolution of the offering syndicate, rallied nearly 4 points but later lost all of gain. Chicago Railway 5s featured the utility group with a gain of nearly 2 points.

Treasury 4¼'s were outstanding in the firm Federal Government list.

COTTON PRICES IRREGULAR ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 2 to 7 points under liquidation which seemed to be coupled with local and Southern selling on a favorable view of weather conditions and relatively easy Liverpool cables.

Prices worked off to 16.97c for October and 17.24 for January or about 5 to 7 points below yesterday's closing figures, but there was a considerable demand for October at about the 17-cent level, and the market steadied up a few points from the lowest before the end of the first hour. Part of the early selling was probably based on expectations of a favorable weekly report from the Weather Bureau, but the trade appeared to be looking for a bullish report on boll weevil emergence and the early orders were pretty well divided. Private cables reported a small market in Liverpool ,but that Manchester advices were more encouraging.

The weekly report of the Weather Bureau was considered favorable, but the Government report on the boll weevil situation evidently made a bullish impression on sentiment and the market firmed up after its publication. At midday active months were selling about four to 10 points net higher with October ruling around 17.14c and January 17.38c.

Futures closed steady; 6 to 9 higher. July, $16.89; October, $17.10 to $17.12; December, $17.32 to $17.33; January, $1737 to $1738; March, $17.55. Spot quiet; middling, $1715.

GENERALLY STRONG TONE ON THE CURB

NEW YORK, July 6.—A generally strong tone prevailed on the curb market all through the day, but there were, as usual, some exceptions to upward movements, among them being several which dropped a point to 2¾, a new minimum level. A feature of the trading was the neglect of many high-priced specialties which had demanded attention by making new high records for some time past. Sevtops, but these movements were without special importance.

Oil stocks as a group ignored the unfavorable trade developments which made the oil industrial situation seem worse and those issues as a group were in increased demand, some making wide advances. Tropical oils were features in these movements. Carib moved up over a point to 23, and Creole, which was a strong feature yesterday, made a fractional advance. Prairie Pipe Line reacted after gaining 2 points in the early trading.

Motors stocks came into prominence in the industrial group. Ford Motor of Canada ranged from 485 to 492, but most interest was attached to the bullish demonstration that carried Stutz up from 13 to 15. Goodyear Tire was heavy, yielding nearly two points. Best and Company was down, establishing a new low record on a fractional decline. General Baking A moved up nearly a point and Deere and Company advanced 5 points. Celanese new stock moved up over a point and the preferred issue rose about 3 points.

Blackstone Valley Gas declined 4 points, while Penn Water Power made a new high at 53¼.

Chicago Cotton Maket.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Cotton futures closed as follows: July, 16.62@65c; October, 17.01c; December, 17.23c; January, 17.20c; March, 17.41c.

Comparative Freight Loading.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Revenue freight loading for the first 26 weeks of this year totaled 25,326,726 cars, constituting a record, the American Railway Association announced in placing loadings for the week of June 25 at 1,018,206 cars. This figure was an increase of 1855 cars over the preceding week, but a decline of 37,156 cars from the same week in 1926.

Miscellaneous freight totaled 393,078 cars for the week, a gain of 1558 cars over the same week a year ago. Less than carload freight totaled 257,544, increase of 270 cars, and coal amounted to 156,694, a decrease of 23,358.

Grain and grain products filled 46,482 cars, a decrease of 2214; livestock, 27,081, an increase of 457; forest products 66,642, a decline of 7474; ore 65,896, a decline of 5299, and coke 10,389 a drop of 1096.

London Wool Auction.

LONDON, July 6.—At the wool sales today 11,974 bales were offered, of which 10,000 were sold. There was a good selection and keen competition from all quarters; the opening advance was well maintained.

Steel Industry Situation.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Production of pig iron was curtailed sharply in June and chiefly by steel companies, Iron Age says. The output for the month was 3,089,651 gross tons, or 102,988 tons per day, and compares with 3,390,940 tons, or 109,385 tons a day in May. Of the reduction of 6397 tons in the daily average, merchant furnaces accounted for only 21 tons. As the steel trade enters upon the second half of the year, there are indications of some improvement in business and a broader effort of producers to hold at least the present margin between prices and costs.

Both of the Iron Age composite prices remain unchanged from last week, pig iron at $18.71 a ton and finished steel at 2.367 cents a pound.

GRAIN PRICES LOWER ON FAVORABLE WEATHER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Buying based largely on world supply and demand conditions brought about a late upturn in wheat prices today, despite favorable weather Southwest, west and northwest. No material pressure of new crop winter wheat was reported in the Southwest, farmers in that section said to be storing rather than selling. The world available supply of wheat decrease 8,797,000 bus. for the week.

Wheat closed irregular ⅛c net lower to ¼c advance; corn 1c to 1½c off; oats ⅛ to ½c down and provisions showing to 10c decline.

Wheat traders focused attention today largely on black rust news, and in this connection particular notice was taken of reports that if the weather northwest continued cool there was little to fear. There was comment that the spring wheat this season appeared to be of unusually rust-resisting quality, as the straw was harder than as a rule in the case of most years.

Relatively cheerful reports today about crop prospects were of considerable effect in the corn market. Dispatches at hand said that from Des Moines to Mason City, Ia., corn is only about 10 days late, has an average height of 30 inches and the plants all look good and healthy. With favorable weather, according to the dispatches, there should be an average crop in the section named.

There were 100 July notices issued but they were stopped and had no depressing effect. Prices at midday were two points higher to one net lower.

The refined sugar market was quiet with all refiners listing at 6.20 for fine granulated. Buyers in most cases are limiting new business, expecting some adjustment in values, as refined prices are considered too high, compared with the present value of raws.

PREPARING HIM

By ANGELO PATRI

Angelo Patri is just the principal of a New York grade school, but the late Charles W. Eliot, president of Harvard, said Patri was doing more for common-school education than any other person in America. His school, a model in every respect, is a mecca for teachers from all parts of the country.

"NOW let mother look right down your throat and see if she can see what you had for breakfast. Yes. I can see. Milk and cereal and two prunes.

"Good baby. Now let mother look at your teeth. Count them. My, what a lot. I'll touch each one with my little stick. Lovely white teeth you have.

"Im going to look into each ear. First this one. That's a good ear. Then into this ear. Another good ear. Two good ears.

"Shall I peek into your eyes? I see myself in them.

"Now I'll count your fingers and your toes to see if you have them all yet. All there. A perfectly fine baby. Into the tub you go."

Why do that? To practice the child in allowing folk to look at him and help him if it becomes necessary. A child who has been accustomed from early infancy to such handling and examination will not make a fuss when the dentist and nurse and doctor have to come to his aid.

Mother begins the work and as the child becomes accustomed to her, other members of the family go over his body with inquiring eyes and fingers. Listen to his heart beat and tell him what it says. Count his breath with ear to his chest and tell him how many pleasant things came whispering to your ears. Handle the child until he has no fear.

In doing this, one should never make the youngster conscious of any need for the play. It is all play for him. No mention of his pulse or temperature or respiration, or the condition of his organs, should there be any difficulty, should be made. He is never to be conscious of his body, in that way, never to be fearful for his health or safety. A child who is afraid to sneeze, who asks to have his temperature taken because he wet his feet, is in quite as bad a place as the child who is afraid of a nurse or a doctor.

Few children grow up without needing help of some sort. Many children have had to go unaided because the sight or the mention of a doctor or nurse sent them into spasms of fear. As early as possible make the children acquainted with those who are to care for them in time of need. Have the children know their doctor and like him, know their nurse if possible, and love her; know their dentist and have enough confidence in him to at least open their mouths for him.

The worst possible thing one can do for children is to frighten them with the threat of the doctor or the dentist or the policeman or the teacher. Sooner or later the child must come in close contact with each of these useful people and if fear takes possession of them, they must suffer.

Teach the children early that such people are their very good friends. Accustom them to meeting them, and speaking to them. A picture book of the right sort would be a great help. But remember these people. The set of experience they represent are to come to your children. Prepare for them.

Milton Work's Bridge Pointers

THE pointer for today is: A DENIAL MAY BE AS NECESSARY ON THE SECOND ROUND AS ON THE FIRST.

Yesterday a new series of Bridge tests was started; the question being, what bid should Dealer make on the second round.

Diamonds—A-8-2.
Clubs—9-7-6-5.

The bidding was: South (Dealer) one Spade, West pass, North two Hearts, East pass; South's second declaration was the problem.

My answer slip reads:

No. 1. Two No Trumps. No. 2. Pass. No. 3. Two Spades. No. 4. Two No Trumps.

My reasons in support of these declarations are:

No. 1. North having denied Spades, it would be equally foolish to rebid that suit but it would be equally foolish, without normal support, to permit North to play Hearts. Two No Trumps, while dagerous on account of the lack of Minor strength, is more apt to produce game than a rebid of Spades or a pass of Hearts.

No. 2. Having normal support (three cards) for partner's Hearts, it would be foolish to make any other declaration.

No. 3. With less than normal support for partner's Hearts, a denial should be made; the choice lying between two No Trumps and two Spades. If the hand contained but five Spades, No Trump would be preferable; but with six Spades, a Spade rebid is sounder.

No. 4. No Trump is concededly bold, but apt to produce better results than permitting the partner to play Hearts without normal support.

A Summer Carnival

By Wanda Barton.

CHURCH guilds and clubs interested in the home raising of funds to carry on good work are always looking for new ideas. The carnival has not been utilized for this purpose very generally, but it is rather new and attractive.

Tents may be borrowed or hired. A long table or two short ones with benches or wooden folding chairs are safest to use in case of a sudden rain so that no damage is done. Several push carts with gay awnings over them add to the decorative scheme. The carts may have baskets of all kinds, or fruit, the latest novels, magazines and newspapers. A "hot dog" stand always does a good business, and hot waffles, if they are made by an expert, are sure of a thriving trade.

A fortune-teller or palmist is a necessity; there is sometimes work enough for two if they are clever. The "freak" tent, with a good "barker" outside and some well-planned and thought out "monstrosities" on exhibition, should do a thriving business. A show tent, with short, snappy entertainments at intervals can entertain the crowd. A sightseeing tent with guides for each party is a lot of fun if the "sights" are made funny and the guides are snappy in their descriptions.

Of course, there are regular features to go with all such entertainments, such as home-made cakes and other foods. Hand-made kitchen linens and aprons, baby things, and frequently dainty organdy frocks and sunbonnets, garden baskets, aprons, hats and kneeling pads for the home gardener, and the usual so-called fancy things are generally found at such affairs.

A new idea for the grab-bag is the lady with a thousand pockets. The lady resembles an old-fashioned pincushion doll. She has over a hoopskirt a full denim dress with innumerable pockets and in each one a five-cent grab.

Fox Will Lead Furs.

NEW YORK.—The fur sales are approaching and from present indications fox will be pre-eminent. Already the furriers declare these scarfs will be dyed to match the costume with which they are worn. Whether this is a hope or a true prediction remains to be seen, since a beige or a pink fox hardly would go with more than one costume. Some of the new coats have the collar made of a fox scarf which is attached to the coat and which yet fastens about the neck as if it were separate.

Large Hats Trimmed Now.

NEW YORK.—Trimming has invaded the large hat which for a time has been so essentially plain. Soft little bunches of feathers find their way into the folds of satin ribbon about the crown, or a rose or a little nosegay may be fastened on the underside of the brim.

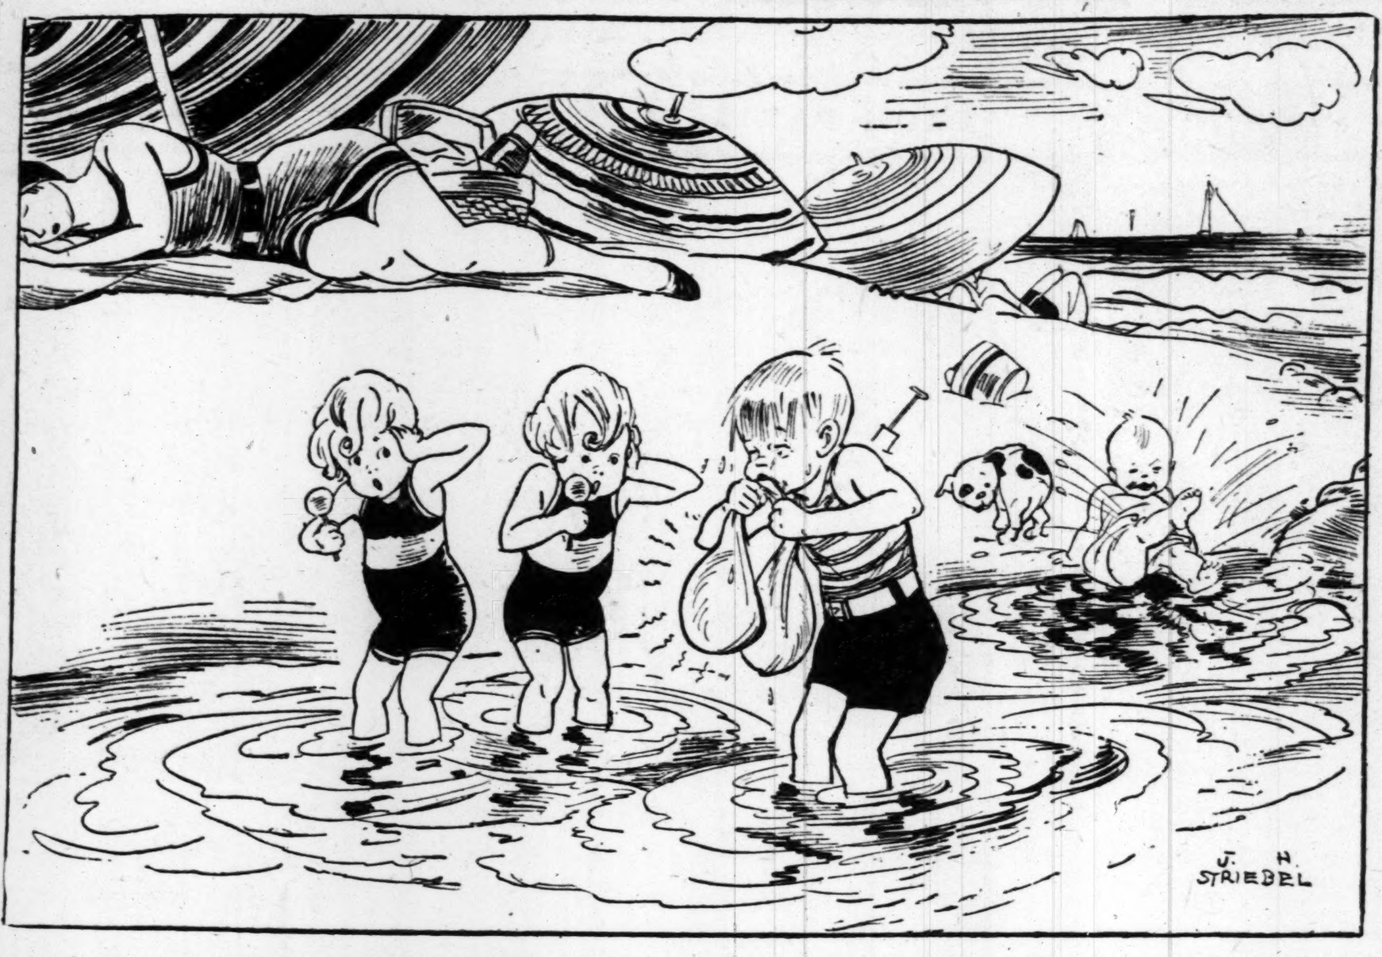
ALL IN A BABY'S LIFE

High Explosives

By J. H. Striebel



Buddy wasn't any too pleased when his parents decided to make the Fourth a safe and sane one, and went off to the beach for the week-end. Of course, swimming is fun, but firecrackers are noisy!

Under the circumstances, Buddy uses his resourcefulness and decides to improvise his own noise-makers, and if his lungs can out-last the water-wings, there is going to be a beautiful bang in a minute or two. The twins have implicit faith in the power of Buddy's wind, and are preparing for the explosion, but Baby, completely unmindful of the oncoming disaster, is content to wiggle his toes in the waves.

WHEN WOMEN FORGET HONOR OF HUSBANDS

Winifred Black Tells an Amazing Tale of a Wife Who Could Not Understand a Man's Despair.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

"OF course, I know I did wrong," said the Woman with the Roving Eye, "but everybody does wrong, and I think it's terrible Sidney won't forgive me. I was a good wife to him, year in and year out, for three years—then I made a mistake.

"I'll admit it was a mistake, but I don't think I was entirely to blame. He was so busy over in town, and left me perched on the side of a hill in that little cottage, with nothing to do but play the piano and practice on the guitar, and play bridge with the other idle women in the neighborhood.

"I met the other man and he took me to dinner—Sidney had telephoned that he wouldn't be able to get home—and we had too much to drink. I don't know where he got it, but he had it. I just went crazy, that's all. Three or four days later I got home and Sidney was horrid, and then, when I cried and begged him to forgive me, he said he'd think it over.

"He thought it over, and took me back, but he couldn't seem to forget it. He didn't say any more about it, but I could tell he was thinking of it. He got so morose and melancholy he's sit for hours with his head in his hands, and he'd look at me with that pitiful, forgiving sort of look, as if I were a murderer or something. I just couldn't stand it, and I met another man, and I went away with him for a few days, and now Sidney won't even look at me.

"He says he can't stand it to take me back.

"He says he couldn't respect himself if he did. He says he wouldn't be a man at all if he could condone such performances. I promised him and promised. I've told him I'd be good all the rest of my life, and he just won't listen to me, that's all.

"He says he'd go crazy if I came back to live with him again. He says that the only thing he can do is to forget all about me. Isn't it terrible?

"And I love him as much as I ever did, and he loves me too. He says he doesn't, but I know he does, and my heart bleeds and bleeds. I can't eat and I can't sleep—don't you think he's cruel and unforgiving?

"I think it's just his pride and his masculine vanity that makes him act that way.

"What can I do? What ought I to do, to make him see things in the right light? I'd forgive him if he had treated me that way. Oh, yes, I would! Why can't he forgive me?"

And the worst of it was, the poor thing was perfectly sincere about it.

What's the use of arguing with a woman like that?

I hope her husband will keep to his resolution and put the poor, ill-balanced, unhappy creature out of his life and keep her out.

For the sane cannot live with the insane without terrible debts to pay.

How do you feel about it?

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Little Miss Curiosity

The curious, you'll often find,
To danger are exceeding blind.
—Johnny Chuck.

NO two children ever are alike. That is, they are never just alike. They may look alike and act alike most of the time, but there is a difference which sooner or later will appear. It was so in the Chuck family. There were five little Chucks and each little Chuck was different from each other little Chuck. Four were just about of a size, but the fifth was a wee bit smaller than the others. Now this littlest one had more curiosity than her brothers and sisters. The mother, who you may know was Polly Chuck, used to warn her that that curiosity certainly would get her into trouble some day. But this little Chuck was like a lot of little people—she thought Mother was foolishly nervous. You know, young people are very apt to think that. In fact, she thought she knew more than Mother did. It wasn't that she wasn't smart. She was smart. She was a very smart little Chuck. But, like some boys and girls I know, she was too smart for her own good. You knew that happens sometimes. The result was that this little Chuck had more narrow escapes than her brothers and sisters together.

It happened that one morning this little Chuck decided that it was all nonsense to stay close to home all the time. She wanted to see a little of the Great World. Yes, sir, she wanted to see a little of the Great World. What is more, she intended to see it.

"I know enough now," said she, "to take care of myself. This staying at home all the time doesn't get me anywhere. I've got to start out some time and I may as well start one time as another. I don't believe the Great World is half so dangerous a place as Mother makes it out to be."

So, watching her chance, this little Chuck slipped away when nobody was looking. Now it was a very fortunate thing for this silly young Chuck, who thought she knew it all that she headed in the direction in which she did head. You see, to her one direction was as good as another and she might have headed straight for the Old Pasture, where Reddy and Mrs. Fox and Old Man Coyote and Mrs. Coyote live. Instead, she headed for Farmer Brown's cornfield.

Instead she headed for Farmer Brown's cornfield

I guess some good fairy must have been watching over that little Chuck, or she wasn't seen by any of her enemies. In fact, she wasn't seen by anybody. She would go a little way and then flatten herself down, as only a litle Chuck can, and rest. Then she would go on a little way. So it was that at last she came to the edge of Farmer Brown's cornfield. There she discovered a great two-legged creature. She had never seen anything like it before. She was afraid, of course. Any one would be afraid of a great giant. But at the same time she was very, very curious. Now, of course, the wise thing for her to have done would have been to run away as fast as her short legs would take her. She did start to run away; then curiosity became too much for her. She turned to look back. That huge creature was standing perfectly still. She began to doubt if it were anything alive after all. She watched and watched and still it didn't move. Then, she took two or three steps towards it.

"I can run any time," said Little Miss Curiosity, and she took a few steps nearer.

THE WOMAN OF IT

—By—
Marguerite Mooers Marshall

YOU KNOW HOW IT IS!

MEN think it's an awful job to close up the house for the summer—
They lock the doors,
If they are wise, they put screws in the windows,
They turn off the water and the electricity—
Oh, they work HARD!
But this is what the woman does:
She packs the trunks—
Her own, the children's things, her husband's,
There never yet was a man who could pack even a week-end bag
If a woman were in the offing to do it for him.
When he tries it, he forgets his comb, or his clean collars, of his pajamas, or something equally vital,
And woman, knowing his helplessness, takes pity on him next time.
So hers the job, when the family goes away for the summer,
Of stowing sweaters, shoes, hats, printed chiffon dresses, rainy-day games, fishing tackle.
And all the other impediments of a family en route.
When the trunks are packed, she must keep after the express company Until it calls for them.
Then, too, when the family goes away for the summer,
The woman has to notify the newsdealer to stop delivering papers—
At that, his boy will litter the front porch with them for two or three days, Before the order "takes."
She must tell the milkman not to leave any more milk,
And the iceman that she'll be "not at home" after June 18,
And the spring-water man to call for his "empties" before the date,
Or leave them in the house till fall.
She must write to the publishers of her favorite magazines
To give them her summer address,
And she must fill out a blank for her postman.
She must instruct the telephone company
That her phone is to be temporarily discontinued,
And request the police to keep an eye on the closed premises.
She must try to arrange a lien on her Pearl of the Kitchen
For next September.
She must make sure that no provender for moths
Is left in closets or drawers—
Once one pair of mittens, in one top drawer,
Saved a moth metropolis from starvation,
And its descendants have haunted the house ever since!
She must route the laundry so that everybody may take away
All of his—or her—clean clothes.
She must send checks for all bills.
And hers the last, frantic morning duties—
Reminding Daughter to take her toothbrush,
Finding room in the hand luggage, at the last moment,
For Son's boxing gloves,
Washing the breakfast dishes, making beds, putting a dust-cloth over the dining room table, pulling down window shades, packing the alarm clock and the knife sharpener and the spoons—
All the things that have to be left out till the last minute.
Oh, well, we've probably forgotten something—
But doesn't every woman who closes up the house and gets the family off for the summer?
Men think it's an awful job—
Women know it!
But cheer up, it won't have to be done again
Until next June!

REBUTTAL.

(To M. T. O'M., who is Miles ahead of O'Meara.)

The gold I found with Folly, I have never called it worthless.
'Tis the dulling of its splendor—of its splendor—I regret.
And if I laugh at Folly, then my laughter must be mirthless.
For the song that Folly taught me is all remembered, yet.

The dream that Folly pictured is still the fairest vision
My eyes may ever dwell upon, in this world or the next.
I'm cherishing its fragments in a life of dull precision,
Though to piece the dream together has the heart of me perplexed.

I'm not so steeped in Wisdom, and I'm not so very old,
I don't know if I'd classify with "nicely-brought-up guys."
The burthen of my song was this: "If ignorance is really bliss,
I reach the height of Folly, being wise."

BEN WARREN.

WE HOPE THEY DO

When, early in June, it was decided to admit women to the faculty of Oxford University, the undergraduate publication "viewed with alarm" a sex war. But now that Oxford dons have limited the number of women students in the proportion of one woman to five men, it's the women who ought to start on the warpath.

Since George Lynch of Larchmont and New York has asked $100,000 for the alienation of the affections of Mrs. Mabel Lynch, there is one wife in the world unable to complain that her husband does not value her.

HER WEIGHTIEST TROUBLE

Fat is a buffer against life's troubles, according to the speaker at a fat men's festival in Milan. But just try to put that over with a woman who is trying to reduce!

FICKLE HEART

Not long ago I got a card
Extending greetings cheery,
I liked the boy who sent it lots
And when I saw "my dearie"
Incorporated in the verse,
It really thrilled me so . . .
Until he called next time to take
My sister to a show!

AD-VERSE CRITICISM

When God made man, He made him of clay,
With little care, in a single day.
A woman then He sought to create,
With much more care, to give man a mate.
"I'll form her well," the Maker thought;
Costly materials He spared naught.
Made eyes of diamonds, teeth of pearls,
Shaped ruby lips, spun silken curls;
No cost was spared, just as He said—
He even made an ivory head.

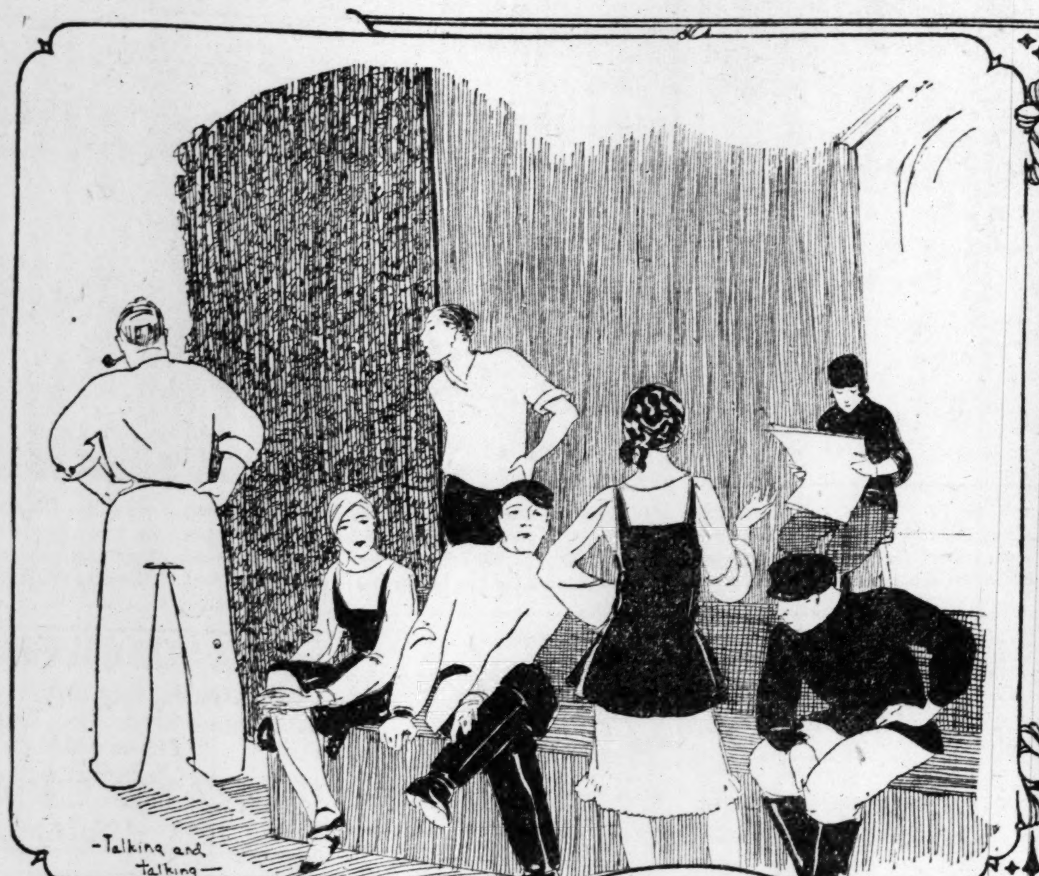
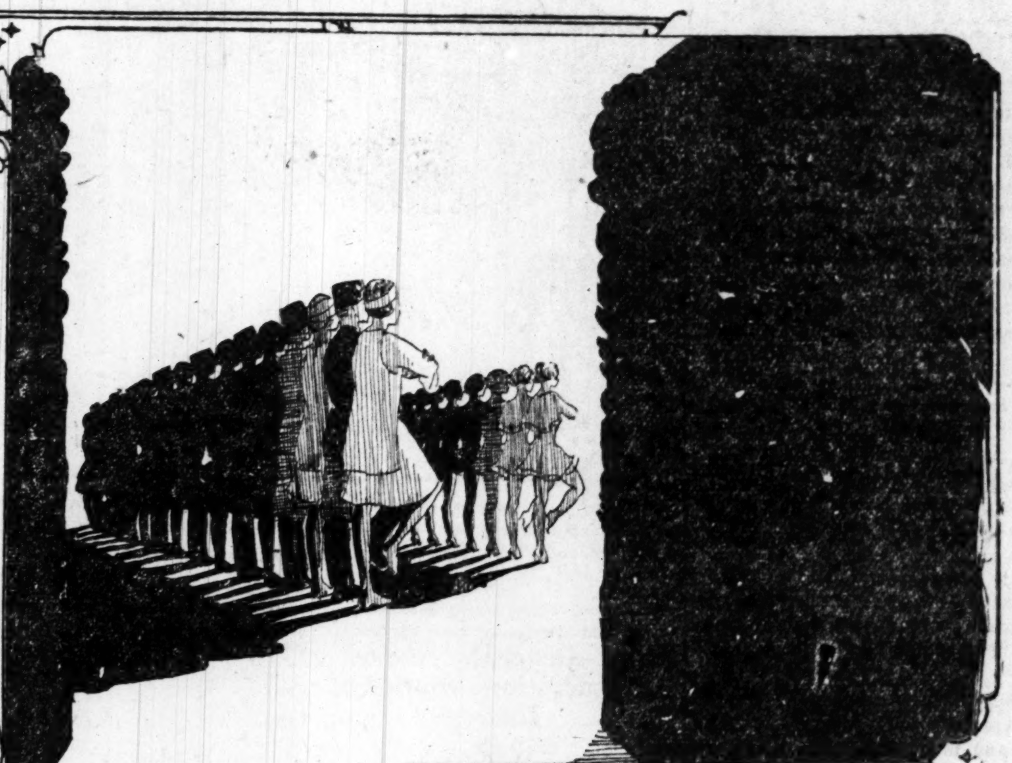
BEHIND THE SCENES AT THE ST. LOUIS MUNICIPAL OPERA



—Talking and talking—



—dropping with a sigh on the nearest horizontal surface

—Cultivating their acquaintance—

Some of the Things That Are Seen and Heard Back Stage Before and During an Open-Air Performance in Forest Park.

By ELOISE FRAZIER.

Time—7:40 p. m.

Place—Back stage at the Municipal Opera.

Weather forecast—Clear, but disgustingly warm.

Manager's note—Free seats are already filled.

Leaping from the introduction into the very midst of things, we find ourselves surrounded by girls, who, well—lack nothing but clothing.

On the walls are hanging costumes which, bye-and-bye, will be on these girls who are, in the meantime, busy slapping on grease paint, singing more or less harmoniously, and borrowing things. Correct. This is the dressing room of the decorative half of the Municipal Opera chorus.

"Say, who's got 'n extra pair of opera lengths? Left mine on the line. Gotta have a pair; I'm on the front row."

For the uninitiated — "Opera lengths" are very long stockings.

"Clara! Hook me!" Clara is the wardrobe mistress.

"Yuh know what he tole me? He says he's only spent seven cents on a girl since last February! 'S Fact."

The half hour is called by an unseen person and there is an immediate increase in activity without any perceptible decrease in volubility.

"Where's Clara? Hook me, Clara." This is said simultaneously by six different girls in six different parts of the room. Confusion results.

"Who said there's a reporter here? Yeah? Where?———Say Helen, tell that old maid story." She didn't.

"Here's Gwen. It must be late." Enter Gwen.

"You know I didn't even have time to take a bath." No response. "Silly to, anyway. These costumes fade all over you and you only have to do it all over again."

Miraculously the chorus is ready by the time the five minute bell rings and everybody rushes over the bridge, on to the stage to assume their position for the opening number.

The overture had begun and the majority of the people have decided to arrive, but they won't really get under way until the chorus is actually singing. It does and they do, so that for 20 minutes after the lights are out the flashlights of the ushers flicker here and there, a procedure which, viewed from the stage, reminds one of fireflies.

The chorus troops off after the encore and time out is occupied by breathing deeply and perspiring freely. A few stagger to hunt for a vagrant breeze. No success.

On again for the Bear number, then the Tartar number, then some other number, each having at least two or three encores until finally, the end of Act One and the lights are turned on the audience who respond by standing up and stretching themselves and indulging in a few well chosen bottles of pop.

On the stage, when the lights are dimmed, there occurs a great rumbling of scenery and running to and fro with props. Things eventually calm down and then the men who are in on the know, walk on the stage and "look the house over."

The second act begins in much the same way as the first one did with the exception that the time previously occupied by the ushers in showing people to their seats is now taken up in chasing pop bottles which are rolling down the aisles at a great speed. However, all this only adds to the general merriment and enjoyment of the show.

Behind the scenes members of the chorus are still going strong, off the stage as well as on. Talk and more talk on instructive and edifying subjects. One girl is getting some pointers on how to drive her car. It has just come out of the shop.

He says, "Sure, you gotta push down with both feet, especially the brake. The brake is what stops the car, you know."

Hence ensues a long discussion on the raison d'etre of the brake. Some prefer action to words and a couple over in the corner are cultivating their acquaintance, with no mean technique.

Note: Spare time is spent swatting mosquitoes and watching one of the leads give a splendid imitation of a bleating lamb, although not for exhibition purposes. He puts one finger on his nose and makes strange noises, then he holds his nose and makes more noises, still strange. Maybe it's some clever way of testing one's voice without actually singing.

So on into the third act; everybody is getting awfully tired and dropping with a sign upon the nearest horizontal surface. There isn't much talking or anything alse done now and the stage smiles are registering automatically if at all. The next to the last number is sung and after the passing of three years the lights are doused on the finale with nine-tenths of the chorus half undressed before they reach their dressing rooms. There is a weak scramble for rags with which to wipe off the paint but their heart is not in it; the scramble, not the paint.

Thus we are back where we started from, weary but undaunted, with 20 brand-new mosquito bites.

A Substitute for the Patty Shell

By HANNAH WING.

EVERY woman who entertains relies upon certain creamed dishes for her guest menus. Chicken a la king, mushrooms or oysters in the same manner, creamed meats of all kinds or nicely buttered peas or other vegetables are the right kind of dishes for many of these meals. But every woman knows that creamed dishes are likely to look rather messy when served unless they are placed in patty shells. Now patty shells may be bought—in most places—but they are not always satisfactory and are all too frequently left untouched by the guest. They are moreover both slightly difficult and expensive to make.

Now there is a simple, home-made substitute for the patty shell which to many palates is even more delicious than the patty, and which is so simple that any one may make it at very little expense. These are nothing more nor less than little cases cut from thick slices of bread, dipped in butter or lightly brushed with melted butter and browned. They are generally spoken of by professional cooks as croustades and it may be that the name which does sound a bit forbidding has kept them from becoming popular with the average housewife. In the belief that many women will welcome these simple but delicious containers, full directions for making them are given below.

Cut slices of bread one to two inches thick. Remove the brown crust from the bottom and sides of each slice. Cut each slice into two oblongs or two triangles, or four if very small cases can be used. Run the blade of a sharp knife into the edge of the bread one-fourth inch from the edge, going all around each case and taking care not to quite cut through to the bottom of the case. Now run the point of the knife through one side of the slice one-half inch from the bottom but do not cut through the side walls. You have now loosened the center of the case. Lift it up gently with the point of the knife blade and remove it. This should leave a smooth-sided box or case. Brush the case over inside and out with melted butter and brown it in the oven or toast it. The case may be fried in deep fat instead if desired. Keep the cases hot and fill with creamed meats or vegetables.

Various shapes of these bread boxes or cases may be made by using a cooky cutter and cutting the thick slices of bread in diamonds, circles or squares. Bread is more easily handled and holds together better for making these croustades if it is slightly stale.

Extremes in Decorations.

NEW YORK.—Decorations which are placed on articles of apparel are a good deal like a house of cards. They build decoration on decoration and embroidery on embroidery until all becomes top heavy and falls. Then embellishments are swept away for a time in favor of simplicity and then the designers start building over. It is so in gloves. The slip-ons which started with colored seams now are having multi-colored embroidery scattered over them. Shortly they will be plain again.

RECIPES FROM "My Old Virginia Cook Book"

Jumbles—Cocoanut.

Use 1 large cocoanut grated. Take 2 pounds white sugar, ½ pound of butter, 1 small cup of milk, 6 eggs, 2 pounds of flour, 1 teaspoonful of nutmeg, and the rind and juice of 1 lemon. Cream the butter and sugar. Add the well beaten yolks of eggs, whipping them in well. Add seasoning. Stir in gradually the flour and milk and whites of eggs, beaten very stiff. Lastly stir in the grated cocoanut. Drop from spoon on to a greased pan and bake in a fairly hot oven, but not hot enough to burn cakes before they are done.

The Diary of a New Father

Tuesday Evening.

WHEN we went to bed last night I happened to think of a joke somebody had told me during the day, and I told it to Joan, and I was laughing on account of it being such a funny joke, though perfectly decent, and Joan said, "Ssh—don't have hysterics. You'll wake the baby."

I said, "Well, it's so darn funny," and Joan said, "I'm about to die laughing myself, but I'm exercising my self-control. Don't make so much noise." And just then the baby rolled over and let out a little yelp, and Joan said, "See? Didn't I tell you? You've waked the baby."

I said, "Well, try some of the silence you've been advertising and maybe he will go back to sleep," and Joan said, "Be still yourself, can't you?" Just then the baby let out another yelp, a little louder, and then another one, a little louder yet, and Joan said, "I wonder if anything can be the matter with him?"

I said, "What's the idea of making me be so quiet if you're going to yell at the top of your voice?" and she said, "Well, I'm not going to lie here and let the poor little thing suffer." I said, "There's nothing the matter with him," and she said, "How do you know there isn't? He may be hungry."

I said, "This is no time for him to be hungry. You don't want to give him the habit of eating in the middle of the night, do you?" Joan said, "No, but I don't intend to let him go hungry, either. He didn't finish his carrots this evening and he is probably half starved. How are we going to make him stop crying if we don't feed him?" I said, "Don't try to make him stop. Let him cry it out and it will be a good lesson for him."

BAH!
MA MAH!
WAH!

She said, "Whenever YOU'RE hungry, you go right out in the kitchen and get something to eat. But the poor little baby can't help himself, and you lie there and blame it on his temper." I said, "All right, go ahead and feed him, darn it," and she said, "Has he stopped?" and we listened and he had, and I said, "There, now. He's gone back to sleep. You would have kept him up half the night feeding him when he wasn't hungry," and she said, "Be quiet, or he will wake up again," and I said, "Well, admit you were wrong," and she said, "Ssh," and I said, "Come out like a man and admit—" but I could not finish it on account of Joan putting her pillow over my face and leaning on it, and there is no sense in smothering and so I shut up and we went to sleep, but she knows I was right, anyway.

Rice Pudding a la Mode.

Make a creamy rice pudding by washing and boiling three tablespoonfuls in three cupfuls of water. Drain the rice and put it into a buttered pudding dish with a quart of milk, a cupful of sugar, a teaspoonful of butter, a small grating of nutmeg, and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Bake slowly, stirring the pudding down twice at least. When done, cool naturally and when cold chill. When ready to serve, lay a slice of vanilla ice-cream on the dish and cover it with a spreading of peach jam. Then pour over the rice pudding. This makes a lovely dessert and one children may eat freely. Any desired jam can be used, preferably those without seeds.

Keeping that Schoolgirl Complexion

By VILMA BANKY

© 1927 Fanchon Beauty Features

Beware of using any but true complexion soap on face

THE modern way to beauty starts with skin cleanliness; with never letting powder, rouge or make-up remain on your skin over night. That means careful washing with soap and water regularly.

But be sure you use only a true complexion soap for that purpose. Be sure it is a beauty soap.

Before Palmolive Soap was perfected, women were told "use no soap on your faces." Soaps then were judged too harsh. This soap creation largely changed the skin care of the world.

Made of true cosmetic oils, made solely for ONE purpose, to protect the skin, Palmolive is the most widely urged soap in the world today for complexion use. In Paris it is supplanting domestic soaps.

For true skin beauty, get Palmolive today. Cleanse the skin with its balmy olive and palm lather regularly, and particularly at bedtime every night.

Do that for one week. Note how much better your skin. Costs but 10c a cake. Take care that you get the genuine Palmolive. Green soaps represented as of olive and palm oils are not the same. They are but crude imitations. The Palmolive-Peet Co., Chicago, U. S. A.

Abie's Irish Rose

by ANNE NICHOLS

CHAPTER XV.

AS THE STORY GOES.

When Miss Rose-Mary Murphy, daughter of an Irish contractor, and Lieutenant Abraham Levy, son of a Jewish department store owner in the Bronx, meet again in New York after dramatic experiences in France during the war in which, after Rose has found Abie desperately wounded in a hospital where she is a nurse, they discovered their love for each other, they are confronted with what seems an insurmountable wall, their fathers' prejudices against the other's race, Rose-Mary finally has suggested that if the elders won't capitulate there is nothing else to do but to marry.

"ROSE-MARY!" Abie answered in joyful amazement.

"I mean it, Abie! I love you and you love me. We must find our own happiness, and take the chance of our fathers loving us enough to forgive us."

"I am certainly not the one to back out of such a proposition!" smiled Abie, gripping her hand again tightly.

Then he added:

"But when?"

"When I come back to you. After every effort has been exhausted to convince our fathers. Then we will merely have to show them that there are modern ideas about things and modern people to execute them."

Impulsively, Abie said: "Why not today, Rose-Mary? We can keep it secret until we see what happens. Let's marry first, and try to work this problem out later and then when everything's all right we can step forward and say, 'Well, we knew it would meet with your approval, so we went right ahead!' "

"No, Abie," Rose-Mary answered. "It isn't that I don't feel I'm my own master, and it isn't that I feel such a sense of duty that I must do as my father says, but it's just as you told me it was about your father. They each have isolated themselves from the world, more or less, for our sakes. I haven't the heart to do anything that would cause my father pain, without first trying sincerely to obtain his consent in some way. Our marriage will come, inevitably. We must be patient."

"Well, they say a woman's judgment is generally the best, and I'm ready to bank on yours as better than that of any other person."

They left the hotel, and strolled over to Fifth Avenue, where Rose-Mary indulged in a little window-shopping and Abie grew first amused and then jealous of the wax figures as she paused to look at them, or dragged him towards some display of things that seemed to him absurd.

"Women are all wrong," he asserted humorously. "Men don't admire their clothes. Why, the average man, unless he is a ladies' tailor, could not tell you what a beautiful woman wore ten minutes after he saw her. It's what's in the clothes that count."

"But women don't dress for men!" Rose-Mary told him. "Nor do they dress so much for other women, as men like to say. They dress for themselves. When I feel depressed I go out and buy a new hat and I feel grand again—if it looks right."

"I hope that when you're my wife," said Abie, with a long face, "you won't feel depressed too often!"

"Rose-Mary made a face at him. "A woman dresses to satisfy her soul."

"So, that's what a woman means by saying she would sell her soul?" asked Abie, edging away.

"You are horrid!" pouted Rose-Mary.

Abie drew her arm through his.

"Rose-Mary!" he said softly.

"Yes."

"Would you mind if I kissed you right here on Fifth Avenue?"

"I'm afraid it would not seem quite proper—to others!" she said, looking at him shyly.

"But I'm serious!" Abie declared. "I claim that daring things, done in the broadest daylight on the busiest corner, are the least conspicuous, because they are the least expected."

"Don't tease," Rose-Mary said.

"I'm not!" said Abie, with all seriousness. "I'll tell you what we'll do. We'll walk across to Broadway, to the subway entrance. Then I'll kiss you good-bye as though you were going to the Pennsylvania Station. But you merely walk through, and I'll meet you across the street."

"But I'll get lost in a subway station!" said Rose-Mary, parrying for time.

"No you won't—it's simple!" he said and he guided her off Fifth Avenue.

At the Broadway uptown entrance he carried out his innocent ruse, kissing her a fervent good-bye; and a moment later, as they met again across the street, he repeated this bit of lover's strategy, with another embrace of greeting. He was quite right in thinking that no one noticed them, but both he and Rose-Mary blushed as if a thousand eyes were watching them. They were in the first glow of that blissful period when the whole world seems radiant, rose-hued, bathed in enchantment.

LAUGHING AROUND THE WORLD

with IRVIN S. COBB

JUST TWO TRIVIAL DRAWBACKS.

MY secretary, a most charming lady, who does quite a bit of traveling on her own account, brought home with her from a recent trip to New England parts, the following narrative:

A Down East farmer and a stranger were swapping horses. The farmer offered his horse for the other man's horse and $10 to boot. The party of the second part agreed and the money changed hands. Then the farmer said:

"Now, I always claim to be honest and there's two things the matter with this hoss of mine and I think I ought to tell you what they are."

The other man looked the newly-acquired animal over and said: "He looks all right to me. What is the matter with him?"

The Yankee said: "Well, to begin with, he's the dod-blamedest hoss to ketch when he's out in the pasture that ever you see."

"I don't care about that—I can keep him tied up . . . . What's the other thing that's the matter with him?"

"Well," said the truthful dealer, "the other thing is that after you ketch him he ain't worth a damn."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

EVERY DAY.

SOME are vexed by all life's dullness, finding nothing fine or rare; restless creatures, worn and jaded by the sameness everywhere; to their thoughts the passing hours are a weary, creeping crew bringing naught of joy or brightness, nothing lovely, nothing new. Others, wiser, glimpse bright wonders ever waiting on their way, find in life a fresh adventure budding with each dawning day, ever something sweet and stirring in the happy moments' flight, till the hours fleetly journey, brimmed with bliss and filled with light. Blest, indeed, are those who live it with a gallant heart and gay, seeking ever for the gladness that lies waiting on their way, gaining still in strength and courage with the barriers they climb, every day a new adventure on the trackless shores of time!

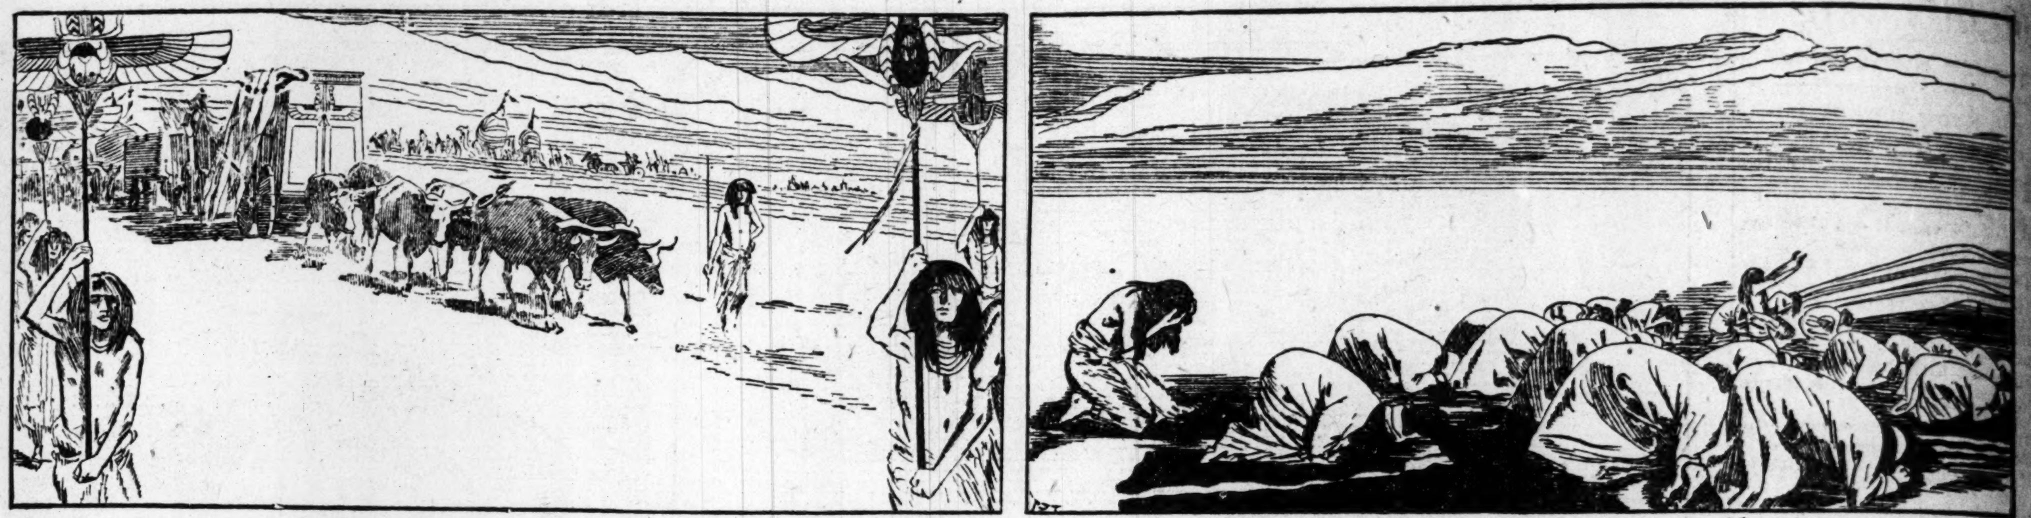
The Greatest Story in the World—By Kor

The Bible in Pictures



And Joseph went up to bury his father: and with him went up all the servants of Pharaoh, the elders of his house, and all the elders of the land of Egypt, and all the house of Joseph, and his brethren, and his father's house: only their little ones, and their flocks and their herds, they left in the land of Goshen. And there went up with him both chariots and horsemen: and it was a very great company. And they came to the threshing floor of Atad, which is beyond Jordan, and there they mourned with a great and very sore lamentation: And Joseph made a mourning for his father seven days. And when the Canaanites saw the mourning in the floor of Atad, they said, This is a grievous mourning to the Egyptians: wherefore the name of it was called Abel-Mizraim, which is beyond Jordan.

MRS. NELL Q. DONNELLY.

Kansas City woman, as she appeared in Federal Court here to defend her patent rights.

Mrs. Donnelly's product began to knock the bottom out of the apron market in 1921. By 1924 her aprons were being vended in every state in the Union, and in virtually every hamlet in every state.

Her own company in Kansas City now turns out aprons by the hundreds of thousands and several firms, in New York City and throughout the country, pay her a license fee to use her patented patterns.

A simple little garment of blue and white was handed from counsel to Judge and from Judge to witness throughout the day. Mrs. Donnelly testified, not without a note of pride, that this little affair in blue and white will mean about $400,000 this year to her concern, and that it had already earned $616,133.50 in a period of only two years and a half. This, she said, is but "one of our lines," and there are 100 others.

Reed Uses Wrong Word.

Senator Reed faltered once upon a hidden rock of a technical term used in dressmaking.

"Now, here where this dress is ruffled"—began Senator Reed, as he examined Miss Therese Walser, designer for the Forest City Mfg. Co.

An expression indicating horror crossed Miss Walser's not uncomely face.

"Where it's what?" she asked.

"Why—ah—right here—ruffled," said Senator Reed, for once in his career baffled over a matter of detail.

"That's not ruffled," said Miss Walser, "that's gathered."

Senator Reed bowed his thanks to the defense witness, and amidst smiles the case went on. It continues today.

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., July 6.—A non-denominational religious memorial and a large library will be erected at Valley Forge as tributes to the memory of George Washington, the Rev. Dr. W. Herbert Burk, founder and rector of Washington Memornal Chapel, announced last night.

Fifteen acres have been purchased by his congregation, Dr. Burk said, and an architect has started drawing the plans. An unidentified person has promised to provide the funds for erection of the library and the erection and maintenance of the church are to be financed by an endowment fund to be organized shortly.

The library will house the more than 17,000 volumes of the Valley Forge Historical Society and a section will be divided into 48 alcoves, one for each state, in which will be found books bearing on the history of the state designated. The cornerstone of the church will be laid June 19, 1928. The cost is expected to run into the millions, Dr. Burk said.

Hitherto the party has restricted its declaration on this subject to a pledge to modify State laws to conform to any changed national law.

The plank was adopted at the convention yesterday by a vote of 47 to 37 over the opposition of Mrs. A. Haines Lippincott of Camden, State chairman of the National Law Enforcement Committee.

The Democratic convention, also in session yesterday, adopted a plank calling for modification of the Volstead act.

BERESFORD TO GET DIVORCE

Decree Will Be Granted Later by London Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 6.—William Arthur de La Horsley Beresford, formerly a stock broker in Providence, R. I., a brother of Baron Decies and a brother-in-law of the former Vivien Gould, today was granted a decree nisi (a divorce after a period set by the court) and $5,000 damages from Laura Beresford.

The Beresfords were married in 1919. Beresford alleged improper relations between his wife and Brian Kemp-Welch, director of an English company. Both Mrs. Beresford and Kemp-Welch denied the charges. Neither, however, was prepared to testify in court and the case was considered as undefended. Beresford had been previously married to Miss Florence Miller of Providence, in 1901. She obtained a divorce in 1919.

Kansas Klan Ouster Made Final.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 6.—Litigation over the right of the Ku Klux Klan to operate in Kansas has ended formally with the recording by the Supreme Court of the mandate of the United States Supreme Court, in which the latter refused to hear the case. The klan, after being ousted from Kansas by the State Supreme Court Jan. 10, 1925, sought a review in the United States Supreme Court, but the Federal tribunal decided it had no jurisdiction in the case.

FORD PROPHESIES AIR SERVICE SOON ACROSS ATLANTIC

RATES BATTLESHIPS BELOW AIRSHIPS

Supports Mitchell's View That Aviators Will Fight Next War and Quotes From Locksley Hall.

air cruisers, capable of carrying ing the Atlantic at no distant day

Henry Ford predicted in declaring
America had entered the flying age

Ford indorsed Col. William Mitchell's plea for a fighting air force to protect the United States from foreign aggression.

"The next war will be fought in the air," said Ford, "and war in the air will end all war."

"What should America do to be prepared in the air for the next war?"

"Work on aviation," he replied
"I think aviation is coming as fa as it can in a commercial sense.
have a lot of faith in the Unite States and I think the commercia development of aviation helps th national defense by showing th way. The Government should com along."

Planes Instead of Warships.

"Can airplanes ever displace battleships as Col Mitchell says?"

"There is no question about it, Ford replied. "Airplanes can de stroy anything pertaining to war Aviation, I believe, has started an other cycle. Mitchell is right. Wa in the air will end all war. Rea Tennyson's 'Locksley Hall' and yo will get the picture."

Alfred Tennyson wrote in th middle of the last century, a pr diction of war in the air, whic would end all war. The wor referred to by Ford follow:

For I dipped into the future, far as huma eye could see,
Saw the heavens fill with commerce, arg
sies of magic sails, Pilots of the purple twilight, droppin down with costly bales;
Heard the heavens fill with shouting, a there rained a ghastly dew.
From the nations' airy navies grapplin in the central blue;
Till the war-drum throbbed no longe and the battle-flags were furled
In the parliament of man, the federatio of the world.

Ford showed considerable prid in the operation of his own a lines. There are four flying fro the Ford airport here daily, and t date they have a record of 651 flying hours and 580,933 flyin miles, with only one serious acc dent. This service now connect Detroit with Chicago, Cleveland
Buffalo and Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Plane of the Future.

"What will the plane of the future be like?"

"The large multi-motored plan will be, the planes of the future, said Ford. "They will be of gre size, and hold a hundred passe gers easily. These large plan will come because they can b more easily operated. The prese machine is four-fifths man-operat ed. The operator must be on th job every second. Too much de pends on the man. I think th ratio can be reversed by buildin larger ships, with more motors an less dependence on the huma equation."

If multi-motored planes are pe fected, Ford added, they will in crease the safety factor and mak flying safe as land travel. "If on or two engines break down," h explained, "the other motors wi be able to carry the plane to i destination at reduced speed or t a safe landing, or perhaps the can be repaired while the plane flying. There will be virtually n crashes such as now occur whe motors fail in single-engin planes."

Ford declared the coming ge eration would "take to the air" an the present generation must pr pare the way.

"The large airplane is the sh of the future," he said. "We a entering the flying era and th young crowd coming in now wan to go up in the air."

Plans 100 Passenger Flyer.

Ford's own interest is centere in the multi-motored plane. Ex periments conducted under his su pervision have produced the tr motored, all-metal Ford air crui
ers. The experiments will co tinue along this line until a 10 passenger liner is produced, For

Noville Tells of the Thrill Of the Final Dive When Their Plane Struck Sea in Dark Expecting Death for Minutes Before "America" Landed, then Penned in Cabin 15 Feet Under Water, Yet All Escaped.

By LIEUT. GEORGE O. NOVILLE,
Second in Command of the Monoplane America.
(Copyright, 1927.)

Third Installment.

GEORGE O. NOVILLE

PARIS, July 6.—What does it feel like to fly for forty odd hours over the Atlantic, over France and then with every prospect of crashing down on solid earth and wrapping yourselves around the engines—to suddenly splash ker plump into the swishy eastern profile of the English channel? That's what you will all want to ask us and that's what all four of us aboard that wonderful Fokker monoplane "America," are beginning to collect our wits to try to tell. That is what we hadn't the faintest idea about two minutes to three o'clock Friday morning as we prepared to take that last awful dive.

As we knew the moment of reckoning had come, Commander Byrd and myself couldn't help recalling that other soul-gripping moment when we sat in this same ship only a few months ago with one of God's best people—Floyd Bennett, who flew over the North Pole with Comamnder Byrd—and tried so futilely to hold the nose of the America up. How we wish Floyd was with us here today! There with him, we went through a terrific experience. Our wheel went all the way back in a desperate effort to pull the ship up, but we couldn't budge her at all.

Recalls Crash With Bennett.

We sat there knowing we were going to crash. At that time Bennett was seriously injured. He is still in the hospital plotting out the course we will take on our South Pole flight together with the Commander who took the splints off Bennett's arm just before we left.

I wish you knew him. This excitement and turmoil here would not stir a ripple on Floyd. He doesn't know what fear means. On the North Pole expedition he flew under conditions which would absolutely break any man's heart and nerve. He never budged in the slightest. Incidentally, the first thing I did when we reached this hotel was to send a cable to Floyd. Despite our disappointment in not having him with us, we feel compensated by the fact that he will be with us on our trip to the South Pole.

That fateful morning of July 1 we were sitting there in the cabin of the "America" ready for the last blind dive. Everything depended on that dive. No man walking the plank before Capt. Kidd knew it better than we did. The last reading of gas had shown that it had to be decided quickly.

Tore Out the Windows.

Hardly had Commander Byrd given the word we both—he and I were alone in the cabin—thought of what we must prepare for. We ripped out the cabin table, for we knew that if we hit with it, one or both of us was sure to be catapulted against its sharp edge. Hastily we tossed the table back into the tail of the ship. Then we tore out the windows. We knew that the chances of getting out in any case were about as good as a cat's tenth life, and we wanted every possible opportunity of escape ready.

Later events proved that these simple precautions helped to save our lives. If the table had still been there, I would have broken my neck or back.

Then we started downward. The motors were cut down and throttled to the utmost. We all knew that it wouldn't be long before we would all be tied up in knots or sitting safe and sound. In other words, we were liable to come up with the engines wrapped around our necks. Of course, it was natural for all of us to think. "When are we going to land?" Commander Byrd was on one side of the ship looking out of the window—the right side—and I was on left at the other window. Balchen and Acosta were in the pilot's cockpit at the wheel, which was forward of us. The big tank was between us two and Acosta and Balchen. The only way to get up there was through a tunnel 17 by 17 inches across. You can imagine a man of my size getting through. Acosta is so big he couldn't get through at all. He didn't go aft during the entire trip — he couldn't.

I remember I was looking out of the windows as we shot down. Commander Byrd came over to me. He put his arm across my shoulder, smiled and then gave me a little hug as he shook his head, which seemed to say: "Well, it's settled." That was all. It was a farewell of the bravest commander any man was privileged to fight or die with.

That brings me to something that occurred an hour or two after it was all over. We were sitting before a comforting blaze in that lighthouse which we had circled around so hopelessly without a glimpse of land or sea. There between bites of food Commander Byrd turned to me.

"Noville," he said, "what did you think our chances were of getting out of that?" I could only reply: "Commander, frankly I though we were washed out." There was no doubt in my mind that he felt the same way. But as that calm, nevertheless young king of airmen turned away there was nothing for me to do except to stick to my window. He stuck to his. There was nothing there below us—nothing at all.

Altitude—Zero.

I turned to look back at the altitude meter which gives us our height—you see we had an electric light burning in our cabin all the time—and the meter read "altitude, zero." Of course, the altitude meter was not precisely accurate, it tells you within 50 or 75 feet where you are. I thought, "my God, we must be just above the ground or water." Then I hung out the window and looked down again. I couldn't see a thing. We had a flash light which lay on the floor. I pulled by head inside and reached for the flashlight.

I just got my head inside when I heard the sudden swish of the wheels hitting the water. The wheels had naturally hit first. Afterwards we found that the terrific impact had snapped off the wheels like paper. It was a wonderful piece of luck because it lessened the resistance of our ship and it didn't go over near so quickly as it would have gone if the wheels had stayed on.

Trapped 15 Feet Under Water.

Then things happened so rapidly that I have no connected idea of what occurred next, except that I didn't see the Commander at all. Just saw his feet going out of our right window. That is the last recollection within the "America" that I have.

As for me, I did a very nice flat dive headfirst into our 800-gallon fuel tank up ahead. Fortunately it is made of soft thin brass. The terrific impact dazed me for a while. I remember hitting the tank and turning over two or three times with the sea swirling all about me. After that I cannot tell you a thing of what happened down in the cabin 15 feet or more under the surface.

Suppose that table had been there in front when we hit!

Well, when I struggled up, I hit the top of the ship. You know what that sensation is. You are trapped inside some place and it is full of water. Of course, the first thing I sought was the window. I floundered around in the water and finally caught the edge of the window and pulled myself up and out.

Deafened by Motors.

As I gasped to the surface the thing I noticed first was that the "America's" tail was still out of water but the rest was stuck head down into the sea. When I came to the surface the ship was gradually easing itself back like a great arrow on the rebound from a solid rock, only more slowly. Immediately I yelled for Commander Byrd: "Dick, where are you?" Here's a peculiar thing—I couldn't even hear my own voice. I was scared stiff, and was yelling at the top of my voice and couldn't even hear it myself. Forty-two hours with those motors had made me absolutely deaf.

I swam a few strokes and got holdof the control wires which are outside the airplane, pulled myself up and sat on the edge of the wing—I don't remember which one. Strange, you may think it, but there was a perfectly calm sea beneath that thousand-mile blanket of fog.

Just as my head came over the fuselage I saw the commander about 30 feet away swimming toward the ship. I could see his mouth working wildly—I knew he was yelling, but I couldn't hear a sound.

Getting Balchen Out.

Then we started looking for Acosta and Balchen. Neither one was in sight. Finally a head bobbed up in front of the ship and it was Bert's. It was a funny darn thing. Any other time it would have made you laugh. That accounted for three of us, but where was Balchen—Balchen, that plucky little bit of Norwegian granite who had piloted us so wonderfully to a soft landing after nearly 4000 miles of aerial nightmare. We could all see each other's mouths working, but we might as well have been deaf mutes, even though we were shouting. All of us were worried about Balchen.

Almost as if by instinct we started for the same spot—the nose of the ship. We figured that something had happened to him and if he was caught down inside of there we might pull him out. The commander got there first, and I saw him dive down. Just about the time that Commander Byrd dived down, Balchen came up, spouting water like a whale.

It is impossible to estimate those very few seconds wherein all this happened. It must have been under 40 seconds or perhaps a trifle more.

I had slipped off the edge of the wing and was swimming toward the nose when Balchen was missing. Then he came up like a shot all of a sudden about 15 feet from me. I knew that everything was all right, so I climbed back on the ship and got hold of the rip cord which opens the emergency compartment, where the boats and food are stored.

Working in a Daze.

I yanked the cord with all my strength—all I had left. The other three were all on the wing by the time I got the compartment open. All this time we were more or less dazed. I think that we acted from instinct or the inherent feeling of self-preservation or something, but that it is absolutely the truth.

We got the rubber boat out, put two pumps on it and started pumping. We took turns pumping. The ship was gradually assuming a horizontal position.

Meanwhile, the Commander was very much worried. He would reach over and feel my legs and arms to see if any were broken, and then do the same to Balchen and Acosta. That is typical of the Commander. It is his habit to think of some one else first. He never thinks of himself.

The Commander asked me if I was hurt. He got right up next to my ear and yelled it. It sounded to me as if he were 10 miles away. Just the faint sound of his voice reached me. I said no, I was not hurt and he looked relieved.

After the boat was pumped up we pushed it over the edge of the wing. We could see the lighthouse a considerable distance off but we couldn't see the shore for it was too thick. We didn't know how far it was to shore.

Byrd Saved Flag and Mail.

Balchen, Acosta and myself got into the boat and when we looked for the Commander he was gone. That was another jolt. Had he fallen off the wing or what happened to him? We were just ready to climb out again to look for him when he came up through the observation window of the America. He had his strong box containing the piece of the original American flag made by Betsy Ross in his hand. He came to the edge of the wing and threw the box into the boat and climbed in after it.

I saw him looking around in the boat. He pulled me over to him and yelled: "Where's the mail?" I started to look around, assuming that it must be there somewhere. By the time I had turned around the Commander was crawling back into the ship again. He went down through the cockpit which was still half filled with water. Unless the mail bag was floating in there, he must have plunged down to get it. But he came up and out of the observation window on top again and over the edge of the wing. He threw the mail bag into the rubber boat and then stepped aboard himself.

Oars Hit Bottom.

Balchen and I started to row ashore—at lesat we hoped it was a shore. Anyway we went in the direction of the lighthouse. After about 10 or 15 minutes of rowing—I can't tell exactly how long it was—our oars struck bottom.

Boy, what a wonderful feeling that was after those million years we had been living—in the few minutes which would make the years of Methuselah look like an infant.

We all climbed out rather stiffly maybe, but we got out and our feet on the good old soil of France. We had landed in France after all. Then we pulled the boat up on the beach above the high water mark so we could use it again.

Perhaps it was clumsy work—I don't know. All we knew and all I can remember is that after a flight that seemed like fifty-five times in forty-two hours, we had reached the shore and were safe at last. If it had been Robinson Crusoe's island I guess we would have felt the same way. You can bet we were tired out. None of us had had any sleep for three nights. That night we had passed in the wildest nightmare in the air we had ever seen or heard of. The night before we passed in pushing blindly through the sea of fog, and the night we started we were awakened at midnight.

Figure it out. It must have been 4 o'clock in the morning on July 1, perhaps 4:30. We had gone at least 62 hours without sleeping a wink. Maybe, it wasn't strange that we were dazed after all. If I were Daniel Webster I couldn't describe to you how good that first bed we touched felt.

MAC DONALD ASSAILS BALDWIN GOVERNMENT IN COMMONS

British Labor Leader Introduces Motion of Censure Against Proposed House of Lords Reform.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 6.—Ramsay MacDonald, British Labor leader, today made his scheduled motion of censure on the Baldwin Government in the House of Commons on the government's scheme for reform of the House of Lords.

In the presence of a crowded house which showed intense interest, MacDonald expressed regret that the Government had put forward a scheme for fundamental changes in the House of Lords without obtaining a mandate from the people.

His motion, framed last week, declared the Government's reform scheme "Gerrymanders the Constitution in the interests of the Conservative party," deprives the House of Commons of the control of finance, entrenches the Lords on a hereditary basis and takes from the electors the power to deal with the upper house.

Previous to the opening of the house, the Cabinet met and it is understood that the ministers approved a statement which Premier Baldwin proposed to make in reply to the Laborite censure motion.

Premier Baldwin said there could be no question of the House of Lords becoming a really serious rival of Commons. There would be no power there to make or unmake ministers, nor equal rights in finance measures.

As to the elective principle, he said, it was exceptionally plausible on first sight, that an elected Upper House would immediately become a rival of Commons, but to that the government was opposed.

WALES MAY VISIT U. S. IN FALL

Premier Baldwin to Accompany Him on Canadian Tour in August.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 6.—The Prince of Wales, it is learned, will probably take the opportunity of his presence in Canada late this summer to make another visit to the United States. His itinerary is now being drafted, but after his arrival at his ranch at High River, Alberta, the second week of August, no arrangements have been made for him. With Premier Baldwin he will arrive at Quebec on July 29 and proceed to Montreal for a day, Ottawa for three days and Toronto for two days.

The Prince and the Premier then will go direct to Banff, Alberta, but Mr. Baldwin will return East immediately sailing from North Sydney, N. S., Aug. 18. The Prince, it is stated, will have a minimum of public engagements while in Canada.

SCHOOLS WEAKER UNDER MADDOX, SCHROEDER SAYS

Superintendent's System of Rating Impairs Morale, Declares Board Member in Renewing Attack.

Again attacking John J. Maddox, Superintendent of Schools, and particularly the Maddox system of rating teachers, Henry P. Schroeder, member of the Board of Education, issued a statement yesterday, charging that St. Louis public schools are "disorganized," and that "demoralization has spread throughout the entire system."

Schroeder said Maddox had misrepresented the attitude of members of the Board of Education with respect to the "impersonal rating" system, in declaring that they approved the system as "the best so far devised." Instead, Schroeder declared, members of the board had openly denounced the system, believing it would impair the morale and efficiency of the schools, which, Schroeder added, it had done.

"With ample funds and enjoying almost unlimited powers to carry out his plans and purposes," Schroeder quoted a member of the board as saying with respect to Maddox, "it is fair and proper to inquire what have been the results of his administration. I think it is clear that our public school system has filed to hold the rank it formerly held among other school systems; it is likewise clear that occurred during Maddox's administration."

Schroeder declared in his statement that "the automatic scoring machine" introduced into the school system by Maddox, "if applied to its creator," would rule him out of his job.

"Has Supt. Maddox attended any college or university during the past 15 years for self-improvement?" Schroeder asked in his statement. "If so, what degrees were conferred on him? What are his college credits secured during the past 15 years? Has he received credits in administration during the past ten years?"

The statement concludes by attacking the card index system kept by Maddox, from which ten appointments yearly are made, and which costs $6000 a year to maintain.

Commercial Trans-sea Air Service a Dream Not Soon to Be Realized, Acosta Thinks

Reliable Weather Charts Needed Before It Can Be Assured, He Says—"I Wouldn't Now, Be an Atlantic Pilot."

Third Installment.

By BERT ACOSTA,
Pilot of Commander Byrd's Plane, the America, on the Trans-Oceanic Flight.
(Copyright, 1927.)

BERT ACOSTA

PARIS, July 6.—When I am asked what I regard as the outstanding lesson of our flight I am bound to say that it is not an encouraging one.

After 42 hours of travel in all kinds of weather I am forced to the conclusion that trans-Atlantic passenger service is merely a dream that cannot become a reality for a long time. Perhaps if we had fair weather all the way I should think differently about it, but my present impression is that it will take years to surmount successfully the meteorological obstacles standing in the way of anythink like a regular Atlantic plane service.

One Obstacle Surmounted.

Three flights from one continent to the other this summer have demonstrated that the mechanical obstacles have been overcome.

We have planes that will do the job. We have engines that are absolutely dependable for 40 hours of continuous flying, and we have men with sufficient skill and power of endurance to pilot the planes from New York to Europe. But we have not reached the point in aviation where we can defy the weather. Of course, some kind of service could be run, but not on a commercial basis.

At best it would be a very irregular service and at that would only be possible in the very best months of the year. This service, such as it is, might be made available to people whose business or personal needs require them to be rushed from one continent to the other. I know there are many people who would take the risk.

The flights of Lindbergh and Chamberlin stimulated an enormous public interest in trans-Atlantic flying. It seemed to spring up almost over night.

Why, before we left Roosevelt Field people came out with $5000 or $10,000 in their hands begging us to take them as passengers.

Before the first Atlantic flight was made these same people would never have wanted to fly even around New York without keeping one foot on the ground.

A Boom in Aviation.

This rekindled interest in flying is good, and should lead to the extensive development of commercial flying on the American continent, where it can be carried on, on a business basis and with reasonable regularity and safety for the passengers as well as the freight. Commercial air services in Europe are being developed and extended and improved all the time. You can get a plane to take you anywhere.

Witness the fact that Van Lear Black, Baltimore publisher, decided the other day he would like to go to Batavia, so he chartered a Fokker plane in Holland, reached his destination in safety without mishap and is now thinking of going on to Australia, and this in an ordinary commercial plane using existing airdromes and refilling stations between points on the Continent.

Commander Byrd is now busy compiling data for presentation to the Department of Commerce at Washington. He has detailed weather reports and what is particularly valuable, a study of the winds over the Atlantic as compared with the charts we had plotted. His reports will determine the advisability of having more and better weather reports at all times in the future.

Real Value of "America's" Flight.

Therein lies the real value of our achievement in the "America." Other flights of similar character will be made in the future, always I hope with the principal object of obtaining Atlantic weather data—winds, fogs, rain and sleet—at different altitudes and in different zones. Only when we have a mass of information of this character will it be sensible to talk about a trans-Atlantic service which would be as regular as our air-mail.

For my part I would not at the present stage of ocean flying accept any engagement as an Atlantic pilot. There is too much high tension flying to be done and the strain would become unendurable. My endurance flight with Chamberlin lasted 51 hours and 11 minutes and the strain was nothing like as heavy as that we suffered during our 42 hours between New York and France.

Nevertheless it is not the factor of human endurance that pushes the possibility of regular trans-Atlantic airplane flying into the distant future, but a lack of dependable weather charts. That such will be compiled by pioneers like ourselves and others there is no doubt. And only when that is done will it be possible for people to fly between America and Europe as they now hop from one continental capital to another.

POINCARE UPHELD ON DAUDET AFFAIR

Chamber of Deputies, 361 to 110, Gives Government a Vote of Confidence.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 6.—The Chamber of Deputies has given the Government a vote of confidence in the Daudet affair, 361 to 110.

The vote came late yesterday on the demand of a Royalist member to question the Government on the arrest of Maurice Pujo, managing editor of l'Action Francaise, Daudet's newspaper. Pujo published an account of how Daudet and two others were released from Sante prison on alleged telephone orders from the Ministry of the Interior, indicating that he was familiar with the details of the scheme to deceive the prison warden.

Barthou for the Government declared that he would not reply, and made the question one of confidence.

Belgian Bank Head Coming to U. S.

BRUSSELS, July 6. — Louis Frank, governor of the National Bank of Belgium, intends to sail for the United States July 15, to meet American financiers. This will be the last of his series of meetings with foreign financial leaders to restore and stabilize Belgium's financial policy.

NORTHERN CHINESE GENERAL JOINS SOUTHERN RANKS

Switch of Commander in 20-Mile Area Is Latest Development in Nationalist Advance.

500 American Marines Are Landed at Tsingtao, Says Unconfirmed Telegram From Japanese.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, July 6.—An unconfirmed telegram from Japanese sources at Tsingtao, Shantung Province, says 500 United States Marines have been landed for the protection of Americans.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, July 6.—Gradual but steady development of the campaign of the Southerners against the North China Government is reported in advices from the Shantung front, with the Nationalist leaders expressing belief in an easy advance on Tientsin and Pekin.

Railway service between Tsingtao, on Kiaochow Bay, and Tsinanfu, capital of the Province of Shangtung, has been suspended because of the destruction of a section of track near Kaomi. Telegraphic and telephonic communication also has been interrupted.

Japanese advices say that Gen. Chen, commanding the troops between Kiaochow and Kaomi, a stretch of about 20 miles, has gone over to the Nationalists but notified the authorities that, although he was surrendering to the Southerners, he would guarantee full protection for foreign lives and property. While this apparent defection added little territory to the Nationalist advance, it further paved the way for the execution of Southern campaign plans.

Plans of Southerners.

Official cricles at Nanking, headquarters of the moderate Nationalist regime, reveal that the Southerners are now planning to expel the Northerners from the entire area south of the Yellow River from the city of Kaifeng in the Province of Honan to the sea.

From Kaifeng to the west, the Northerners have retreated north of the Yellow River and Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, who is now cooperating with Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, is established in Honan.

The Shantung campaign involves four columns of troops, three under Chiang Kai-shek, leader of the Nanking Nationalists, and one under Feng Yu-hsiang. Two of Chiang's columns are going through Shantung along the seaboard route, one of them having as its objective Tsingtao and the Tsingtao-Tsinanfu Railway, while the other has as its objective Taianfu, which is about 40 miles south of Tsinanfu and well within the Tientsin-Pukow Railway area.

These two columns are planning to join a third column of Chiang's troops which are coming up the Tientsin-Pukow Railway and are now north of Yengchow. These commands plan to merge at Taianfu and then continue on toward Tsinanfu. Meanwhile the fourth column, under Feng Yu-hsiang plans to advance northeast from Kaifeng, sweeping Western Shantung south of the Yellow River and joining Chiang at Tsinanfu.

Campaign Against Radicals.

Meanwhile Feng's campaign against the radical elements at Hankow continues. Reports from Hankow say that a number of the Russian advisers to the Hankow regime who were recently ordered to leave the city by Feng, have departed by train for Urga, Mongolia. This is interpreted here as prophetic of the fall of the Hankow Government or at least its rapprochement with the regime of Nanking.

Japanese advices from Tsingtao state that the propaganda agents of the Kuomintang or Nationalist political organization are most active.

These advices say that "special martial law" has now been invoked at Tsinan and Chefoo.

Governor Yen Hsi-shan of the Province of Shansi, it is declared, is now counted on by the southerners to start a movement on Pekin the moment that the Shantung yellow front is established.

Tsingtao Again Reported in Hands of Nationalists.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 6.—A Shanghai dispatch to the Westminster Gazette says that Tsingtao, important city in Kiaochow Bay in the province of Shantung, is reported to have fallen before the nationalist army as a result of the secession of General Chen.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

No End to It.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MERCILESSLY, and in many instances deliberately, the modern man-killer is running wild. His victims number around 50,000 men, women and children annually. He killed yesterday, kills today, and will continue to murder tomorrow. There can be no stopping of the man-killer. As in the days of a pestilence, as in the time of the World War, people, especially the relatives and parents of victims, are asking, "How long, O Lord, how long?"

There is no doubt that the automobile is the man-killer of today. Who can deny that the so-called "beautiful model" may be the means of civilization's bringing destruction upon itself? Every day a child is butchered here and there. Legislation has done nothing to curb the man-killer, for legislators themselves are slaves to the killer, and they may be ensnared by the laws they pass to stop the beast. And thus progress and civilization continue—thousands killed every month by the automobile.

Some states have laws to give the pedestrian walking-rights when crossing a street. But let the poor, unprotected pedestrian try to enforce his rights! The states are lax in examining drivers. Every driver who has just obtained a license will tell how easy it is to get away with it. Where are the experts, road-builders, protectors of our growing youth and adult population? The cry continues, "More and more automobiles!" One concern advertises: "The time has come when every family should own two cars." More man-killers. The streets swarm with them. There is no escaping them.

But why protest? I myself am now admiring new models.

ADOLPH BERGER.

Wayne B. Wheeler's Threats.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

FAILING in his efforts to control either of the great political parties in the approaching presidential campaign, Wayne B. Wheeler, generalissimo of the Anti-Saloon League, in a fit of desperation, is now threatening the candidates and parties who are for liquor with "punishment after death."

Well, we, the people, are no longer afraid of Wheeler's hell. The hypocrisy of the Anti-Saloon League at last has disgusted the American people, who now are determined to stamp out the ghastly joke of prohibition as is.

ROBIN HOOD.

In the Black Hills.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE is not an astute politician. He seems not to profit by the record of political history of this country. He has chosen a beautiful section, far away from the cares of office at Washington. But what he has done simply parallels what was done by the greatest Democrat who ever aspired to the office of President—and that is, he has gone headlong into the enemy's country. It was a political blunder.

Mr. Bryan after his famous "cross of gold and crown of thorns" speech went East and opened his campaign by attacking Wall street. He was a defeated candidate from that day. Mr. Coolidge has come West, and the farmers, having suffered seven long, lean years, are "listening in" to what Mr. Coolidge has to say. Can he fool them twice or three times? Lincoln said something about fooling all of the people some of the time. Mr. Coolidge has undertaken a big political task.

FRED A. PETTIT.

Heise's Unique Service.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHILE many persons have been expressing horror over the fact that Augustus Heise, a New York prohibition commissioner, should have coolly admitted on the witness stand the use of "third degree" methods against a witness, I have been unable to escape a feeling that Mr. Heise has done at least one remarkable and praiseworthy thing. He has told the truth to a court and jury about his methods of getting evidence.

Those of us who have had much contact with courts know that such methods as Mr. Heise is accused of having employed are used extensively in all sorts of cases by policemen, Department of Justice agents, Secret Service men and others employed to enforce our laws. We know that day after day witnesses go upon the stand and tell of "third degree" methods employed against them, and we also know that day after day policemen and other officers go on the stand and solemnly deny such statements and try to convince courts and juries that they never would think of using force or threats against a witness.

Usually, when the Judge asks how the prisoner happened to break five or six ribs and an arm or two the officer says, "He slipped getting in the patrol wagon, Your Honor."

But now comes Mr. Heise, who, when asked if he threatened to twist a towel around the head of a prisoner, says: "Yes," and then volunteers the information: "It's a Chinese method of torture."

Had Heise committed perjury and denied the whole thing it would have been a case of his word against that of an East Indian defendant in a bootleg-graft trial. Had he committed perjury he would not have been suspended, and Chester P. Mills would not have resigned.

Personally, I think Heise should be given a gold medal for truthfulness.

RALPH P. TAYLOR.

THE WAR PLEBISCITE.

The idea of deciding the question of war by a vote of the people which Ambassador Houghton discussed as an individual is, as the Post-Dispatch said, attractive. It has numerous supporters. But from the practical standpoint it is beset with difficulties.

As Ambassador Houghton said, no one nation could adopt the plan. But assuming, as he suggests, that several nations advanced in civilization should adopt it, what certainty would there be that the people of any two nations engaged in a dispute would agree? If the people of one nation decided not to go to war and the people of the other nation decided to go to war, the antiwar nation would be at the mercy of the war nation. There would have to be an agreement on a truce, without war preparation, while the plebiscite was being taken. And after that the decisions might differ and one of the nations in dispute would be at the mercy of an enemy or enemies whose people had decided upon war.

The mere statement of the case indicates the impossibility of the plan, at least under present conditions.

There is another aspect of the idea which nations having the representative system such as ours would have to consider. The whole theory of the government of the United States is based upon representation. The people elect governmental officials and representatives in the legislatures for the purpose of governing them. All questions of legislation and of executive action are left to these representatives in office It is presumed that the representatives, being carefully selected for the purpose of government, are better qualified to decide governmental questions than the people themselves. The ultimate power, however, resides in the people, and if they are not satisfied with the conduct of their representatives they can change them.

Under abuses that grew up under the representative party system there have been invasions of the representative idea. The representative plan in the matter of party control has been practically overthrown by the direct primary system. But under that system the people choose their candidates and elect their representatives.

Are we and other peoples who are governed under a representative system prepared to abandon it altogether and adopt pure democracy, or a government by the people direct? That would be the significance of the adoption of the plebiscite on war.

Of course, when Governments were not responsible to the people and were not controlled by the people, decisions of war and peace had no reference to the people. They have under the representative system. Our Constitution safeguards the people from hasty executive action with regard to war by placing the decision in Congress. Congress alone, or in other words, the legislative representatives elected directly by the people, has the power to declare war.

The direct primary has not demonstrated either the capacity or the willingness of the people to pass upon the qualifications of candidates. The initiative and referendum have demonstrated how difficult it is to get people to study governmental questions and arrive at intelligent decisions. Have we any reason to think that results would be different if questions of war were submitted to the people? Would there not be such an activity of propagandists, such a confusion of tongues, of judgments, and such an ignorance on the part of the great masses of the people with regard to the issues and the consequences involved, that the result would be chaos?

At any rate, before adopting the war plebiscite suggested by Mr. Houghton the peoples now under representative republican governments would have to decide to go to pure democracy. That would be a momentous decision.

REGISTER YOUR BABIES.

Missouri's birth records for years have been sadly incomplete because of the failure of parents to register their newly arrived children with the State Board of Health. An effort is now being made to remedy this condition, especially in St. Louis. This week thousands of blank forms are being distributed through the mails, and all parents whose children are not registered are urged to fill them out as indicated.

A full response to this suggestion would place Missouri where it has never been, namely, upon the list of states whose vital statistics are accepted by the United States for publication. The main reason that parents should comply with the State Health Board's request, however, is to gain for their children the advantages of registration with the State. In many ways, such as to prove the right of inheritance, marriage, voting, school and citizenship rights, such registration often saves a lot of red tape.

THE MIRACULOUS MACHINE.

Henry Ford is right—possibly trite—when, in his latest interview, he asserts that the tremendous advances in the mechanical end of American industry will revolutionize the business world. Whether the revolution will eventuate, as he confidently predicts, in giant corporations and the universal adoption of the five-day week are details we must leave to the prophets.

The influence of mechanical invention on industry, however, is already a matter of plangent record. That influence was vividly limned the other day in some statistics cited at the sixtieth anniversary of Canada's confederation. With a population of 9,300,000, Canada's mineral production is equal in value to our production when we had a population of 38,000,000, while in manufactured goods Canada is producing as much as the United States did with a population of 50,000,000.

The explanation is obvious: It is the machine. We have to go back to the "ancient history" of the United States to find the population figures mentioned in the Canadian comparisons. It was around 1880, almost half a century ago, when our population was 50,000,000, and 10 years earlier—in 1870—when we were 38,000,000. In those remote periods the science of present-day production was undreamed of. The machine as we now know it was unborn. It is the gargantuan, fecund, incomputable machine that has composed the heady statistics in which Canada, on her sixtieth birthday, "glories and drinks deep."

What wonders the machine will have wrought when the twentieth century is a septuagenarian—who may say? Henry Ford sees the future only in the physical aspects of bigger business and bigger consumption by virtue of a shorter working week. We suspect that to forecast the future imprint of machinery on human destiny a prophet must be summoned with a vastly greater background than that of Henry Ford and vastly greater vision.

BETTER FLYING FIELDS.

Commander Byrd has suggested several improvements in the construction and appointments of flying fields.

First, he recommends that the flying field be surfaced with concrete or some material unaffected by water. He believes, too, that the field should be spacious and, stressing the difficulty and danger of attempting a take-off when the wind is across the runway, he proposes wheeled inclines from which planes can fly into the wind.

He speaks from a trying experience of vexatious delays. Unfortunately, a grimmer brief may be adduced in support of his proposals. It can not have been forgotten in all the subsequent exultation that Lindbergh's marvelous feat almost came to grief at the outset when expert aviators, including Byrd himself, held their breath through an agonizing moment of doubt as to whether the "Spirit of St. Louis" would soar above a string of telegraph wires or be brought down in a crash.

Going back a year, there is the tragedy of Fonck's effort, when his plane was wrecked on the runway and two men killed because of conditions listed in Byrd's recital of things to be remedied.

The changes advised are of such elementary character that, to the layman at least, the wonder is they have not already been made. The history of Roosevelt Field plus the authority of Commander Byrd closes the case for the adoption of the recommendations.

THE LAW IN BRENTWOOD.

Brentwood has a new system for extracting money from motorists along the Manchester and North and South roads who are picked up by Brentwood's constabulary for speeding and other offenses against the majesty of this village.

A village bondsman, who also acts as Fire Chief, is on tap to come to the "aid" of motorists who cannot furnish a $200 common law bond with the signature of a property owner, or who will not take the time and trouble to do so. This bondsman, John McCormick, supplies his signature for a fee of $16. If the victim does not appear for trial—and what would be the use of that?—McCormick splits the $16 with the arresting officer, the Police Judge, the City Attorney and the City Treasury.

Of course, if you don't like the idea of handing $16 over to the Brentwood gang, you can spend the night in jail. Or you can run for it and take your chance with William Skow, the shooting Deputy Constable, though, in view of past happenings, that is likely to prove most expensive of all courses.

THE TERRIBLE FOURTH.

Comparative statistics of the injuries we inflicted upon ourselves in celebrating independence are not available from other cities in a form that makes it quite clear whether we are more or less self-destructive here than other metropolitan communities are, but we seem to be among the leaders.

Fully 400 people were in some way burned, blown up or shot in and around St. Louis this year. One boy was killed. Another was partly blinded. One of the injured was virtually bombed by a torpedo thrown into a passing automobile. The usual consequences of firing blank pistols, setting off cannon crackers and loading tin cans with explosives were in no wise abated. Flying bullets accounted for some of the hurts. A skyrocket burned three houses in one of the suburbs.

What incredible folly it all is! There is an ordinance which forbids discharge of a firearm in the city. Why is that ordinance not made applicable to all explosives? It is absurd that 150 years after we won our independence we should be annually blowing ourselves up, letting our children amuse themselves with dangerous explosives, and turning loose upon a big city a horde of sharpshooters and bombers whose depredations fill the hospitals and keep the doctors jumping. There are better ways than that of celebrating our independence.

KING FUAD IN ENGLAND.

Since most good manners are such as have been thrust upon us by necessity, leaving us no choice but to treat one another with respect and consideration, it goes without saying that King Fuad's visit to London will be good for the British.

They don't like Fuad in Downing street, around the newspaper offices, or at those innumerable Sunday morning breakfasts where week-ending England debates affairs of the empire. He is one of those upstarts, the numbers of which are alarming of late, who are bringing England to her knees in corners of the earth where her sway was formerly complete. It is not by England's choice that there is a King Fuad in Egypt, and one who has something to say, when there has usually been a British territorial Governor. It is a rotten nuisance to have to divide power in Egypt between King George and King Fuad, to say nothing of conciliating the latter, bloody beggar that he is, in England's contacts through Egypt with the Sudan.

But must must. There he is, the rightful ruler of Egypt, proud as a peacock, and looking upon all Britons as intruders. He has brought to London a troupe of hi Nubians, each six feet three, none ever speaking a word, and all manipulated by signs, a bit of Orientalism beside which King George has nothing to show but a little weak Occidental pantomime by the Horse Guards. It is to England's interest to be nice to him. He will put up for a few days at Buckingham Palace. He has but to clap his hands and they will run for it, whatever it is, from King George down to the least menial.

Such is the plight of Great Britain. Such is the humor of Fuad.

A FORGOTTEN SENATOR.

Former Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma announced from Washington the other day that he would not permit the Democratic party to nominate a wet candidate. Questioned as to the source of his authority, he grandiosely declared that "the inarticulate multitude is speaking through my voice."

Tosh. The multitude, articulate or inarticulate, does not know Mr. Owen. But it may, perhaps, vaguely recall him as a candidate for the nomination at San Francisco in 1920; it may remember, too, his efforts at soliciting support among the delegates which prompted Irvin Cobb to observe that "Owen would make a good canvasser if he had anything to sell."

Mr. Owen's influence in the 1920 convention was nil. In the 1928 convention it will be nil-minus.

MAKING IT PERMANENT."

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

BRED IN CRADLE OF DIVORCE.

From Article in Harper's Magazine for July.

HOWEVER kind "steps" (stepmothers or stepfathers) may be, I have noticed that children of divorced parents often feel a bit queer and have, perhaps, an older outlook on things. This may not be due to the influence of the home but to the chitter-chatter overheard at school, the advice of well meaning but interfering friends, and to their own thoughts.

Never shall I forget a conversation I once overheard at a fashionable seaside resort. A little girl of about 7 was making sand pies with father. Suddenly she stopped and looking up into his face said: "Daddy, why don't grannie and grandpa live together?"

For a moment her father looked abashed and then replied, with wise simplicity: "They didn't get on, honey, so separated and lived apart." "Humph!" from the child. Then, "Why don't you and my real mother live together?" "We didn't get along either, honey, so we decided to live apart, too, and now you and I live with mummy."

Silence. Then with a sigh, this child, evidently bred in the cradle of divorce, said: "Are you and mummy getting along pretty well?" The use of the adjective "pretty" stabbed me. It was as though her 7-year-old mind had already seen through the hypocritical veneer of human society and knew for a certainty that marriage was a gamble at the best, and was ready for any emergency.

ENGLISH BY LEGISLATION.

From McNaught's Monthly.

JUST before the New Jersey legislature adjourned recently it took a somewhat amazing vote. By unanimous voice the legislature adopted a resolution stating that the words "biannually" and "biennially" mean exactly the same thing. Henceforth, according to the law and the statutes provided "bi-annually," or twice a year, will in New Jersey mean the same as "biennially," or once every two years. Admittedly, the vote was taken to cure the poor English of whoever drafted the new constitutional amendment in that state and to save time and annoyance. It was, in effect, shirt-sleeve legislative lexicography.

And yet, why not? If a legislature can save daylight by changing 6 o'clock into 7 o'clock, then certainly a legislature can rewrite a dictionary. One could thrill at the vista that opens before us. It is possible that such votes by duly accredited representatives of the people mark the beginning of a new dispensation, a brave stride forward into newer and better things, a sign post pointing to an approaching Armageddon when tradition and all its evil works will be overthrown and Mankind will walk at last erect amid the ruins and blasted battlements of preconceptions, authorities, and the customs of its fathers.

EVOLUTION OF THE APRON STRING.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

IN THESE days mother's apron string has become useful chiefly as something to attach her pencil to at the bridge game.

HIGH TARIFF AND WOOL.

From the New Haven Journal-Courier.

UNDER the law of compensation there is no calamity in American Woolen omitting its dividend. Holders of this issue enjoyed 7 per cent for twenty-eight years without cessation. The shares are now quoted at half the price of par, the descent having been gradual in anticipation of what has happened. When the industry rallies they should recover, though it is true the low curve of industry is often protracted.

An interesting aspect of the depression in wool is the tariff. No industry has been so tenderly treated from the earliest days by reason of its agricultural connections. Yet favored as it has been of late years, this big company cannot make profits. There have been bitter bickerings between those who grow wool and those who manufacture it. The latter are buyers of the raw article and like to get it cheap. The grower, on the other hand, fattens on scarcity of wool except his own. It was as late as 1922 that duties on woolen goods were practically doubled; this should have pleased and did please the manufacturers in that it kept competing finished goods out, yet the company, which is the "trust" in the industry, reported a deficit.

GOLDEN RULE OF LIFE.

From the Pathfinder.

THE Golden Rule, in various forms, is found in the literature of several ancient peoples. It was taught by the Chinese philosopher, Confucius, more than five centuries before the Man of Galilee started on his ministry. In the Analects of Confucius appears this passage: "Tsze-kung asked, saying, Is there one word which may serve as a rule of practice for all one's life? The Master said, Is not Reciprocity such a word? What you do not want done to yourself, do not do to others."

BALLADE OF A VEXING QUESTION.

With many questions we are cursed,
To most we have no answer clear;
Let's get this question settled first—
Where are the snows of yesteryear?
When summer days are far from drear
I think it much the wiser plan
To solve the quest the poets fear—
Mais ou sont les neiges d'antan?

Much wordy wisdom's been disbursed
In bringing back light wines and beer;
If in such learning you are versed,
Where are the snows of yesteryear?
'Tis true the cup of wine might cheer
The table of the working man;
He'll drink if he but persevere,
Mais ou sont les neiges d'antan?

I know that I am not the first
To brave the scornful critic's sneer,
But I must know, or else I burst
Where are the snows of yesteryear?
What though the critics hiss and jeer,
Let's hear you answer, if you can,
That quest for snows which disappear—
Mais ou sont les neiges d'antan?

L'Envoi.

Villon, sweet Prince, was quite sincere—
Where are the snows of yesteryear?
On foolish questions there's no ban—

A Superior Western Story

PAINTED PONIES. By Alan Le May. Doran.

ONE of the most moving incidents in the whole history of the trans-Missouri country was the flight of Dull Knife's Northern Cheyennes from the Indian territory back towards their old home prairies in the North. The only other incident that may be compared with it for group heroism against hopeless odds was the marvelous retreat of Chief Joseph's band of Nez Perces during the previous year, 1877.

It will be remembered by some how, during the terrible winter after the Custer Fight, the Northern Cheyennes under Dull Knife, driven out of their winter village on Willow Creek by Mackenzie, made their way in a starving condition to their Sioux ally, Crazy Horse, then on the Tongue River, hoping that he might feed them. But Crazy Horse's band, too, was starving, and there was nothing for Dull Knife's people to do but to surrender at Fort Robinson, from whence they were sent, against their will, to the Indian Territory. There they died of fever and homesickness by hundreds, and the Great Father at Washington was deaf to their desperate entreaties.

Finally, in 1878, they decided that it would be better to die in the attempt to fight their way back home than to perish of disease in a strange land. There were only about 70 fighting men left, and these undertook the task of protecting several hundred women and children against all the armed forces of the United States then in the Department of the Missouri. The running fight that followed was a marvel of tactics, strategy and desperate courage.

A portion of the band managed to win through into the sandhills of Northwestern Nebraska. There, in need of everything, they were captured after a stubborn fight.

The Government, unmoved by so much heroism, still insisted that the broken remnant should be driven back to certain death by disease in the Indian Territory. The Cheyennes, though practically without weapons now, refused to go; and one bitter winter night they broke from their prison at Fort Robinson, fighting with anything at hand. Many were killed in that running fight up the valley; a few were captured, and a few survived long enough to make a last hopeless stand among the bluffs on Hat Creek.

It is a wonderful and a pitiful story; and here in "Painted Ponies" Alan Le May tells it well. Without doubt, Mr. Le May's book would have been more remarkable had he confined himself to the story of Dull Knife's Cheyennes; but apparently he was worldly wise enough to know that such a tale could scarcely be expected to grasp and hold the profitable attention of a public that has a very definite idea as to what a "Western" story should be.

A Superior Western Story

PAINTED PONIES. By Alan Le May. Doran.

ONE of the most moving incidents in the whole history of the trans-Missouri country was the flight of Dull Knife's Northern Cheyennes from the Indian territory back towards their old home prairies in the North. The only other incident that may be compared with it for group heroism against hopeless odds was the marvelous retreat of Chief Joseph's band of Nez Perces during the previous year, 1877.

It will be remembered by some how, during the terrible winter after the Custer Fight, the Northern Cheyennes under Dull Knife, driven out of their winter village on Willow Creek by Mackenzie, made their way in a starving condition to their Sioux ally, Crazy Horse, then on the Tongue River, hoping that he might feed them. But Crazy Horse's band, too, was starving, and there was nothing for Dull Knife's people to do but to surrender at Fort Robinson, from whence they were sent, against their will, to the Indian Territory. There they died of fever and homesickness by hundreds, and the Great Father at Washington was deaf to their desperate entreaties.

Finally, in 1878, they decided that it would be better to die in the attempt to fight their way back home than to perish of disease in a strange land. There were only about 70 fighting men left, and these undertook the task of protecting several hundred women and children against all the armed forces of the United States then in the Department of the Missouri. The running fight that followed was a marvel of tactics, strategy and desperate courage.

A portion of the band managed to win through into the sandhills of Northwestern Nebraska. There, in need of everything, they were captured after a stubborn fight.

The Government, unmoved by so much heroism, still insisted that the broken remnant should be driven back to certain death by disease in the Indian Territory. The Cheyennes, though practically without weapons now, refused to go; and one bitter winter night they broke from their prison at Fort Robinson, fighting with anything at hand. Many were killed in that running fight up the valley; a few were captured, and a few survived long enough to make a last hopeless stand among the bluffs on Hat Creek.

It is a wonderful and a pitiful story; and here in "Painted Ponies" Alan Le May tells it well. Without doubt, Mr. Le May's book would have been more remarkable had he confined himself to the story of Dull Knife's Cheyennes; but apparently he was worldly wise enough to know that such a tale could scarcely be expected to grasp and hold the profitable attention of a public that has a very definite idea as to what a "Western" story should be.

A "Western" story must feature cowboys of a conventional type. Such cowboys must somehow combine naive humor and sentimentalism with manslaughter; and the hero, a diamond in the rough, must win a desirable girl in the last chapter.

The hero of "Painted Ponies" is a readily recognizable cowboy of the conventional type. Through certain misunderstandings and local rivalries among the cattlemen, he is wanted by the Vigilantes, and in his flight he is befriended by Dull Knife's people and accompanies them back to the North Platte country where the tale begins. At length all the bad men are killed off and the hero marries Nancy.

But, in spite of the conventional cowboy stuff, Alan Le May has written a superior tale. There is atmosphere in this book, and there are chapters and passages that would do credit to any living American writer. It seems not improbable that this new author may yet do as good a thing as "The Virginian."

THE LETTERS OF MARIE ANTOINETTE. By O. G. De Heidenstam. (Frenk Maurice, Inc., New York).

For over a hundred years there lay in the library of the Castle of Lofstad, in Sweden, two bundles of letters which are now translated from the French, by Winifred Stephens and Mrs. Wilfred Jackson. The larger bundle consists of letters written by Marie Antoinette to Barnave, a prominent member of the Assembly. In addition there are also the love-letters written by her to "the handsome Fersen." Both series of letters serve to reveal the character of the Queen in an unfamiliar light. That the young Queen, generally thought of as gay, careless and pleasure-loving, was capable of provoking such a love as that which Fersen seems to have had for her, and that she should return it, apparently without lowering her status as wife and Queen, adds greatly to her credit. The letters to Barnave illumine some dark spots in the political history of the Revolution.

A prize of $500 with two additional prizes of $250 each have been offered in a contest for the best poems on the subject of Lindbergh and the "Spirit of St. Louis," which will be published, together with the hundred best poems, by George H. Doran Co.

This contest, arranged by Mitchell Kennerley, president of the Anderson Galleries, will be judged by Mr. Kennerley, John Farrar, former editor of the Bookman and chief of the editorial staff of Doran's, and Christopher Morley, essayist and novelist.

No limitation is placed on the number of manuscripts that may be submitted by one author, the only restrictions being that the poems shall be not less than 14 lines nor more than 300. Only unpublished poems will be considered. All contributions must be in the hands of the judges at 489 Park avenue, New York, not later than July 25.

"MUCH ADO" GIVEN AT GARDEN THEATER

Goodman Players Seen in Outdoor Performance of Shakspeare's Comedy.

"MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING," a comedy by William Shakspeare, produced by the Goodman Players at the Garden Theater with the following cast:

Don Pedro	Hubbard Kirkpatrick
Claudio	Jack Daniels
Benedick	Carl Benton Reid
Messenger	Russell Spindler
Leonato	Howard Southgate
Friar Francis	Whitford Kane
Degberry	Iden Payne
Verges	Art Smith
First Watch	Thomas R. Ireland
Second Watch	Richard Steele
Balthasar	Ross Matthews
Don John	Josef Lazarovici
Barachio	Neal Caldwell
Conrade	Will Geer
Antonio	Roman Bohnen
The Sexton	John M. Griggs
A Page	Bernard Ostertag
Beatrice	Eula Guy
Hero	Ellen Lowe
Margaret	Alma Randall
Ursula	Helen Forrest

By THOMAS P. SHERMAN.

THE difficulties besetting any modern presentation of "Much Ado About Nothing" are certainly made no easier by the ramshackle nature of its plot. For though it is no more reasonable to expect a strong plausibility in Shakspearean comedies than in a modern farce or musical comedy, even those confections are expected to have some sort of logic of their own, however bandy-shanked the major premise may be.

But "Much Ado" is so preposterous in its motivation that it is sometimes disconcerting to a modern audience even when the audience is willing to grant anything. Like the classics of Mr. Cecil Demille, its complications are such that only the most heroic abstention from ordinary reasoning on the part of the principal characters is all that allows the story to finish out its course.

These few thoughts are mentioned not with any idea of reviving an old complaint against Shakspeare but to emphasize the skill with which Mr. Thomas Wood Stevens and associates at the Gerden Theater last night made a whole garment out of the Elizabethan rag-bag that Shakspeare left them. That it required a considerable redistribution of emphasis was apparent to anyone who had read the play. The main complication, for instance, was subordinated to the story of Benedick and Beatrice. In fact it was utilized as a means for making the final conjugation of these two professional misogamists seem all the more reasonable.

And thinking over it I can't imagine how else it could have been profitably managed for the eyes and ears and minds of a modern audience. Certainly Claudio was either a cad or a saphead and by gently inducing the audience to suppose the latter must have been the case, the play did the least damage to one's sense of appropriateness.

Last night's production was the occasion of a spirited and stimulating performance by Eula Guy, who in Beatrice found a character cut exactly to her pattern. Again she was that delightfully forthright and autonomous woman who occurs more often in the works of Shakspeare than in any English author except Bernard Shaw. And she is the sort of woman that Miss Guy delights in.

The indefatigable Iden Payne was also on hand in the role of Dogberry, looking more than ever like a Franz Hals portrait. Carl Benton Reid at last found himself with a role that seemed congenial and he made it an agreeable study, Whitford Kane did his telling best with the small part of the friar, Ellen Lowe was quite the noble and virtuous chattel and Mr. Lazarovici emerged from comparative obscurity to give promise of being a new and more tragic Iago for any one who cares to use his talents toward that end.

Mr. Southgate made his first appearance this season with the company taking the role of Leonato which he performed acceptably if not brilliantly.

WASHBOARD DRUDGERY!

IF there were no other way to get your clothes really clean, your high standards of cleanliness might compel you to wear yourself out one day a week at a washboard.

But soaking clothes clean with Chipso gives the washboard no excuse for being. Chipso loosens the dirt into the water.

What the washboard did by your strength and its roughness, Chipso does by the power of honest suds—but safely!

Will you try this easy Chipso method?

Pour Chipso's thin white flakes into the tub. Run hot water over them for instant suds. (No chipping, no melting, no dissolving of powders.)

Add cold water till suds are lukewarm. Toss in clothes and squeeze the suds through them. Leave them for twenty minutes—or longer if you like. Then squeeze the suds through the clothes a few more times and only badly-soiled spots will need hand rubbing. Rinse and wring.

Women tell us this method actually cuts their clothes-washing time in half—and makes the work so much easier!

Chipso doesn't cost a penny more to use. In the large blue-and-orange box, there's enough for six to eight washings.

Soaks clothes clean . . . Dishes—1/3 less time

AQUEDUCT, N. Y., July 6.—Joe Marrone III, under Sande's perfect ride, won the Myrtle claiming stakes, which featured the closing day of the Queens County Jockey Club meeting today. He was neglected in the betting and six to one was quoted against him.

Sande, when he returned to the scales, received a great hand and was forced to doff his cap.

Adamas was second and the favorite, Ceylon Prince, third.

The race was worth $3625, and the mile was turned in 1:38. Adamas and Gnome Girl alternated in the lead with Joe Marrone III next. When the field straightened out in the stretch for the run to the wire, Sande brought Joe Marrone III to the outside, where he would be clear of interference. The horse closed gamely and in a drive won by three-quarters of a length. Adamas defeated Ceylon Prince by half a length for the place.

CARDINALS' SLUMP DUE TO THEVENOW'S ABSENCE, O'FARRELL SAY

SWITCHES FRISCH AND TOPORCER TO AID DEFENSE

Players Growing "Jumpy" as Losing Streak Continues—Meet Boston Braves Tomorrow.

By W. J. McGoogan
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 6.—Manager Bob O'Farrell, with the Cardinals in Syracuse today for an exhibiton game, blamed the present slump of the team on the absense of Shortstop Tommy Thevenow, who is out of the lineup with a fractured ankle.

"We miss Thevenow greatly," said Bob. "Toporcer is strange at shortstop and when he does anything wrong it is much worse than had Thevenow done the same thing. Every ball that is hit in his direction the pitcher thinks Toporcer should get whether or not Thevenow would have been able to catch it, had he been in there.

"Everybody on the team acts as though he expected the worst to happen at any moment. If we get off in the lead we are looking for the other fellow to take it from us every inning.

"The string of losses has given us the fear of defeat. We think we can't win, consequently we don't.

"The players are all jumpy. At home when the opposition scored a few runs we felt we could get them back at any time. Now if we get behind we are afraid we can't make up the handicap and we don't.

"But we should get started as soon as we meet the weaker clubs and a few victories will put us back on our stride again and give us the needed confidence. We're not out of it by any means, but I wish Thevenow were here."

Tomorrow the Cardinals face the Braves at Boston and it is hoped the champions may find their stride against the weaker opposition and recover some of the ground lost since they left home.

Six games have been played since the club left St. Louis, three with Chicago and three with Pittsburg. All of them have been lost. Just six days ago the Cardinals were in second place a half game from the lead. This morning they are in third place, five and a half games from first position and five games removed from second place. Also they are but two games ahead of the New York Giants who are fourth.

Surely, the six defeats have been a severe blow to the team's hopes of winning another pennant but there is still plenty of chance with more than half the season to go.

Fielding Has Been Bad.

There have been many reasons advanced for the collapse on the road but the general play has been bad. For the first game or two it was natural to suppose that the hard games at home had brought on a slight slump which would surely disappear, but that slump hangs on.

The fielding has been bad and in some places worse than that. The hitting has been far below expected strength and finally the pitching, which had held up despite severe reverses, collapsed.

In an effort to correct the trouble at shortstop O'Farrell in the fifth inning of yesterday's game switched Frisch from second base to shortstop and put Torporcer at second. The new combination got along all right and Frisch started one double play which Torporcer and Bottomley completed.

Absence of Double Plays.

Had there been double plays in other games the results might have been vastly different. In numerous instances rallies by the opposition could have been stopped by double plays and probably would have been had Thevenow been at shortstop but instead there were big innings for the enemy.

Torporcer tries hard, he wants to win and it is his very eagerness to win which causes trouble. He has tried to throw the ball before he got it and has let it get away from him.

In addition to the infield problem there is the outfield worry. Blades still favors his injured leg and has a hard time getting started after a ball. Hafey will be out indefinitely. His knee is worse than ever.

Despite all these disquieting circumstances there are some hopeful signs. Lester Bell has picked up in his hitting in the last two or three games and his fielding has improved with his batting. Douthit has found his batting eye.

O'Farrell is again able to go behind the bat regularly and his arm shows steady improvement.

The pitching has not been bad except in one game. The box scores may look as though the hurlers had been at fault but in nearly every contest a little help from the fielders would have saved the pitcher.

Haines to Start in Boston.

Aldridge held the Cardinals safe and they didn't score a run until the Pirates were five runs to the good.

All of the Cardinals except Alexander, Rhem, Sherdel, Haines, Reinhart and Hafey made the trip to Syracuse. Those six went direct to Boston and it is likely that Haines will pitch the first game there.

WRAY'S COLUMN

What Racing Costs.

THE report of Inspector Myron F. Baker of Kankakee, representative of the Director of Agriculture at the Fairmount racetrack, under the Illinois racing law, show that the new bill is at least saving the public a considerable sum of money.

The inspector's figures indicated that a paid attendance of 18,105 saw Fairmount races on the last three days of the meeting—the only days covered by the new law.

These 18,105 persons wagered a total of $842,622 in the certificate pools, of which 6½ per cent, or $54,770, went to the track.

In admissions, pari-mutuel "take-out" and profits from concessions, the association's gross income was something over $77,000 for three days.

The cost to the public per person for admission and commissions on wagers was $4.03 approximately. Transportation and incidentals averaged $1 more, making an average expense of about $5.

That's not so terrible. It is the cost of a first-class show of almost any sort, in these high-priced days.

* * *

Some Saving!

THE figures also indicate that the public is getting its racing almost 50 per cent cheaper than before the Illinois law went into effect, and that the the dividends of Fairmount stockholders are likely to be considerably smaller, under new conditions.

Before the new law went into effect the track's takeout was admitted to be ten per cent and "breakage." That meant close to a twelve per cent total.

The public's parimutuel bill for the holiday period at Fairmount, under old conditions, would have been $101,114 instead of $54,770!

* * *

Under the old conditions the track had no obligations to the state. It had the ten percent "take" and "breakage." Under the existing law, besides the sacrifice in "takeout," the track must pay $2,500 a day to the state and 20 cents for each paid admission. The track, not long ago, cut its admission price from $2.20 to $1.30.

Under old conditions the three days' meeting would have meant a gross revenue to the track of approximately $150,000, whereas the Illinois law reduces it to $77,875.

That's 50 per cent off—a considerable saving to the public pocketbook, for the short period of three days.

* * *

Some Distinction.

MICKEY WALKER will soon be returning from Europe with his glad rags, his world's middleweight title and about $100,000 of English coin.

Besides the scenery—which is so noisy it ought to be worn only in a sound-proof box—and his title, which is not so convincing, Mickey is bringing back with him a record.

Mickey today is the only world's champion who has clinched his title by a knockout!

He also is the only fighter we can recall who, defeated as welter champion and knocked out by another welter, subsequently rose to the highest honors in a higher weight division.

* * *

The Luckiest Champion.

MICKEY, if we believe the records, is not much of a champion. To begin with, he holds his honor by virtue of one of the crudest decisions given by a referee in years—that of Benny Yanger in the fight with Flowers—a decision which the commission condemned but could not reverse.

Next, he showed himself a poor sport by running out of an agreement to give Flowers a return match within 30 days, should Flowers lose.

Again, in his recent fight, his first title defense, he defeated a man who made an indifferent showing in America, during a recent trip to this country.

Knocked out twice, defeated for a title in an inferior weight class, Mickey now comes swaggering home just as though he were a real king!

* * *

In the tragedy that forms the background of this little drama of life, one Tiger Flowers is playing the hard luck part. Because of one referee's mistake he is minus a title, the $100,000, and the glory.

At the age of 40 there is practically no hope of his regaining the title, even though Walker finally gives the veteran Negro the promised match.

Calza and Jones Signed for Match

Pair Will Wrestle on American Legion Card Tuesday Night.

George Calza, Italian heavyweight wrestling champion, has accepted terms for one-fall match with Paul Jones of Los Angeles, on the American Legion mat program at the St. Louis University Athletic Field Tuesday night, according to Roy G. Chisholm, chairman of the Legion Welfare Committee. A time limit of one hour has been set on the bout.

The main event will be a world's championship engagement between Joe Stecher and Jimmy Londos.

Both Jones and Calza appeared in several local bouts during the past winter. Jones has defeated Roy Steele, John Maxos, Dick Daviscourt, Allen Eustace and Joe Zigmund in local bouts, but he was stopped by Stecher and also suffered defeat by Londos.

Calza recently started a comeback campaign after resting for ten months in Italy to recuperate from an injury he received in a match with Stecher at Philadelphia about a year ago. Since his return to America, Calza has appeared in one local tryout, defeating Dick Daviscourt in a one-fall tussle at the St. Louis University Athletic Field on June 9.

Legion officials hope to arrange for another heavyweight attraction to complete the preliminary card. John Pesek is among those under consideration foa a match in the curtain-raiser.

CALLOW ACCEPTS JOB OF COACHING PENN OARSMEN

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6. —Russell S. Callow, who has resigned as head coach of the University of Washington crews to take charge of the University of Pennsylvania oarsmen, will receive one of the largest salaries paid a crew coach in the United States, it was said here.

University of Pennsylvania athletic authorities maintained silence when word came here that Callow's resignation had been received by the Pacific Coast institution.

Callow conferred last week with John Arthur Brown, chairman of the Pennsylvania rowing committee. Nothing was given out for publication but it was understood that Callow was offered a large salary and a long-term contract. It was also understood that the contract gave him complete control of crew affairs with the privilege of naming his own assistants.

Miss Ryan Stars In Final Matches At Wimbledon

American Won Three Doubles Events in One Day.

By Herbert L. Bourke.

(Copyright, 1927.)

WIMBLEDON, July 6.—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, grim-visaged, square shouldered Californian was the outstanding figure in an American clean up of the final day of the fifty-first annual Wimbledon lawn tennis championships.

Partnered with Francis T. Hunter, she opened the afternoon by vanquishing Louis Raymond and Miss Esther "Bobbie" Heine 6—3, 6—4, in the semi-final of the mixed doubles. Then, after the briefest of rests, she joined Miss Helen Wills and, in the final match of the women's doubles, overwhelmed Mrs. J. Peacock and Miss Heine 6—3, 6—2, to win that championship. Whereupon she immediately rejoined Hunter, and fought gallantly to the mixed doubles title, defeating Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Godfree, 8—6, 6—0.

The two titles thus acquired earned for America four of the five Wimbledon trophies. France gained the men's singles cup in the all-French final between Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra. But Miss Wills won the women's singles; Tilden and Hunter took the men's doubles and the Wills-Ryan and Hunter-Ryan conquests yesterday completed the list of Yankee victories.

New Record for Miss Ryan.

To Miss Ryan, also, there came the distinction of establishing a new Wimbledon record for her victory in the woman's doubles marked the ninth time she has triumphed in that division of play. Six of those nine conquests came when she was partnered with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen; in one other she had a British woman as partner, and last year she teamed with Miss Mary Browne, her California countrywoman, in winning the crown. The Wimbledon record was established by the Doherty brothers, who in the early years of the tournament scored eight victories in the men's doubles.

Miss Ryan's achievement yesterday was one of the most remarkable in Wimbledon history. Persistent showers—rain had fallen 11 of the 14 days of play—were responsible for crowding a semifinal and two finals upon the American woman in one day, and not many believe she could successfully meet the stamina-taxing issue. There seemed good reason for this view after she had won the semifinal in the mixed doubles and the final in the women's doubles. The opening set of the mixed doubles saw her falter in sheer fatigue and the Godfrees gained an early and seemingly commanding lead. But the American woman, with a most amazing display of grit, fought off her weariness and with a display of courage that won the acclaim of every observer, she battled on, squaring and then winning the opening set and scoring her 6—0 win of the second set and thus taking the match.

Was Given Fine Assistance.

In both divisions of competition she was not without capable assistance from her partners. Miss Wills, through her perfect lobbing, strong driving and swift service, shared almost equally in scoring the triumph in the women's doubles while Hunter fought through the mixed doubles engagements with that courage which enabled him and Tilden to win the men's doubles trophy.

But only Miss Ryan was forced to play through three matches and she was chiefly responsible for each victory.

Pitcher Ehmke Is Sent Home by Manager Mack

Hurler in No Condition to Work, Announces Leader of Athletics.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, July 6.—Manager Connie Mack of the Athletics, now playing a series with Boston, announced yesterday that he had sent Howard Ehmke, lanky right handed pitcher, home to Philadelphia. The charge against Ehmke is that he is "in no condition to pitch baseball." The Philadelphia manager said he did not expect that Ehmke would rejoin the club in the present lengthy road trip, which ends July 25.

Ehmke was knocked out of the box in the first inning of the second game of Monday's double-header and was marked up as the losing pitcher.

TY COBB, JR., GETS SETBACK AS TENNIS PLAYER IN TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—The ambition of Tyrus Cobb Jr. to be a tennis star received a setback in the Middle States tournament now in progress at the Philadelphia Cricket Club.

Young Cobb is living in a Philadelphia suburb while his famous dad is playing with the Athletics. He decided to enter the doubles in the tennis tournament and was paired with William G. Foulke of the Philadelphia Cricket Club.

When he looked over the drawings Cobb found that he and his pal were scheduled to play in the first round Manuel Alonzo, the Spanish star of international and Davis cup fame, and Samuel Gilpin of the Merion Cricket Club.

The fire of the elder Cobb glinted in the eyes of the son as he and Foulke went on the court, and undismayed by the reputation of Alonzo, the young men faced their opponents with courage. By dint of strategy they managed to win one game. The match resulted 6—0, 6—1, 6—0.

NEWARK ADOPTS NEW METHOD OF PASSING BATON; BREAKS RECORD

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., July 6.—The News today says that a new method of passing the baton very likely enabled the Newark A. C. 440-yard relay team to smash the world's record at the National A. A. U. championships at Lincoln, last Monday.

JACK DOES NOT STAND ON TOES DURING BOUTS

Dr. Fralick, Sent to Camp by Rickard, Declares Former Champion's Condition "Spendid."

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA LAKE, N. Y., July 6.—An old dog will try new tricks when Jack Dempsey fights Jack Sharkey in the Yankee Stadium.

Despite the contention of hand lers that the former champion is merely reverting in fighting style to the earliest period of his ring career, Dempsey apparently intends to show the fight fans something new in his attack on the big Bos

During the first half dozen work

Sparring mates, catching Demp

As a result Jack's board of strat worked out a solution of the prob down from his toes, straightened his body from the crouch and re duced bobbing to a minimum.

Yesterday in the most impressive workout Jack has shown, he knocked down straight left leads with his right hand instead of try he continually bored in close with Corbett Watches Work.

Eddie McMullin, a middleweight who kept out of harm's way rath er easily during the first week of training, was knocked through the ropes by a left hook to the chin that traveled less than a foot. Dave Shade, crack middleweight from California, bumped into three six inch left hooks to the chin and was groggy when the bell ended his round. In all Jack worked the equivalent of 10 fast three-minute rounds.

Jim Corbett, ex-heavyweight champion, watched Dempsey work.
"I expected to find a shell shocked veteran," he said. "Instead Jack is a wonderful fighter in grand condition."

Dr. W. M. Frahlick, New York surgeon, sent here by Tex Rickard to examine Dempsey, declared
Jack's condition "splendid."

JACK DOES NOT STAND ON TOES DURING BOUTS

Dr. Fralick, Sent to Camp by Rickard, Declares Former Champion's Condition "Spendid."

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA LAKE, N. Y., July 6.—An old dog will try new tricks when Jack Dempsey fights Jack Sharkey in the Yankee Stadium.

Despite the contention of handlers that the former champion is merely reverting in fighting style to the earliest period of his ring career, Dempsey apparently intends to show the fight fans something new in his attack on the big Boston sailor boy July 21.

During the first half dozen workouts here Jack sought to regain the weaving prowess of titular days that made him a shifty target, a bobbing two-fisted battering ram, ever elusive and always on the attack. But something was wrong with the old system.

The natural fighting style of lean youth, rawhide strong, did not return easily to the former champion, now 32 years old and almost 20 pounds heavier than the day he scaled in at 183 to win the title from Jess Willard eight years ago.

Sparring mates, catching Dempsey with solid left jabs as he tore in on his toes, tipped him off balance, ruined marksmanship, and forced him to swing long and inaccurate punches while out of position.

As a result Jack's board of strategy, headed by Leo P. Flynn, worked out a solution of the problem. The decision pulled Dempsey down from his toes, straightened his body from the crouch and reduced bobbing to a minimum.

Yesterday in the most impressive workout Jack has shown, he knocked down straight left leads with his right hand instead of trying to weave away from them and he continually bored in close with head down and body swaying to rip short left hooks to the head and ribs.

SPORT SALAD

by L. C. Davis

The Inglorious Fourth.

ALAS and alack! for the Cardinal gang
On the Fourth of July with a terrible bang,
In Pittsburg our heroes exploded.
They faced the big guns of the Buccaneer crew,
And into the muzzles they recklessly blew,
For our boys didn't know they were loaded.

The "don'ts" in the papers for Fourth of July
Had been unperceived by the Cardinal eye,
And for them it was national mirth day.
They should have laid off that Piratical crew,
For, you never can tell what a Pirate will do
With a gun on our National birthday.

In Pittsburg, their laurels they hoped to retrieve,
But the Pirates had something concealed in their sleeve,
For with basehits their bats were prolific.
They should have played safe in a matter of doubt,
But they blowed on a cracker they thought had gone out,
And the kick-back was simply terrific.

TOO TRUE.

Our Cards seem to be going nowhere rapidly, as the feller says.

"Mrs. Coolidge Given New Dog."

Doesn't seem to be much demand for second-hand dogs.

The Cards never were a good road team. So all we can do is keep the home fires burning.

The Yanks celebrated the Fourth by scoring 33 runs against the Senators and playing to the largest crowd in the history of baseball. Showing how tired the customers are becoming of the home-run stuff.

Lou Gehrig's contribution to the festivities of the day was a brace of four-baggers, making him two up on the Babe. Nothing like keeping the home-run championship in the family.

Twenty-eight hundred gas filling station employes have announced that they will go out on strike unless their wages are increased from $140 to $149 a month.—News item. Considering the high cost of living this is not an exhorbitant demand.

"Giants Take Double Bill From Robins."

This is stepping a bit of considering that Robins usually have but one bill.

"Rosenbloom Holds Flowers to Draw."

Indicating that Flowers couldn't take the bloom out of Rosenbloom.

The American tennis players, both male and female, had a big day over in England on the Fourth. You just can't keep Americans from raising a racket on the Fourth.

See where Brown Sugar and Candy Rock, both ran second at Fairmount on the Fourth. Cup o' Tea and Candy the Great also ran. Bad day for the heavy sugar babies.

There will be no more horse racing at Fairmount until the fall Nowhere to go but to the dogs.

"All France Unites In Celebrating Our Independence Day."

Sure, why not? France helped make it possible and Lindy popularized it.

France has become so used to welcoming American aviators over there that she counts that day lost that one or more of them don't drop in for a social call.

TEXANS REACH SECOND ROUND IN CANADIAN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 6.—Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer, both of Austin, Tex., reached the second round in both singles and doubles of the Ontario lawn tennis tournament yesterday. White disposed of A. J. Bellieveau of Ottawa, and Thalheimer eliminated J. H. Phillips of Cornell, former intercollegiate star. In the men's doubles they defeated E. Sherpe and W. E. Larmonth of Ottawa.

TAYLOR UNDERGOES OPERATION TO EYE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Bud Taylor, recognized bantamweight champion, underwent an operation yesterday on his left eye to relieve a condition that resulted in partial blindness following his fight with Tony Canzoneri last month. A split bone directly over the optic nerve was removed. Taylor will be out of the ring for several weeks.

The original injury was sustained in a match with Joey Sangor in Milwaukee, several months ago.

Dempsey Says Fact He Has Nothing to Lose Will Aid Him in Bout With Sharkey

Former Champion Declares He Will Be in Position of Man Without the Worry Concerning a Title and May "Take Chances.

THE Post-Dispatch presents herewith the first of a series of expressions by Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, concerning his chances for a successful "comeback," starting with his bout against Jack Sharkey July 21 in New York. In the second article, to appear tomorrow, Dempsey will tell why he put Leo P. Flynn in charge of his training camp.

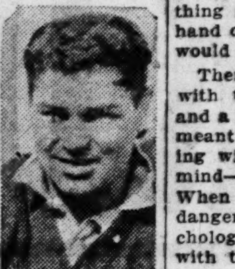
By Jack Dempsey.

As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1927.)

SARATOGA LAKE, N. Y., July 6.—When I get back into action on July 21 against Jack Sharkey, I'll be almost a year older than when I lost the title; I will have passed through a siege of ailments that endured for several months. And many will insist that so much will be a mighty handicap.

They may be right.



DEMPSEY.

But to offset that is the fact that I will not go into the ring in my next fight burdened by the terrific responsibility of a title. Nor will I be oppressed by the great fears I might have had about a setback in my younger years, when I was fighting my way to the top.

Every fight I figured in up to the time I met Jess Willard was one of those "croocial" things for me. In each I had to win—and win in rather decisive or spectacular fashion—or it would have been pushed to the side track and never be given consideration as a foeman of Willard.

When Defeat Meant Oblivion.

ANY defeat I might have suffered while I was moving along toward the crack at Willard's chin might have placed me in the "has-been" class. Certainly it would have halted my progress and there could have been but little likelihood that I ever would have recovered from a decisive defeat in time to rebuild my reputation and get rating as Willard's most dangerous opponent.

I was fully aware, in each of those important fights of my pre-championship career—the ones against Fulton, Morris, Smith and the others—that failure would just about wreck me. The thought never was out of my mind. Every time I went into a ring I carried with me that mental strain.

After I became champion—well, things got much tougher. Retention of the title meant continuance of prestige; it meant that I could continue being in big money. And although I never was afraid, as regards defeat in any of my battles, I was always fearful that something might happen to an arm, a hand or a leg during the fight that would force me into defeat.

There was a worry connected with title-holding; a huge worry and a heavy one. Being champion meant a lot. I was always fighting with the protective idea in mind—as does every champion. When a champion meets a really dangerous challenger, the psychological advantage is always with the challenger. For he can take chances—plenty of them—and the man who takes chances usually is the winner.

A Champion's Worry.

A CHAMPION has nothing to gain in victory except a little more prestige. He has just about everything to lose in defeat. With a challenger, it's exactly the opposite. He hasn't any worries—any real responsibility. He can go ripping and tearing along, taking the most daring risks. But a champion can't—or, rather, a champion usually doesn't.

When I go into battle with Sharkey, I will not be champion. I won't be defending anything. I can take chances—the wildest kind of chances. For I will know that by taking them, I am reasonably sure of victory.

I can go ripping and tearing into Sharkey—slug with him toe-to-toe if he wishes—and not be worrying about losing a title, if I get the worst of it. I'll know that by taking chances I perhaps can smash my way to victory—and get another shot at Tunney.

So, you see, although I'm a year older, in a physical way, than I was when I fought Tunney, I'll be about eight years younger so far as worry and responsibility and the need for caution and eternal watchfulness is concerned.

And that's going to be a tremendous help.

Baker-Hudkins Go Involved in Contract Brawl

Boxers Have Signed to Meet in Far West and East Within Eight Days.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 6.—A mixup in fight contracts involving bouts in Chicago, New York and Los Angeles, today found Ace Hudkins, Lincoln, Neb., welterweight, facing new difficulties in his efforts to hold an outdoor bout with Sergt. Sammy Baker here.

Hudkins was informed today that his bout with Baker, scheduled for July 18, had been postponed until July 25. Even then it is not certain the bout will be held, for while Promoter Dick Donald has a contract signed by Clyde Hudkins, brother and manager of Ace Hudkins, and a telegraphed acceptance from Steve Webber, representing Baker, Promoter Humbert Fugazy has the boxers dated for a bout in New York Aug. 3.

Another factor in the postponement was the contract of James Mullen of Chicago, who has Baker and Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight champion, programmed for a bout there next Thursday night.

Although Donald previously had said that Baker had assured him he would break his Chicago contract, the Los Angeles fight promoter today declared he had been dilatory in sending Baker his transportation money and that this had caused the boxer to decide to go through with the Callahan bout.

The mixup in contracts was said to have resulted in the eagerness of each boxer to sign with a promoter who had the other fighter signed and also to the fact that Hudkins has a New York manager, who signed with Fugazy.

Brown Defeats O'Dowd.

BALTIMORE, July 6.—Buster Brown, Baltimore featherweight, was awarded the judges' decision over Eddie O'Dowd of Columbus, O., after a 12-round bout last night.

DICE CHALLENGED FOR RACE BY OWNER OF WESTERN 2-YEAR-OLD

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Mrs. John D. Hertz, who has developed the West's champion 2-year-old running horse, Anita Peabody, is sending a challenge to the 2-year-old champion of the East, Dice, for a match race at Lincoln Fields.

The filly was born and prepared for the races on the Hertz farm within a few miles of downtown Chicago. She is a daughter of Luke McLuke-Laudaphine, and has won all three of her starts.

Col. Matt J. Winn, director of the Lincoln Fields track, offered yesterday to arrange for an attractive purse if Mrs. Hertz' emissary, Joseph McClennan, now en route to New York, can arrange the match race with Dice.

The association's commission for the holiday races totaled $26,606.79.

Missouri Valley Net Meet Draws 12 St. Louisans

Additional Local Players Expected to Enter Omaha Tourney.

The Missouri Valley Tennis Association's annual tournament at Omaha the week of July 11 will draw at least 12 leading men and women tennis players to St. Louis, as that number already have stated their intention of entering. Others are expected to file their entries.

Wray D. Brown, Missouri Valley singles champion three times in the past five years, and ranked No. 1 in the Valley rankings, will lead the St. Louis delegation. Other St. Louis men players will include Ted Drews, Fred O. Josties, Edmund Serrano, Robert Norton, Ted Eggman, Gus Serrano, Richard Districh and Forrest Stuckman.

Mrs. Melicent Baehr, who won the women's singles championship in 1925 and Miss Lottie Hagemeyer and Mrs. Ruth Stephens, are St. Louis women stars entered.

LYONS AND THOMAS AFTER BAGBY'S MARK

CLEVELAND, July 6. — No American League hurler has won 30 games in a season since Jim Bagby scored in 31 for Cleveland in 1920. Several American mound aces have neared the mark, taking George Uhle's 27 victories last season as the most recent example.

This year two flingers are shooting at a pace which may relegate Bagby's record to history. With the campaign hardly one-third over, the youthful Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox, has chalked up 14 triumphs, with his slab teammate, Al Thomas, close behind with 12.

O'FARRELL'S ANSWERS

(1) With the score tied at 5-5 and the bases full, the pitcher is taken out. The opposing team makes two runs off the second pitcher and wins, 7 to 5. Which is the losing pitcher? (2) Have the runners on bases anything to do with deciding the winning and losing pitchers? VOILA.

(1) The first pitcher is the loser if the runs mentioned were scored by the men he put on base. If they were scored later, the second pitcher is the loser.

(2) Yes, if the runners put on base by a pitcher before he is taken out score the deciding runs, they are charged against him.

A on second and B on third. Batter hits to third baseman. A goes to third, touching the base, and B starts for home but both runners decide to go back and return safely to their bases, batter getting to first. Is either runner out? Does the batter get a hit. Is any fielder charged with an error? R. D. M., Energy, Ill.

All hands are safe, batter gets a "fielder's choice" and no error is charged unless a misplay of some kind occurred.

Pro Promoters Failed to Lure Tennis Stars

Report, However, Says Bill Tilden Will Head London Show Next Winter.

By the Associated Press.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6.—The great offensive of professionalism against amateurism, carried on throughout the Wimbledon tennis tournament, has culminated in victory for the amateurs. Despite gigantic offers of sterling, dollars and francs to induce William T. Tilden, Henri Cochet, Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree, Miss Helen Wills, Miss Betty Nuthall and Fraulein Cecille Aussem, to shed their ermine cloaks of amateurism, so far as was known today all refused.

It has been stated humorously that the large attendance on the many rainy days of the Wimbledon tournament is explained by the fact that among those present were many agents of professional promoters. "How many millions have you been offered today?" was the greeting of prominent men and women players during the last week. Eight thousand pounds sterling, $40,000 and 1,000,000 francs were offered to Miss Betty Nuthall, Miss Wills and Cochet, respectively, but there was no answer.

Miss Wills Just Laughed.

Miss Nuthall's mother — Betty still being under age and unable to sign a contract—dickered for nearly a week with the promoter, and then refused. Miss Wills laughed when the subject was broached, and said, "see mamma." Then Mrs. Wills referred it to father at Berkeley, Cal., and Dr. Wills replied, "not for $200,000."

Had the thousand or so spectators been aware of the strain under which Coche was laboring in his match against Tilden, the winner of the Wimbledon men's championships would have been cheered more lustily than he was, for he had been approached with a tempting offer just before he took the courts.

Cochet is a poor boy as tennis players go. He is the son of a Lyons groundkeeper, having learned tennis while chasing balls about the courts for Andre Gobert, William Laurentz and other French champions. He has a little store in Lyons, the income of which is reported to be 75,000 francs—about $2000—yearly. He is married and his friends say he has steady, sober habits.

Bill Made Hit As Actor.

"The spectators wondered why I was being outplayed by Tilden in the first two sets," Cochet told a friend within hearing of The Associated Press correspondent after the dramatic victory. "Every ball that came to me was labeled 10,000 francs if I missed. I wish those people had left me alone."

Tilden the amateur tennis player maintained his standing, but Tilden the actor is reported to have made a great stroke of fortune. The most prominent of the professional promoters is also a theatrical man and producer, and it is freely gossiped that Bill Tilden will head a show in London next winter.

dications at Geneva Are That Britain Is Impressed by Japan's Siding With America.

the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The tical turn in the discussions of e tripartite naval conference at neva is believed to have inspired unexpected and hasty confer- ce between Secretary of State llogg and the British Ambas- dor, Sir Esme Howard.

However, their conversation, ich took place yesterday, was rouded in secrecy and State De- rtment officials refused to dis- se the purport of the meeting.

But it was learned officially that e British Ambassador came here his own volition and not at the quest of Secretary Kellogg from e summer embassy in New Eng- nd. He returned immediately ter the meeting to Manchester, ass.

The support of the American inimum limitation of cruiser ton- ge by Japan was not wholly a rprise to officials here. It was nerally recognized in Washing- n that Japan's present economic tuation demands sharp curtail- ent of expenditures, which would cessarily include reduced naval ilding.

Chairman Porter of the House reign Affairs Committee, in a blegram congratulated Admiral llary P. Jones of the American aval delegation for his speech at eneva declaring the American avy should be "equal to the rongest." Chairman Hale of the nate Naval Committee, in a re- nt speech at Bar Harbor, Me., id that Congress and the Ameri- n people would never consent to y agreement subordinating its avy to "that of any other na- on."

Porter in his message also said e principal of equality of sea ower was the only practical means disarmament and maintenance peace.

pan Makes New Proposal to Conference.

the Associated Press.

GENEVA, July 7.—Calm came oday to the Tri-Partite Naval Con- erence after yesterday's hours of torm, with the British, American nd Japanese delegations, trying to evise some solution for the cruis- r problem which will prevent a reakup of the conference.

A British spokesman said today hat both the American and Jap- nese experts appeared to have isunderstood the British figures nd that an agreement could be eached if everyone realized that reat Britain did not intend to nclude projected building pro- rams in her cruiser figures but nly ships actually appropriated or.

There are indications that the ritish have been impressed with he Japanese advocacy of the merican plan for a low cruiser imitation.

In her proposal submitted at yes- erday's private meeting Japan dhered to a system of linking ruisers and destroyers, and is un- erstood to have announced that he will accept a total tonnage f 300,000 for all axiliary surface raft.

This Japanese estimate is condi- ional upon an agreement that the nited States and Great Britain ac- ept for themselves 450,000 tons ach of cruisers and destroyers ombined.

Japan's Submarine Claims.

Japan also is understood to have equested 70,000 tons of subma- ines, which is about 16,000 tons n excess of the maximum Ameri- n suggestion for submarines to e allocated to Japan.

This proposal would mean that Japan is supporting the American figures for surface craft, but wants preferential position regard- g submarines.

The original American proposal as that the combined tonnage of oth the cruiser and destroyer asses should not exceed 550,000 ns at any time for the United tates and Great Britain, and that apan should not exceed 330,000 ns.

Japan now proposes 300,000 tons or herself which, on the basis of 450,000 tons for the United States nd Great Britain, would give her position somewhat improved
